3. In every case where an appeal shall be so made the judges of the said superior courts, judge of assize, or assistant barrister, or recorder, as the case may be, shall and are hereby severally authorized to hear the matter of the said petition, and to make such order thereon for confirming the original order, or for reducing or wholly remitting the fine or other penal sum, as may seem fit under all the circumstances of the case; and the proper officer of such court of appeal shall thereupon certify the said order under his hand to the officer of the court by which the original order shall have been made, who shall forthwith issue a warrant for the execution of same, if no warrant shall have been already issued, or shall indorse the same on the warrant if a warrant shall have been already issued, and direct the person to whom it shall have been addressed to proceed in its execution, or otherwise, according to such indorsement; and in every case where such appeal shall be dismissed, or shall not be duly prosecuted, the said proper officer of the court of appeal shall so certify under his hand to the officer of the court by which the original order shall have been made, who shall thereupon proceed as if no such appeal had been made:

4. In every case where any fine shall be imposed on any person for non-attendance as a juror, and the order imposing such fine shall not be reversed upon any such appeal, it shall be lawful for such person in like manner to make a further appeal to one of the superior courts of law in Dublin, during the term next after such first-mentioned appeal shall have been decided, and it shall be lawful for such court to hear and determine such appeal; and the several provisions hereinbefore contained as to the suspension and subsequent execution of any warrant for the levy of such fine shall also apply to such last-mentioned appeal in like manner as to such first-mentioned appeal:

Not to interfere with the power of Lord Lieutenant, &c.

Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be deemed in any way to limit or restrain the Lord Lieutenant, or the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, or the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, from reducing or remitting any fine or sum imposed, or ordered to be levied, which by law he or they may be in any way authorized to reduce or remit.

Estreat of recognizances.

Proof of notice to be first given.

10. In every case where any person who shall enter into a recognizance to keep the peace, or to appear to answer to any complaint as to an indictable offence, or to prosecute or give evidence in any case of an indictable offence, or to perform the duties of petty sessions clerk, shall in any manner fail to perform the condition of such recognizance, it shall be lawful for the several assistant barristers, recorders of cities or boroughs, and for the chairman of quarter sessions of the county of Dublin, as the case may be, upon conviction of such person of any offence that shall be a breach of the condition of the said recognizance, or upon the production of a certificate thereof, signed and attested by the proper officer in that behalf, that the person so bound by recognizance had failed to perform the condition of the same, to order that such recognizance shall be forfeited to such amount as such assistant barrister, recorder, or chairman shall think fit, and to direct a warrant to issue to levy such amount in like manner as other penal sums are directed to be levied by this Act: Provided always, that proof shall be first made on oath before such assistant barrister, or recorder, or chairman, that notice in writing has been given to or left at the usual place of abode of the party, or each of the parties if there be more than one, against whom it shall be sought to put such recognizance in force, seven days at the least before the commencement of the sessions at which such application shall be made, and such notice shall state in substance the cause or manner on which it is intended to sustain the application.<sup>1</sup>

11. The forms in the schedule to this Act contained, or forms to the like effect, shall be deemed good, valid, and sufficient in law: Provided always, that it shall be lawful for the Chief or Under Secretary to the Lord Lieutenant from time to time to alter the said form of book (A) so far as to introduce into it such further particulars as may be necessary in order to adapt it to any state of facts either new or not provided for therein.

Crown fines, &c., to be lodged in bank.

15. It shall be lawful for the Lord Lieutenant to charge the said fund with the payment of such expenses as may be necessarily incurred in the examination of the accounts to be rendered under the provisions of this Act, and in the supply of books for the entry of orders at petty sessions, and in otherwise carrying the provisions of this Act and of the said Petty Sessions Act into effect.

SUMMARY JURISDICTION (IR.), ACT, 1851.

14 & 15 VICTORIA, CAP. 92.

Justices may decide cases under this Act on evidence of witnesses or confession.

1. It shall be lawful for any justice or justices sitting in petty sessions (or for any two justices sitting out of petty sessions, when the offender shall be unable to procure bail for his appearance at petty sessions) within his or their respective jurisdictions to hear and determine, either on the oath of one or more credible witnesses, or on the confession of the person against whom the complaint shall be made, all complaints relating to any offences, claims, or other matters under the provisions of this Act, and to order such fine, imprisonment, compensation, expenses, and sums, or to make such other order relating to each offence or other matter as such person shall be liable to under the said provisions; and all proceedings as to compelling the appearance of any such person or of any witness, and as to the hearing and determination of such complaints, and as to the making and executing of such orders, shall be subject in all respects to the provisions of the "Petty Sessions Act, Ireland, 1851" (when the case shall be heard in any petty sessions district), and to the provisions of the Acts relating to the divisional police offices (when the case shall be heard in the police district of Dublin metropolis), so far as the said provisions shall be consistent with any special provisions of this Act.

6. Any person who shall commit any of the next following offences (and whose age at the time of the commission thereof shall not, in the opinion of the justices, exceed the age of fourteen years) shall be liable to the punishment<sup>1</sup> hereinafter specified.

Any person not exceeding 14 years of age committing larceny shall be fined or imprisoned.

1. Any such person who shall commit, or attempt to commit, or who shall aid or abet the commission of any offence which now is or hereafter shall or may be by law deemed or declared to be simple larceny, or punishable as simple larceny, shall, upon conviction thereof before the justices sitting in petty sessions and in open court, be liable to a fine not exceeding three pounds, or to be imprisoned for a period not exceeding three months:

And, if a male, may be whipped.

2. If a male, such person shall, if the justices shall see fit, be liable to be once privately whipped, either instead of or in addition to such imprisonment; and the justices shall from time to time appoint some fit and proper person to inflict said punishment of whipping, when ordered to be inflicted out of prison:

3. And if the justices, upon the hearing of any such case, shall deem the offence not to be proved, or that it is not expedient to inflict any punishment, they shall dismiss the person charged, on his finding a surety or sureties for his future good behaviour, or without such sureties, if the said justices shall so think fit :

offenders.*

If offence be not proved, &c., justices may dismiss the person with or without sureties for good behaviour. No other forfeiture, but justices may order restitution of property; or, if it be not forthcoming, may order compensation.

If the charge is thought fit for indictment, &c., case to be dealt with at sessions.

And no conviction of any such juvenile offender for any such offence shall be attended with any forfeiture, save as hereinbefore mentioned; but whenever any such person shall be convicted of such offence, it shall be lawful for the justices to order restitution of the property in respect to which such offence shall have been committed to the rightful owner; or if such property shall not then be forthcoming, the justices, whether they shall award punishment or dismiss the complaint, may, if they shall think fit, order payment of the value of such property in money to the rightful owner by the person convicted: Provided always, that if the justices shall be of opinion, before any such person shall have made his defence, that the charge is from any circumstance a fit subject for prosecution by indictment (or if the parent or next friend of such person shall, upon his being called upon to answer the charge, object to the case being summarily disposed of under the provisions of this Act), the justices shall, instead of summarily adjudicating thereupon, deal with the case as one to be prosecuted by indictment at assizes or quarter sessions.

7. Any person who shall commit any of the next following offences shall be liable to the punishment hereinafter specified in each case :

Offering adulterated corn, &c., for sale.

1. Any person who shall sell or offer for sale any wheat, rye, meslin, peas, beans, barley, bere, oats, shillin, cutlings, meal, flour, malt, or other corn which shall in the whole or in part be spoiled or adulterated by wetting or mixing therewith any sand, gravel, dirt, or rotten or damaged corn, grain, malt, meal, or flour, or grown or blighted corn, or other kind of stuff, or which shall not be in quality of equal goodness to that produced to the view of the intended buyer or buyers thereof, or shall use any other fraud or deceit therein, in order to make such corn, grain, malt, meal or flour appear heavier than it would have been without such mixture, fraud, or deceit, shall forfeit all such corn, grain, malt, meal, or flour, to be disposed of as the justices shall direct, and shall also be liable to a fine not exceeding forty shillings, or to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding one month :
2. Any person who shall exhibit for sale any unwholesome or fraudulently prepared meat, fish, or other provisions or food of any kind for man or beast, or shall practise any deceit or fraud in respect to the quality of any such meat, fish, or other provisions, shall forfeit all such meat, fish, or other provisions, to be disposed of as the justices shall direct, and shall also be liable to a fine not exceeding forty shillings, or be imprisoned for any term not exceeding one month.

Offering unwholesome or fraudulently prepared meat, &c., for sale.

And it shall be lawful for any justice to seize or cause to be seized any of the articles hereinbefore last-mentioned as to which any such offence shall have been committed; and the said justice may, if he shall deem it expedient, either proceed at once to hear and determine the case, or may adjourn the hearing thereof to the next petty sessions of the district.

8. Any person who shall commit any of the next following offences shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten shillings, and in default of payment thereof at such time as the justices shall fix shall be liable to be imprisoned for a period not exceeding one week :

persons.*

1. Any person who shall wilfully trespass in any field, garden, pleasure-ground, wood, plantation, or other place, and shall neglect or refuse to leave any such place after he shall have been warned to do so by the owner, or by the caretaker or servant of the owner, or by any person authorized in that behalf by the owner :

Tre-spas on fields, &c., and refusing to leave.

2. Any person who shall again trespass in any such place within three months from the time when any such warning shall have been so given to him.

Repetition of trespass after warning.

Trespass of persons.

But not to extend to certain cases of trespass:

nor to prevent right of civil action.

Injuries to public roads.

Omitting to scour ditches after notice, or to have drains under passages in and out of roads.

Building houses within 30 feet of the centre of the road.

Deepening ditches or altering fences, &c., without consent of county surveyor:

or altering fences.

"Centre of road."

Scraping roads, without consent of Co. surveyor; drawing timber, &c., so as to injure road; or riding on footpath Provided always that nothing herein contained shall extend to any case where the party trespassing acted under a fair and reasonable supposition that he had a right to go into or upon any such place, nor to any trespass (not being wilful or malicious) committed in hunting, fishing, or the pursuit of game; but nothing herein contained shall prevent any person from maintaining any civil action or suit for any such trespass, instead of proceeding under this Act.

9. Any person who shall commit any of the next following offences on or relating to any public road shall be liable to the punishment hereinafter specified in each case:

1. Any owner or occupier of any lands contiguous to any public road who shall omit to scour any ditch or drain<sup>1</sup> leading from such road, so as to allow the water to pass away, within ten days after notice shall have been given to him so to do by the county surveyor, or by the contractor for the repair of such road, or who shall suffer the passage of the water to be obstructed by making or leaving any way or passage from any road into the adjoining lands, or into his house, without a sufficient pipe, sewer, or gullet underneath it, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty shillings.<sup>2</sup>
2. Any person who shall build or cause to be built any house or part of a house within thirty feet of the centre of any public road, except in the streets of corporate or market towns,<sup>3</sup> or where a house now stands, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten pounds, and to a further sum of ten shillings a week from the time of his conviction until the same shall be pulled down or removed.<sup>4</sup>
3. Any person who shall scour, deepen, widen, or fill up any ditch or drain on the side of any public road, or who shall alter the fences of any public road<sup>5</sup>; or who shall build any wall, or make any ditch, drain, or watercourse, or dig any pit or hollow, on any public road, or within thirty feet of the centre thereof (save upon or within any ancient fence adjoining such road); or who shall otherwise break up the surface of any road or footpath, unless with the consent of the county surveyor, or by the authority of any presentment, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty shillings (and the centre of the road for the purposes of this Act shall be deemed to be the centre of the part thereof made with gravel or stones<sup>6</sup>):
4. Any person who shall, without the consent of such surveyor or contractor, scrape any public road, or who shall draw any timber or stones along any part of a public road, without being supported by wheels from <sup>1</sup> The defendant was the occupier of lands adjoining a highway, and separated therefrom by a bank three feet in width. A drain, or eye, which had been in existence for twenty-nine years, and by means of which surface water from the highway was discharged on to the defendant's lands, passed through the bank. There was no evidence as to the origin of the drain, nor was there any defined channel on the defendant's lands into which the water so discharged could flow, nor any evidence that there had ever been such a channel. Held, that the court ought to presume a legal origin for the drain, and that the defendant was therefore bound to scour it (King's Co. County Co. v. Kennedy, (1910) 2 I.R. 544).

<sup>3</sup> Dalkey is not within the exception, not being a corporate town, because a corporate town is not one that is governed by a corporation, but a town that has received incorporation by charter, and is not a market town, inasmuch as no market has been established there, though the local Act empowered that to be done (Dalkey U.D.C. v. Horner, (1903) 37 I.L.T.R. 83, 2 N.I.J.R. 124).

<sup>5</sup> The fact that the fence is the property of the defendant is immaterial, and it was held that the unauthorized erection of a barbed-wire fence by the owner of the land was an offence within the section (Collen v. Ellis, (1893) 32 L.R.I., 491): see Barbed Wire Act, 1893.

touching the same, or who shall ride or drive any horse or other animal willingly and unnecessarily on any footpath, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty shillings.<sup>1</sup>

Injuries to public roads.

5. Any county surveyor or road contractor, or other person who shall dig, raise, and carry away any gravel, stones, sand, or other materials from the side of any public road, or from any beach or sea-shore, whereby a public road or bulwark or defence to any bridge or like building, or any land within the fences of any such road, may be injured, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five shillings for every cartload of such gravel, stones, sand, or other materials so dug, raised, or carried away: Taking materials to the injury of roads, &c.
6. Any person who shall wilfully damage or destroy any pay-gate . . . or any post, rail, wall, chain, bar, or other fence of any kind whatsoever, which shall be used to prevent passengers from passing by without paying the toll payable by virtue of any Act of Parliament, or any toll-house for the use of any such pay-gate . . . , or who shall forcibly rescue or attempt to rescue any person or persons, being lawfully in custody of any constable or other person for any such offences, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding forty shillings, or to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding two months. Destroying pay-gate, fence, &c.
7. Any person who shall wilfully prevent or assault, or threaten to prevent or assault, any county surveyor or road contractor in the execution of his duty, or any person or persons employed by proper authority in surveying or measuring or laying out any line intended for a new road, or who shall wilfully destroy, pull up, deface, or injure any surveyor's instruments or implements used in making or laying out any public road, or any milestone, milepost, or direction post, or any bridge, battlement, wall, railing, mound, or fence belonging to any public road, or who shall wilfully break, deface, pull down, or take away stones out of any such battlement, wall, mound, or fence, or out of any bridge, pipe, arch, or gullet belonging to any public road, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten pounds, or to be imprisoned for a term not exceeding three months. Assaulting engineers, surveyors, or contractors on public roads.
8. It shall be lawful for any two justices of the county, upon application of the county surveyor, to forbid any person or persons from riding or driving any kind of beast or carriage on any new road for such space of time as shall to them appear necessary, not exceeding six months, after such new road shall have been made, and the expenditure thereon duly accounted for at special sessions; and any person who shall wilfully disobey such order (the same being duly notified by a notice affixed to a board or boards erected upon such road) shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty shillings. Justices may forbid the using of a new road for certain time after making.

And if the county surveyor or the contractor for the repairing of any public road in any county shall think that such road is prejudiced by any of such neglects or offences as aforesaid, or by the shade of any hedges or trees except those planted for ornament or shelter of any dwelling-house, courtyard or garden, or that any obstruction is caused in any public road by any hedge or tree, it shall be lawful for such surveyor or contractor, by notice in writing,<sup>2</sup> to require the person who shall be guilty of any such neglect or offence, or the owner of the land on which such hedges or trees are growing, as the case may be, to fill up any ditch or drain which shall have been so scoured, deepened, or widened, or to scour any drains which have been so filled on the side of any public road without the consent of the said county surveyor or the authority of a presentment, or to scour or deepen any drain or ditch leading from any road which shall be omitted to be scoured or deepened after due notice by such surveyor or contractor, or to remove any way or passage from any road into any adjoining land, or to any house which may obstruct the free passage of the water, or to remake the same by building a Surveyor or contractor may require owners of land to remove obstructions, &c., and to prune hedges or trees injuring roads.

And any person who shall be guilty of any of the next following neglects or offences shall be liable to the punishment hereinafter specified :

9. Any pound-keeper who shall act as such without being duly authorized by the justices, and without having duly entered into a recognizance in manner aforesaid, or who shall neglect to keep such pound clean and well supplied with wholesome water, and in such a secure and wholesome state as shall ensure the due forthcoming and health of the animals impounded, or who shall demand or receive any sum for the keeping or sustenance of any animals in such pound greater than the sums fixed by this Act or by the justices as aforesaid, as the case may be, or who shall neglect to feed any animal impounded in such pound, or who shall omit to post in a conspicuous place any such table or notice, or to give any such notice as is directed by this Act, or who shall without due authority liberate or permit to be liberated from such pound any animal impounded therein, or who shall refuse or neglect, when required by the justices, to give up to them any pound built in the whole or in part at the expense of the county, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten pounds :

Rescuing

10. Any person who shall rescue or attempt to rescue any animal out of any such pound or out of any other place in which any animal shall be impounded for greater safety, under the circumstances hereinbefore mentioned, or who shall break down or injure any such pound or place, or do any act by means of which any animal impounded therein shall escape or be unlawfully liberated therefrom, shall be liable to pay the amount of the injury done, and also a fine not exceeding ten pounds ; but in every case of the commission of any such offence in rescuing or attempting to rescue any distress, or in breaking or injuring any pound, the justices shall, if they shall so think fit, abstain from adjudicating summarily thereon, and deal with the same as a case to be tried by indictment at the assizes or quarter sessions :

11. Saving as to manor pounds.

Provided always that nothing herein contained shall interfere with the right of any lord of a manor to establish or continue any manorial pound for the impounding of distresses made in such manor which he is now by law entitled to establish or continue, or to appoint from time to time any person to be keeper of such pound ; but the regulation of such pound, and the duties of such pound-keeper, shall in all other respects be subject to the provisions of this Act, in like manner and to the like extent as any pound established or any pound-keeper licensed by the justices at petty sessions in manner aforesaid.

animals.*

20. The decision and regulation of certain matters relating to the trespass of animals shall be subject to the following provisions :—

No impounding
animals known.

1. It shall not hereafter be lawful to impound any animal found trespassing upon any land when the owner of such animal shall be known, but the occupier of such land or the person by whom such animal shall be found trespassing, shall either deliver up such animal to the owner, or to his steward, herdsman, caretaker, or other servant, or he shall show such animal in the act of trespassing to such owner, steward, herdsman, caretaker, or other servant, and allow such animal to be taken away by him ; and the owner of such animal shall thereupon be liable to pay to the occupier of such land the rate of trespass fixed by the following scale (or according to such scale as the justices at quarter sessions shall from time to time fix, and which they are hereby authorized to do if they shall see fit):

CIVIL JURISDICTION.
animals.*

Where the trespass shall be on any common pasture land, or on any arable uncropped land, the rate shall be :

	s.	d.	Rates of trespass.
For every horse, mare, pony, mule, ass, bull, cow, bullock, heifer, or pig . . . . .	0	6
For every calf, sheep, or lamb . . . . .	0	2
For every goose . . . . .	0	1
For every other fowl . . . . .	0	0½
For every goat . . . . .	3	0

And where the trespass shall be upon any fattening pasture or meadow land, or upon any land cropped with corn, peas, flax, vetches, turnips, rape, potatoes, green crop, or other cultivated vegetable, or by any goat in a plantation, the rates shall be double the amount of the preceding rates :

2. But when the owner of any such animal shall not be known, it shall be lawful for the occupier of such land, or for his servant, or for any other person on his behalf, to impound such animal in the nearest pound of the county (or in the pound of the manor), specifying in the notice which he is required to give to such pound-keeper (under the provisions hereinbefore contained relating to the impounding of animals) the nature of the land or crop in which such animal shall have been found trespassing; and such pound-keeper shall afterwards deliver up such animal to the owner, if known, or to any person on his behalf, either upon being so authorized in writing by any justice, or upon being paid by such owner or person the amount legally due for pound fees and rates of sustenance, and also the amount due under the above scale of rates, for a trespass on any land or crop of the nature specified in such notice; and such pound-keeper shall thereupon pay over the amount of such rate of trespass to the person by whom such animal shall have been impounded, unless when required by any justice, or by such occupier by notice in writing, to hold over the same until any dispute as to the same shall have been decided at petty sessions.

Where owner animal may be impounded.

Pound-keeper to deliver animal to owner, on authority of justice, or on
rates.

3. Whenever either the occupier of such land or the owner of such animal shall not be satisfied with the amount of such rates (whether paid at the time or not), it shall be lawful for the justices at petty sessions, upon complaint of such occupier or owner, to investigate the case, and to make such award against either party as shall seem just, under all the circumstances; and the principle upon which they shall make such award shall be, that the owner of such animal shall be deemed liable to pay to such occupier the above rate for a first trespass, and double the above rate for a second trespass, and treble the above rate for a third or subsequent trespass (whether any actual damage shall have been done or not), unless they shall be satisfied that such trespass was caused by any neglectful conduct on the part of such occupier, or that there are any other justifying circumstances, in which case they may declare him to be entitled either to no rates or to a part only of the rates; and in any case where any actual damage shall have been done by such trespass, it shall be lawful for the justices to award a like payment of such further sum as, together with any rates awarded, shall be equal to the value of such damage as shall be proved to their satisfaction to have been actually caused by such trespass; and in making any such award the justices shall allow credit to the owner of such animal for the amount of any rate of trespass paid by him at the time; or where they shall award either no rates or a lesser amount than any sum so paid at the time, they may order that the whole or a part of such sum, as the case may be, shall be refunded to such owner :

are not satisfied, justices to investigate the case, and make award.

may be awarded.

4. Whenever it shall appear, in any case in which any complaint of trespass shall be so made, that the trespass shall have been caused by the bad or imperfect state or destruction of any fences, it shall be lawful for the justices at petty sessions by order in writing to direct that the occupier of the land to which such fences shall belong shall repair the same when wholly on his land, or join in repairing the same when partly on his land, within such reasonable time as they shall fix for that purpose; and in default of his so doing within such time, it shall be lawful for such justices, by a like order in writing, to authorize such fences to be repaired by the person who shall have been aggrieved by any such trespass, who may thereupon enter and repair the same; and afterwards, upon proof of the expenses incurred by such person in making such repairs beyond what he may be himself bound to expend in case of fences common to both parties, it shall be lawful for such justices to order that the same shall be paid (to any amount not exceeding two shillings per perch) by such occupier, unless it shall be shown that the person under whom such fences in repair, in which case such amount shall be paid by such person; and in default of such payment it shall be lawful for such justices to order that such amount shall be levied by distress of the goods of such occupier or person, as the case may be, and paid over to the person by whom such repairs shall have been made.

Punishment for offences.

And any person who shall be guilty of any of the next following neglects or offences shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds:

Provided always, that in all such proceedings under this Act it shall be lawful for the justices to adopt such means as they shall see fit, either by the employment of a valuator or arbitrators or otherwise, for the purpose of informing themselves as to the amount of any damage done, or as to any other circumstances proper to be inquired into on the spot, or as to any other facts of the case upon which they shall be required to decide: and they may (if they shall think it necessary) order the parties, or either of the parties, to pay to any person so employed such reasonable sum as they shall fix, not exceeding two shillings and sixpence per day, as remuneration for his trouble.

Provisions.*

The justices may discharge the offender in certain cases.

And when required by the clerks of the Crown or peace, as the case may be, the clerk of petty sessions shall attend the assizes or quarter sessions to which any informations, examinations, or recognizances shall be returned by him, or to which any informations, examinations, or recognizances prepared by him shall be returned, and as to which any complaint shall have been made against him for neglect to answer such inquiries respecting the same as shall be made by the court: and in case it shall appear that such clerk shall have committed any wilful default or neglect in preparing or in transmitting the same, or shall have improperly divulged the contents of such informations or examinations, it shall be lawful for the judge of assize or for the justices at quarter sessions, as the case may be, for every such offence to impose a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds on the said clerk, and in default of payment of the same to commit him to gaol for any term not exceeding three months.

6. Whenever a vacancy shall occur by reason of the death, resignation, suspension, or dismissal of any clerk of petty sessions, the sub-inspector<sup>1</sup> of constabulary, or the head-constable of the district, or such other person as the justices shall authorize, shall take charge of all books, papers, and other effects belonging to the said petty sessions, and shall retain them in his care and custody until a successor shall be appointed to such clerk; and it shall be lawful for any justice, upon being satisfied upon oath that any such books, papers, or other effects as aforesaid are, or are suspected to be, in the possession of any person who shall refuse to deliver up the same to such sub-inspector,<sup>1</sup> head-constable, or other person so authorized, to issue a warrant to any sub-inspector,<sup>1</sup> head or other constable, to search the house of such person for the same, and to seize and detain the same if discovered therein; and such sub-inspector,<sup>1</sup> head or other constable, so authorized by any such warrant, may, upon the refusal of such person to open his door for that purpose, break it open.

On death or dismissal of clerks, district-inspector to take charge of all books, &c.

7. The powers of justices and others to act in and for different localities shall be subject to the following provisions:—

Local jurisdiction.

1. A justice for any county may act as such in all matters arising within such county, although he may at the time happen to be in an adjoining county, provided he shall be also a justice for such adjoining county.
2. A justice for any county may in like manner act as such in all matters arising within such county, although he may at the time happen to be in any city, town, or place, being a county of itself, situated within, or adjoining to such first-mentioned county, whether he shall be a justice of such city, town, or place, or not; but nothing herein contained shall extend to empower any justice for any county not being also justice for any such city, town, or place as aforesaid, or any person acting under him, to act or intermeddle in any matters arising within any such city, town, or place.

Justice may act for one county whilst in adjoining county of which he is also a justice, &c.

3. The inspector-general, or either of the deputy-inspectors-general<sup>1</sup> of constabulary, being a justice of any county, may act in all matters arising within such county, wherever he may happen to be at the time :
4. Whenever any townland belonging to one county shall be included in any petty sessions district of the adjoining county under the provisions of this Act, any justice having jurisdiction in such petty sessions district shall have the like jurisdiction in such townland, although he may not be a justice of the county to which such townland belongs ; and any committal to any gaol or bridewell of such last-mentioned county, or any other magisterial act done by any such justice, in any case in which the offence or cause of complaint shall have arisen in such townland, shall have the like force and effect as if such justice was also a justice of such last-mentioned county :

And all constables or other persons apprehending any person whom they lawfully may and ought to apprehend, by virtue of their office or otherwise, in any such county or place as aforesaid, may lawfully convey such person before any justice for such county or place, whilst such justice shall be in such adjoining county or place as aforesaid, and such constables or other persons are hereby authorized and required in all such cases to act in all things as if such justice were within the county or place for which he shall so act.

8. The places where justices shall sit in the discharge of their duties shall be subject to the following provisions :—

1. Whenever a public court-house shall be maintained by county presentment at any place fixed for the holding of petty sessions, the petty sessions shall be held therein, if not inconvenient to the public ; but whenever no such public court-house shall be so maintained, or the holding of petty sessions therein would be inconvenient to the public, it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the county to present an annual sum not exceeding ten pounds for the rent of a public justice-room in which the petty sessions shall be held, and of a lock-up : Provided that such room shall not be in a house where spirituous or fermented liquors are sold, or in a constabulary barrack, or in any building maintained in the whole or in part at the public expense, and that it shall be proved to the satisfaction of the county presentment sessions where application shall be made for such rent, that at least four meetings of justices shall have been held in such room during the four months next preceding such application :
2. It shall not be lawful for any justice or justices to hear and determine any cases of summary jurisdiction out of petty sessions, except cases of drunkenness, or vagrancy, or fraud in the sale of goods, or disputes as to sales in fairs or markets<sup>2</sup> : but it shall be lawful for two justices, if they shall see fit, to hear and determine out of petty sessions any complaint as to any offence when the offender shall be unable to give bail for his appearance at petty sessions.<sup>3</sup>

Provided always that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent any justice or justices acting out of petty sessions from making any order (not being in the nature of a conviction, or of an adjudication upon a complaint), which a justice or justices may be authorized or required by law to make.

9. The right of the public to have access to the place in which justices shall sit shall be subject to the following provisions :

1. In all cases of summary proceedings the place in which any justice or justices shall sit to hear and determine any complaint shall be

Parties may plead by counsel or attorney, &c.

2. In all cases of proceedings for indictable offences the place in which any justice or justices shall sit to take any examination or statement relating to any such offence shall not be deemed an open court for that purpose, but it shall be lawful for such justice or justices, in his or their discretion, to order that no person (the counsel or attorney of any person then being in such court as a prisoner only excepted) shall have access to or be or remain in such place without the consent or permission of such justice or justices, if it appear to him or them that the ends of justice will be thereby best answered:

Place in which examination for indictable offences are taken not to be deemed an open court.

And if any person shall wilfully insult any justice or justices so sitting in any such court or place, or shall commit any other contempt of any such court, it shall be lawful for such justice or justices by any verbal order either to direct such person to be removed from such court or place, or to be taken into custody, and at any time before the rising of such court by warrant to commit such person to gaol for any period not exceeding seven days, or to fine such person in any sum not exceeding forty shillings.

commit and fine for contempt of court.

10. Whenever information shall be given to any justice that any person has committed or is suspected to have committed any treason, felony, misdemeanour, or other offence, within the limits of the jurisdiction of such justice, for which such person shall be punishable either by indictment or upon a summary conviction, or that any person has committed or is suspected to have committed any such crime or offence elsewhere out of the jurisdiction of such justice, either in Great Britain or Ireland, or in the Isles of Man, Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney, or Sark, and such person is residing or being, or is suspected to reside or be, within the limits of the jurisdiction of such justice; or that any person has committed, or is suspected to have committed, any crime or offence whatsoever on the high seas, or in any creek, harbour, haven, or other place in which the admiralty of England or Ireland have or claim to have jurisdiction, or on land beyond the seas for which an indictment can be legally preferred in any place in the United Kingdom of England and Ireland, and such person is residing or being, or is suspected to reside or be, within the limits of the jurisdiction of such justice; or whenever a complaint shall be made to any justice as to any other matter arising within the limits

complaints.*

Justice may
information.

<sup>1</sup>In Webb v. Catchlove, 1886, 50 J.P. 73, Denman, J., thought "it a most unfortunate practice for police officers to be allowed to act the part of advocates in courts of justice. When witnesses, they should be mere witnesses, and not be allowed to take up the position of advocates"; and Hawkins, J., said that he thought "it a very bad practice to allow a policeman to act as an advocate before any tribunal, so that he would have to bring forward only such evidence as he might think fit and keep back anything that he might consider likely to tell in favour of any person placed upon his trial." In Denman v. Jones, 1886, 51 J.P. 130, Lord Coleridge, C.J., said, "As regards the observations made in the case of Webb v. Catchlove, I should concur. These were general observations arising out of that case, where a police officer had been conducting a case and refused to answer a question most pertinent to the inquiry, and it led the learned judges to observe that it was a very bad practice for police constables to conduct cases, for they were apt to keep back important witnesses who might tell against them, and their own duty is to stand indifferent in the matter at issue." The following, however, is a copy of a circular issued to justices in Ireland, dated 2nd August, 1876:—"A question having arisen respecting the right of a member of the Royal Irish Constabulary Force, without professional assistance, to conduct cases before magistrates and to examine and cross-examine the witnesses, I am directed by the Lord Justices to inform you that the Law Officers of the Crown are of opinion that in cases of summary proceedings the Constabulary have such right when they are themselves the complainants, but not otherwise; but that in cases of proceedings for indictable offences, whether they be the complainants or informants or not, they not only have the right, but it is their duty, as representing the Crown, to conduct the case, and to examine and cross-examine the witnesses without the intervention or assistance of any professional man."

*Informations
complaints.*

Information may be verbal, and without oath, in certain cases.

It must be in writing, and on oath, in certain cases.

Binding informant to prosecute.

Limitation of time.

In cases of summary jurisdiction, defendant entitled to copy of information when in writing.

*Process to
appearance.*

In cases of indictable offences a warrant shall issue in the first instance.

But in certain cases summons shall issue.

In cases of summary jurisdiction, summons to issue in the first instance; of his jurisdiction, upon which he shall have power to make a summary order, it shall be lawful for such justice to receive such information or complaint, and to proceed in respect to the same, subject to the following provisions :

1. Whenever it is intended that a summons only shall issue to require the attendance of any person, the information or complaint may be made either with or without oath, and either in writing or not, according as the justice shall see fit :
2. But whenever it is intended that a warrant shall issue for the arrest or committal of any person, the information or complaint shall be in writing, and on the oath of the complainant, or of some person or persons on his behalf :
3. Whenever any such information shall have been taken on oath and in writing that any person has committed, or is suspected to have committed, any indictable crime or offence (or any offence for which such person shall be punishable upon summary conviction, and for whose arrest the justice shall issue a warrant), it shall be lawful for the justice, if he shall see fit, to bind the informant or complainant by recognizance (A. a.*) or (C.) to appear at the court or place where the defendant is to be tried or the complaint is to be heard, to prosecute or give evidence, as the case may be, against any such person :
4. In all cases of summary jurisdiction the complaint shall be made, when it shall relate to the non-payment of any poor-rate, county-rate, or other public tax, at any time after the date of the warrant authorizing the collection of the same ; and when it shall relate to the non-payment of money for wages, hire, or tuition, within one year from the termination of the term or period in respect of which it shall be payable ; and when it shall relate to any trespass, within two months from the time when the trespass shall have occurred ; and in any other case within six months from the time when the cause or complaint shall have arisen, but not otherwise :

And in all cases of summary jurisdiction any person against whom any such information or complaint shall have been made in writing shall, upon being amenable or appearing in person or by counsel or attorney, be entitled to receive from the clerk of petty sessions a copy of such information or complaint, on payment of the sum of sixpence to such clerk ; and such clerk shall in no case allow the original information or complaint to be taken out of his possession.

11. The manner in which persons against whom any such informations or complaints as aforesaid shall have been received by any justice shall be made to appear to answer to the same shall be subject to the following provisions :

1. In all cases of indictable crimes and offences (where an information that any person has committed the same shall have been taken in writing and on oath) the justice shall issue a warrant (B. b.) to arrest and bring such person before him, or some other justice of the same county, to answer to the complaint made in the information (and which warrant may be issued or executed on a Sunday as well as on any other day) ; or if he shall think that the ends of justice would be thereby sufficiently answered, it shall be lawful for him, instead of issuing such warrant, to issue a summons in the first instance to such person, requiring him to appear and answer to the said complaint ; but nothing herein contained shall prevent any justice from issuing a warrant for the arrest of such person at any time before or after the time mentioned in such summons for his appearance ; and whenever such person shall afterwards appear or be brought before any such justice, he shall proceed according to the provisions hereinafter contained as to taking the evidence against such person, and committing such person for trial :
2. In all cases of summary jurisdiction the justice may issue his summons (B. a.) directed to such person, requiring him to appear and answer to the complaint, and it shall not be necessary that such justice shall be the justice or one of the justices by whom the complaint shall be afterwards heard and determined; and in all cases of offences where such persons shall not appear at the required time and place, and it shall be proved on oath, either that he was personally served with such summons or that he is keeping out of the way of such service (the complaint being in writing and on oath), the justice may issue a warrant to arrest and bring such person before him or some other justice of the same county, to answer to the said complaint; and when such person shall afterwards be arrested under such warrant the justice before whom he shall be brought may either by warrant (E. b.) commit him to gaol until the hearing of the complaint, or may discharge him upon his entering into a recognizance (C.) with or without sureties, at the discretion of the justice, conditioned for his appearance at such hearing: in certain cases a warrant may issue.

And each summons or warrant shall be signed by the justice or one of the justices issuing the same, and it shall state shortly the cause of complaint, and no summons or warrant shall be signed in blank; and in every case where the offence shall have occurred or the cause of complaint shall have arisen within the petty sessions district for which the justice issuing any such summons or warrant shall act, but the party or witness to whom such summons shall be directed, or against whom such warrant shall be issued, shall reside in an adjoining county, it shall be lawful for such justice to compel the appearance of such party or witness at the hearing of the charge or complaint within such district, in like manner as if such party or witness resided in such district, although such justice may be a justice of such adjoining county.

Summons or warrant to be signed, but not in blank, &c.

Summons or warrant may run into an adjoining county.

12. The manner in which summonses shall be served shall be subject to the following provisions:

Service of summonses.

1. It shall be lawful for the justices of each petty sessions to appoint some one or more persons who shall be able to read and write, to act as summons-server or servers of the district during the pleasure of such justices.<sup>1</sup>

Justices to appoint a summons-server.

2. In cases of offences prosecuted by the constabulary, the summons shall be served by a head or other constable, but in all other cases it may be served by the summons-server of the district, or (if the justice issuing the same shall so direct or permit) by any other person whom the complainant shall employ, and who shall be able to read and write, but in no case by the complainant himself:

By whom summons to be served.

3. Every summons shall be served upon the person to whom it is directed by delivering to him a copy of such summons, or if he cannot be conveniently met with, by leaving such copy for him at his last or most usual place of abode,<sup>2</sup> or at his office, warehouse, counting-house, shop, factory, or place of business, with some inmate of the house not being under sixteen years of age, a reasonable time before the hearing of the complaint; and such last-mentioned service shall be deemed sufficient service of such summons in every case except where personal service shall be specially required by this Act; and in every case the person who shall serve such summons shall indorse on the same the time and place where it was served, and shall attend with the same at the hearing of the complaint to depose, if necessary, to such service:

What shall be due service.

Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect the provisions of any Act authorizing the substitution of service in particular cases.

At the end of that time he returned to his father's house. Two days after his departure from O's house a summons was left for him at O's house charging him with an assault alleged to have been committed eight days prior to his leaving O's house. R never received or heard of the summons. Held, that O's house was not R's last or most usual place of abode, and that his conviction should be quashed (*R. (Regan) v. Witnesses.

Justices may
to attend.

13. Whenever it shall be made to appear to any justice that any person within the jurisdiction of such justice is able to give material evidence for the prosecution in cases of indictable offences, or for the complainant or defendant in cases of summary jurisdiction, and will not voluntarily appear for the purpose of being examined as a witness, such justice may proceed as follows:—

summons.

1. He may issue a summons (B. a.) to such person, requiring him to appear at a time and place mentioned in such summons, to testify what he may know concerning the matter of the information or complaint, and (if the justice shall see fit) to bring with him and produce for examination such accounts, papers, or other documents as shall be in his possession or power, and as shall be deemed necessary by such justice; but in any case of an indictable crime or offence, whenever the justice shall be satisfied by proof upon oath that it is probable that such person will not attend to give evidence without being compelled so to do, then (the information or complaint being in writing and on oath), instead of issuing such summons as aforesaid, he may issue a warrant (B. b.) in the first instance for the arrest of such person:

offences, warrant may issue in the first instance.

If summons be not obeyed, warrant may issue.

2. And in any case when any person to whom a summons shall be issued in the first instance shall neglect or refuse to appear at the time and place appointed by such summons, and no just excuse shall be offered for such neglect or refusal, then (the information or complaint being in writing and on oath) after proof upon oath that such summons was personally served upon such person, or that such person is keeping out of the way of such service, and that he is able to give material evidence in the case, the justice before whom such person should have appeared may issue a warrant (B. b.) to arrest such person, and to bring him at the time and place appointed for the hearing of the case, to testify and to produce such accounts, papers, and documents as may be required as aforesaid:

tent witnesses.

3. In all cases of prosecutions for offences the evidence of the informer or party aggrieved shall be admissible in proof of the offence; and in all cases of complaints on which a justice can make an order for the payment of money, or otherwise, the evidence of the complainant shall be admissible in proof of his complaint; and in cases of wages, hire, or tuition, the evidence of the master or employer may, in the discretion of the justices, be admitted in proof against the complaint:

Witnesses to be
oath.

4. All witnesses shall be examined upon oath,<sup>1</sup> and any justice before whom any such witness shall appear for the purpose of being so examined shall have full authority to administer to every such witness the usual oath:

Witnesses refusing to be
be committed.

5. Whenever any person shall appear as a witness, either in obedience to a summons or by virtue of a warrant (or shall be present, and shall be verbally required by the justice or justices to give evidence), and he shall refuse to be examined upon oath concerning the matter of the information or complaint, or shall refuse to take such oath, or, having taken such oath, shall refuse to answer such questions concerning the said matter as shall then be put to him, or shall refuse or neglect to produce any such accounts, papers, or documents as aforesaid (without offering any just excuse for such refusal), the justice or justices then present may adjourn the proceedings for any period not exceeding eight clear days, and may, in the meantime, by warrant (E. b.) commit the said witness to gaol, unless he shall sooner consent to be sworn or to testify as aforesaid, or to produce such accounts, papers, or documents, as the case may be; and if such witness, upon being brought up upon such adjourned hearing, shall again refuse to be sworn, or to testify as aforesaid, or to produce such accounts, papers, or documents, as the case may be, the said justices, if they shall see fit, may again adjourn the proceedings, and commit the witness for the like period, and so again, from time to time until he shall consent to be sworn or to testify as aforesaid, or to produce such accounts, papers, or documents, as the case may be (provided that no such imprisonment shall in any case of summary jurisdiction exceed one month in the whole); but nothing herein contained shall be deemed to prevent the justice or justices from sending any such case for trial, or otherwise disposing of the same in the meantime, according to any other sufficient evidence which shall have been received by him or them :

Witnesses.

6. Whenever in cases of indictable offences the justice or justices shall see fit, they may bind the witnesses by recognizances<sup>1</sup> (A. b.*.) or (C.) to appear at the trial of the offender, and give evidence against him; and whenever any witness shall refuse to be so bound, it shall be lawful for the justice or justices by warrant (E. b.) to commit him to the gaol of the county or place in which the person accused is to be tried, there to be imprisoned until the trial of the person accused, unless in the meantime such witness shall duly enter into recognizance (C.) before some justice of the county in which such gaol shall be situated; but if afterwards, from want of sufficient evidence or other cause, the justice or justices before whom the person accused shall have been brought shall not commit him or hold him to bail, it shall be lawful for such justice or justices, or any other justice of the county by warrant (E. d.) to order the keeper of the gaol to discharge such witness :

In cases of indictable offences, witnesses may be bound to give evidence.

7. In all cases of summary jurisdiction it shall be lawful for the justices by whom any order for payment of money, not being in the nature of a penalty for an offence, shall be made, to order the party at whose instance any witness shall have been summoned to pay to such witness such sum, not exceeding two shillings and sixpence, as to such justices shall seem fit, for his expenses or loss of time for each day of attending to give evidence, and in default of payment thereof at such time as such justice shall appoint, then to issue a warrant to levy the amount thereof by distress of the goods of such party :

Justices may order payment to witnesses in civil cases.

And no person who shall be summoned to attend before any court of petty sessions, or before any justice out of petty sessions, as a witness, shall be liable to arrest for debt whilst at such court, or at the place where such justice shall sit, or whilst proceeding to or returning from the same, provided he shall proceed and return by the most direct road without unnecessary delay; and it shall be lawful for the court out of which the writ or process shall have issued to order the discharge of any person who shall be so arrested.

Witnesses not liable to arrest for debt.

<sup>1</sup> It is submitted that there is no power to require a witness to find sureties for his appearance. The above sub-section, no doubt, gives the justices the option of using either Form A. b, or C., and the Form C. contemplates the possibility of a surety. But Form C. is, after all, merely a general form of recognizance, which may be used either where sureties are or are not required, and, therefore, no inference can be drawn from the power to use this form in the alternative, such alternative being merely given apparently for the purpose of having the recognizance in an altogether separate form. The form of warrant E. b. merely recites a refusal by the witness "to enter into recognizance to give evidence . . . unless he shall in the meantime enter into such recognizance." Therefore, on the wording of the statute as well as the forms prescribed, it is suggested that no power to commit a witness for failure to obtain sureties to appear is conferred. Apart from the section, the better opinion seems to be that there is no such power (see Taylor, 10th ed., p. 886; Nun & Walsh, 2nd ed., p. 429; 5 Burn, J., 30th ed., p. 407, citing Graham, B., Bodmin Summer Assizes, 1817, as quoted in Burn, J., 24th ed., 1013; Evans v. Reeves, (1840) 12 A. & E. 55; Archbold, 24th ed., p. 478), but see, contra 4 Chit. C.L. pp. 49, 50, which gives a form of commitment for want of sureties where the party has no settled place of abode or property, and see also Bennett v. Watson, (1814) 3 M. & S. 1). Once the witness has entered into the recognizance, it is submitted that there is no jurisdiction to commit him pending the trial, even if it is apprehended that he will not appear. Thus in R. v. Crawford, (1854) 6 Cox 481, it was held that the court could not issue a bench warrant to bring up a witness although it was sworn that he was keeping out of the way collusively, and that his evidence was so material to the prosecution that the case could not go on without him, and that the course to be adopted was to postpone the trial to allow the witness's recognizance to be estreated on his failure to appear.

14. The manner in which the evidence shall be taken in proceedings for indictable offences shall be subject to the following provisions:—

1. In every case where any person shall appear or be brought before any justice or justices charged with any indictable crime or offence, such justice or justices, before committing such person for trial or admitting him to bail, shall, in the presence of such person, who shall be at liberty to put questions to any witness produced against him, take the depositions (A. b.) on oath and in writing of those who shall know the facts of the case, and such depositions shall be read over to and signed respectively by the witnesses who shall have been so examined, and shall also be signed by the justice or one of the justices who shall take the same; and if upon the trial of the person so accused it shall be proved by the oath of any credible witness that any person whose deposition shall have been so taken is dead, and that such deposition was taken in the presence or hearing of the person accused, and that he or his counsel or attorney had an opportunity of cross-examining such witness, it shall be lawful to read such deposition as evidence on the trial, without further proof thereof, unless it shall be proved that the same was not signed by the justice purporting to have signed the same:

2. Whenever the examination of the witnesses on the part of the prosecution shall have been completed, the justice or one of the justices present shall (without requiring the attendance of the witnesses) read or cause to be read to the person accused the several depositions, and then take down in writing the statement (A. c.) of such person (having first cautioned him that he is not obliged to say anything unless he desires to do so, but that whatever he does say will be taken down in writing, and may be given in evidence against him on his trial); and whatever statement the said person shall then make in answer to the charge shall, when taken down in writing, be read over to him, and shall be signed by the said justice or one of the justices present, and shall be transmitted to the clerk of the Crown or peace, as the case may be, along with the depositions, and afterwards, upon the trial, may, if necessary, and if so signed, be given in evidence against the person accused, without further proof thereof, unless it shall be proved that it was not signed by the justice purporting to sign the same; but nothing herein contained shall prevent the prosecutor from giving in evidence any admission or confession, or other statement made at any time by the person accused, and which would be admissible by law as evidence against such person:

But if, from the absence of any witnesses, or from any other reasonable cause, it shall become necessary or advisable to defer the examination or further examination of the witnesses for any time, it shall be lawful for the justice before whom the person accused shall appear or be brought, either to admit such person to bail in manner hereinafter provided, or by warrant E. b.) from time to time to remand such person to gaol for such time as the justice shall deem expedient, not exceeding eight clear days; but any such justice may order the said person to be brought before him or some other justice of the county, at any time before the expiration of the period for which he shall have been so remanded: provided always, that at any time after the examinations in any proceedings for an indictable offence shall have been completed, and on or before the first day of the assizes or sessions or other first sitting of the court at which any person, committed to gaol or admitted to bail is to be tried, such person may require, and shall be entitled to receive from the officer or person having the custody of the same, copies of the depositions on which he shall have been committed or bailed (or copies of depositions taken at any inquest in case of murder or manslaughter), on payment of a reasonable sum for the same, not exceeding a sum at the rate of three halfpence for each folio of ninety words:

15. The manner in which the person accused shall be disposed of when the evidence shall have been taken in proceedings for indictable offences shall be subject to the following provisions:—

that the evidence is not sufficient to put such accused person on his trial, he or they shall forthwith order such accused person, if in custody, to be discharged as to the information then under inquiry; but if in the opinion of such justice or justices such evidence is sufficient to put such person on his trial, or if such evidence raises a strong or probable presumption of guilt, then such justice or justices shall either by warrant (E. b.) commit him to gaol, to be kept there until his trial for the said offence, or shall admit him to bail in manner hereinafter provided, according as he or they shall see fit:

2. Whenever any person shall appear or be brought before any justice, charged with any offence alleged to have been committed by him in any county or place in Ireland wherein such justice shall not have jurisdiction, it shall be lawful for such justice, and he is hereby required, to examine such witnesses, and receive such evidence in proof of such charge as shall be produced before him within his jurisdiction; and if in his opinion such evidence shall be sufficient proof of the said charge, such justice shall thereupon, either by a like warrant (E. b.) commit the person accused to the gaol of the county or place wherein the offence shall be alleged to have been committed, or shall admit him to bail, according as such justice shall see fit; but if in his opinion such evidence shall not be sufficient to put the accused party on his trial, then such justice shall bind over the prosecutor, if he shall have appeared, and the witnesses, to give evidence when required so to do, and shall thereupon, by warrant (E. c.) order such person to be taken before some justice of the county in which and near the place where the offence is alleged to have been committed, and shall at the same time deliver to the person having the execution of such warrant the information, depositions, and recognizances (if any) so taken, to be delivered to the justice before whom the accused person shall be taken in obedience to such warrant, and such information, depositions, and recognizances shall be treated to all intents as if they had been taken before such last-mentioned justice:

Justice of one county may examine as to offence in another county, and if evidence sufficient, shall commit or bail prisoner.

If evidence not sufficient justice may send prisoner to county where offence committed.

Provided always, that if such last-mentioned justice shall not think the evidence against such accused party sufficient to put him on his trial, and shall discharge him without holding him to bail, any recognizance so taken by the said first-mentioned justice shall be null and void.

16. The admission to bail of persons charged with indictable offences shall be subject to the following provisions:

1. In every case where any person shall be charged before any justice in manner aforesaid with any felony (save as hereinafter excepted), or with any assault with intent to commit any felony, or with any attempt to commit any felony, or with any offence against an Act of the first and second years of his late Majesty King William the Fourth, intituled 'An Act to amend an Act passed in the Parliament of Ireland in the fifteenth and sixteenth years of the reign of his Majesty King George the Third, intituled An Act to prevent and punish tumultuous risings of persons within this kingdom, and for other purposes therein mentioned', or with obtaining or attempting to obtain property by false pretences, or with a misdemeanour in receiving property stolen or obtained by false pretences, or with perjury or subornation of perjury, or with concealing the birth of a child by secret burying or otherwise, or with wilful or indecent exposure of the person, or with riot, or with assault in pursuance of a conspiracy to raise wages, or assault upon a peace officer in the execution of his duty, or upon any person acting in his aid, or with neglect or breach of duty as peace officer, or with any misdemeanour for the prosecution of which the costs may be allowed out of the county rate or funds, it shall be lawful either for the justice before whom such charge shall be made, at any time before such person shall be committed to gaol, or for the justice by whom the warrant to commit shall have been signed, at any time afterwards, and before the first day of the sitting of the court before which he shall have been committed to be tried (if having regard to the nature

2. In every case where any person shall be charged before any justice with any indictable misdemeanour other than those hereinbefore mentioned, such justice, after taking the examinations, instead of committing him to prison, shall upon the application of such person (and upon being satisfied as to the sufficiency of the bail offered), admit him to bail in manner aforesaid; or if he shall have been committed to gaol, and shall apply to any justice for the same county to admit him to bail at any time before the first day of the sitting of the court before which he shall have been committed to be tried, such justice shall admit him to bail in manner aforesaid:

And whenever it shall not be convenient for the surety or sureties in any case to attend at the gaol to join with the accused person in the recognizance of bail, then the committing justice or the justice by whom such person can be admitted to bail, as the case may be, shall make a duplicate of such certificate (I. c.) as aforesaid, and upon the same being produced to any justice for the same county, it shall be lawful for such last-mentioned justice, before such time as aforesaid, to take the recognizance of the surety or sureties in conformity with such certificate; and upon such recognizance being transmitted to the keeper of such gaol, and produced to any justice attending or being at such gaol, it shall be lawful for such last-mentioned justice, before such time as aforesaid, to take the recognizance of such accused person in like manner as if the sureties were present; and in all cases where a justice shall admit to bail any person who shall then be in any gaol charged with the offence for which he shall be so admitted to bail, such justice shall send to or cause to be lodged with the keeper of such gaol a warrant (E. d.), requiring the said keeper to discharge the person so admitted to bail, if he be detained for no other offence or under no civil process, and upon such warrant being delivered to such keeper he shall forthwith obey the same: Provided always, that no justice shall admit any person to bail for treason, or for any felony under an Act of the eleventh year of her present Majesty's reign, intituled An Act for the better security of the Crown and Government of the United Kingdom, nor shall any such last-mentioned person be admitted to bail except by order of the Lord Lieutenant or his Chief Secretary, or by Her Majesty's Court of Queen's Bench at Dublin.

17. Whenever any person charged with any such indictable crime or offence as aforesaid shall have been bailed in manner aforesaid, it shall be lawful for the justice by whom he shall have been bailed, or for any other justice, if he shall see fit, upon the application of the surety or of either of the sureties of such person, and upon information being made in writing and on oath by such surety, or by some person on his behalf, that the person so bailed is about to abscond for the purpose of evading justice, to issue his warrant for the arrest of such person so bailed; and afterwards, upon being satisfied that the ends of justice would otherwise be defeated, to commit such person when so arrested to gaol until his trial, or until he shall produce another sufficient surety or other sufficient sureties, as the case may be, in like manner as before.

18. Whenever an indictment shall have been found by the grand jury in any Court of Oyer and Terminer or general gaol delivery, or at any general or quarter sessions of the peace in Ireland, against any person who shall then be at large, and who shall not already have appeared and pleaded to such indictment (and whether such person shall have been bound by recognizance to answer to the same or not), the person who shall act as clerk of the Crown at such court, or as clerk of the peace at such sessions, shall, at any time after the end of the assizes or sessions at which such indictment shall have been found, upon application of the prosecutor or of some person on his behalf, and free from charge, grant unto such prosecutor or person a certificate (I. b.) of such indictment having been found; and upon production of such certificate to any justice for the county in which the offence shall be alleged in such indictment to have been committed, or in which the person thereby indicted shall reside or be, or be suspected to reside or be, such justice shall issue his warrant to arrest such person, and to cause him to be brought before him, or some other justice for the same county, to be dealt with according to law; and upon such person being so brought before such justice, and upon its being proved on oath that the person so arrested is the same person who is charged and named in such indictment, such justice shall, without further inquiry, either commit him for trial or admit him to bail, in manner aforesaid; and in any such case as last aforesaid, if the person so indicted shall at any time be confined in any gaol for any other offence than that charged in such indictment, such justice shall, upon like proof on oath that the person so confined is the same person who is so charged in such indictment, issue his warrant (E. b.) to the keeper of such gaol, commanding him to detain such person in his custody until he shall be discharged therefrom by due course of law; but nothing herein contained shall be deemed to prevent any clerk of the Crown or peace or other officer from issuing any warrant in any such case for the arrest of any such person which he might otherwise by law issue.

19. The manner in which informations, examinations, statements of accused parties, and recognizances in proceedings for indictable offences, shall be disposed of, when taken, shall be subject to the following provisions:

*Disposal of the informations,

Indictable

1. Every such information, examination, statement, and recognizance sworn, taken, or acknowledged by or before any justice not sitting in petty sessions shall, with all convenient despatch, and at the latest before the petty sessions then next ensuing for the district where the case may have arisen, be transmitted by him to the justices at such petty sessions, except in cases where the person accused shall not have been committed or shall not be amenable, and such justice shall deem it expedient to retain such documents for a longer period.
2. The justices at petty sessions shall transmit or cause the clerk of petty sessions to transmit every such information, examination, statement, or recognizance so received from any justice out of petty sessions, or which shall be sworn, taken, or acknowledged at petty sessions to the clerk of the Crown of the county where the same shall relate to any matter to be tried at the assizes, or to the clerk of the peace where same shall relate to any matter to be tried at quarter sessions, with all convenient dispatch, or at latest within seven days from the holding of each petty sessions where the party shall have been committed or shall be amenable (or at least seven days before the assizes or quarter sessions, as the case may be, where the party shall not have been committed or shall not be amenable), except in cases of indictable offences where the party shall not have been committed, or shall not be amenable, and the justices shall deem it expedient to retain such documents for a longer period:
3. In every case where any such documents, whether taken in or out of petty sessions, shall be so retained by any justice for a longer period than is hereinbefore provided, he shall indorse on the same his reason for such retention:

*Hearing the case.—
Summary
jurisdiction.*

20. In all cases of summary jurisdiction the proceedings upon the hearing of the complaint shall be subject to the following provisions:

1. Whenever the defendant or his agent shall be present the substance of the complaint shall be stated to him, and if he thereupon admit the truth of the complaint, then the justices shall, if they shall see no sufficient reason to the contrary, convict or make an order against him accordingly; but if he do not admit the truth of the complaint, then the justices shall proceed to hear such evidence as may be adduced in support of the complaint, and also to hear the defence and such evidence as may be adduced on behalf of the defence, and also such evidence as the complainant may adduce in reply, if such defendant shall have given any evidence other than as to his (the defendant's) general character; but the complainant or his agent shall not be entitled to make any observations in reply upon the evidence given by the defendant, nor shall the defendant or his agent be entitled to make any observations in reply upon the evidence given by the complainant in reply; and if the information or complaint shall negative any exemption, exception, proviso, or condition in the statute on which the same shall be framed, it shall not be necessary for the complainant to prove such negative, but the defendant may prove the affirmative thereof, if he will have advantage of the same:
2. Whenever the defendant or his agent shall not appear at the time and place mentioned in the summons, and it shall appear to the justices on oath that the summons was duly served a reasonable time<sup>2</sup> before the time therein appointed for appearing, and no sufficient grounds shall be shown for an adjournment, the justices may either proceed ex parte to hear and determine the complaint, or may adjourn the hearing to a future day:
3. Whenever the defendant or his agent shall appear at the time and place appointed in the summons, or shall be brought before the justice by virtue of any warrant, then if the complainant (having in the case of a warrant had due notice of the defendant's arrest) do not appear by himself or his agent, the justices may either dismiss such complaint, or may adjourn the hearing to a future day:

<sup>1</sup> For "grand jury" and "assizes" read "county council" and "its quarterly meeting" (Adaptation of Irish Enactments Order, 1899—Article 3 (4) of Sch.).

<sup>2</sup> As to what is a reasonable time, see p. 49, ante. The following case has been decided since the earlier part of this volume went to press:—

The defendant, a barrister, resided with his mother near Omagh, but left Ireland on the 3rd June, 1910, to attend training in connection with his duties as officer of territorials, and remained in England until 27 June, 1910. The summons was served at his mother's residence on the 6th June, 1910, to appear at Letterkenny Petty Sessions on the 9th June, 1910. The defendant who was convicted of the offence charged, heard nothing of the summons until the 13th June, 1910. No explanation was sent by his relatives, who were aware of the summons, to the convicting justices, who were not aware of the defendant's absence. Held, that the summons had not been well served within the section (R. (Dickie) v. Donegal Jfz., 28 October, 1910, 44 I.L.T.R. 222). On matters constituting a condition precedent to the jurisdiction, the court will, upon certiorari, consider all the facts, including facts that may not have been brought before the justices (ib.). As to other cases on service, see p. 49, ante.

4. Whenever any justices shall proceed to hear and determine any complaint or information as to an offence, they, or one of them, shall, when required so to do by either party or his agent, take or cause to be taken a note in writing of the evidence, or of so much thereof as shall be material, in a book to be kept for that purpose by the clerk of petty sessions, and which book shall be signed by one of the justices by whom such information or complaint shall have been heard on the day on which the same shall have been determined.

*Hearing the case.—
Summary jurisdiction.*

Justices to take evidence in offence cases in writing, if required.

And whenever all the cases shall have not been heard and determined on any court day, the justices then present may adjourn the remaining cases either to the next court day or to such other day as they shall see fit; and whenever, either before or during the hearing of any complaint, it shall appear advisable, the justices present may, in their discretion, adjourn the hearing of the same to a certain time or place to be then appointed and stated in the presence and hearing of the party or parties or their agents; and all persons whose attendance shall have been required by any summons in any of the cases so adjourned shall take notice of such adjournment, and shall be obliged to attend on the day to which such adjournment shall take place, without the issue or service of any further summons; and in all cases of such adjournments the said justices may suffer the defendant to go at large, or, in prosecutions for offences (where there shall be an information in writing and on oath that the defendant is guilty of the offence), may commit him to gaol by warrant (E. b.), or may discharge him upon his entering into a recognizance (C.), with or without sureties, at the discretion of the justices, conditioned for his appearance at the time and place to which such hearing or further hearing shall be adjourned.

Justices may adjourn the court or particular cases.

21. In all cases of summary jurisdiction the justices, having heard what each party shall have had to say, and the evidence adduced by each, shall either make such order as shall be authorized by the Act under which the complaint shall be made, or shall dismiss the complaint either upon the merits or without prejudice to its being again made, and the entry of the order so made shall be as follows:

*Adjudication of case.—
Summary jurisdiction.*

Justices either to convict or dismiss on the merits, or without prejudice.

Entry of order.

1. One of the justices then present shall thereupon enter or cause the clerk to enter the particulars of such case and the substance of the decision thereon in a book to be kept for that purpose, to be called the "Order Book," (D.) (and shall, in case of a dismissal, state whether the same is upon the merits or without prejudice to a further complaint); and such entry, when one of the justices present shall have signed his name opposite to it or after it (which one of the said justices is hereby required to do), shall be deemed to all intents and purposes a conviction or order, as the case may be:
2. Whenever any justice or justices shall have made any such conviction or order out of petty sessions, in the cases permitted by this Act to be decided out of petty sessions, he or they shall either enter the same in the order-book in manner aforesaid, or shall enter the substance of the decision in the form of certificate (I. a.), and shall, forthwith, or at furthest before the next court day, deliver or forward such certificate to the clerk of petty sessions of the district, who shall enter the same in the proper order-book (with a special note that he has so done), and shall submit such entry for signature to the justices or one of the justices by whom the order shall have been made upon the next day of his attendance at petty sessions; but in case such justice shall not sign the same, the clerk shall make a special entry to that effect in the order-book opposite to such case, and shall preserve the original certificate as a record of the proceeding:
3. The sub-inspector<sup>1</sup> of constabulary of the district shall make a return to the justices at each petty sessions of the particulars of any cases of summary jurisdiction in which any justices of the said petty sessions shall have made any order or issued any warrant out of petty sessions, and in which any head or other constable of such district shall have been engaged since the next preceding petty sessions:

General powers in adjudicating.

22. In all cases of summary jurisdiction it shall be lawful for the justices in adjudicating thereon to exercise the following general powers, whether the same shall be authorized by the Act under which the complaint shall be made or not:

Fixing time of payment.

1. In every case where the justices shall be authorized to award any penal or other sum, they may order that the same shall be paid either forthwith or at such time as they shall see fit to fix for that purpose<sup>1</sup> and, in cases of a civil nature, that such sum may be paid either at once or by instalments:

Ordering distress.

2. In every case where the justices shall award any penal or other sum to be paid, they may order that, in default of the said sum being paid at the time and in the manner directed by their order, the goods of the person against whom the said order shall be made shall be distrained<sup>2</sup> for such sum, or for so much of such sum as shall remain unpaid at the time fixed, and also for the costs of such distress:

Imprisonment
in default, in offence cases.

3. In every case of an offence where they shall order that a distress shall be made in default of payment of any penal sum, they may order that in default of the said sum being paid as directed, the said person shall be imprisoned for any term not exceeding the period specified in the following scale<sup>3</sup> :—

For any sum	The imprison- ment not to exceed
Exceeding five pounds, but not exceeding ten pounds, . . .	three months.
Exceeding the last, but not exceeding thirty pounds. . .	four months.
Exceeding the last, but not exceeding fifty pounds, . . .	six months.
Exceeding the last, . . . . .	one year.

And any such imprisonment shall be determinable upon payment of the said sum and costs, and any costs of the distress where a distress shall have been made; and such imprisonment may be directed in the same warrant as such distress; but if the said person shall admit, or if it shall be otherwise proved on oath, that he has no goods, or that a distress would be ruinous to him or his family, they may order that such person shall be imprisoned in the first instance for the like period for which he might be imprisoned in default of distress:

distress for committal, and
vice versa.

4. In every case of an offence, where the order shall only have directed distress in default of payment of a penal sum, and it shall afterwards be found impossible to execute a warrant of distress, it shall be lawful for the justices at petty sessions to order a warrant to issue to commit the person against whom such order shall have been made to gaol for such period as might have been directed by the original order; and in like manner where the order shall have only directed imprisonment, and it shall be found impossible to execute a warrant of committal, it shall be lawful for the justices at petty sessions to order a warrant to issue to levy by distress of the goods of such person such penal sum as might have been awarded by the original order; and in all such cases a note of such proceeding shall be made by the justices in the order-book:

Summary jurisdiction.*

5. In every case of an offence, where the Act shall authorize the justices to order imprisonment,<sup>1</sup> they may adjudge by their order that the said imprisonment shall be either with or without hard labour, according as they shall see fit:
6. In every case of an offence, where the person against whom an order to imprison shall be made shall then be in prison undergoing imprisonment upon a conviction for any other offence, it shall be lawful for the justice issuing the same, if he shall think fit, to order therein that the imprisonment shall commence at the expiration of the imprisonment to which such person shall have been previously sentenced:<sup>2</sup>
7. In every case where any sum shall be awarded under the provisions of any Act as compensation for damage, or as the value of any article, or as the amount of any injury done, such sum shall be paid to the party or public body aggrieved; but where the party aggrieved is unknown, such sum shall be applied in like manner as any penalties awarded to the Crown; and where several persons join in an offence, and are severally punished each in the amount of the injury done, no more than one of such sums shall be paid to the party aggrieved, and the rest shall be applied as other penalties awarded to the Crown:
8. In every case where the Act under which any penal sum shall be ordered to be paid as a penalty for an offence (and no sum shall be awarded to the complainant as compensation for damage), it shall be lawful for the justices to award any sum not exceeding one-third of such penal sum to the prosecutor or informer, and the remainder of such sum, and all other penal sums, shall be awarded to the Crown, any Act or Acts to the contrary notwithstanding:
9. In all cases the justices may order that the defendant shall pay to the complainant, or, in case of a dismissal, that the complainant shall pay to the defendant, such sum, not exceeding twenty shillings, for costs, as to such justices shall seem fit, and the same shall be recoverable in the same manner as any penal or other sum adjudged to be paid by the justices:

Power to award hard labour in offence cases,

Imprisonment may commence at expiration of imprisonment under previous conviction.

Payment of compensation.

Appropriation of fines and penalties.

Power to award costs.

Provided always, that every person who shall aid, abet, counsel, or procure the commission of any offence which is or shall be punishable on summary conviction, shall be liable to be proceeded against and convicted for the same, either together with the principal offender, or before or after his conviction, and shall be liable on conviction to the same forfeiture and punishment to which such principal offender shall be by law liable (except where the age of such aider or abettor shall exceed fourteen years, in which case he shall be liable to the same forfeiture and punishment to which any principal offender whose age shall exceed fourteen years shall be liable), and may be proceeded against and convicted either in the county where such principal offender may be convicted, or in that in which such offence of aiding, abetting, counselling, or procuring, may have been committed.

Aiders and abettors.

23. In all cases of summary jurisdiction, whenever an order shall be made upon the conviction of any person for an offence, the justices shall issue the proper warrant for its execution forthwith, when the imprisonment is to take place immediately, or at the time fixed by the order for the imprisonment to take place, where it is not to be immediate, or directly upon the non-payment of any penal sum or the non-performance of any condition at the time and in the manner fixed by the order for that purpose, or at furthest upon the next court-day after the expiration of the time so fixed for the imprisonment, payment, or performance of a condition, as the case may be, unless the

On payment of

2. In every case where a distress shall be made under any such warrant, it shall be lawful for the person charged with its execution to sell the said distress within such period as shall be specially fixed by the said warrant; or if no period shall be so fixed, then within the period of three days from the making of the distress, unless the sum for which the warrant was issued, and also the reasonable charges of taking and keeping the said distress shall be sooner paid; and in every case where he shall sell any such distress, he shall render to the owner the overplus (if any) after retaining the amount of the said sums and charges:

Distress may be

3. In every case where any person against whom any such warrant shall be issued shall pay or tender to the person having the execution of the same the sum in such warrant mentioned, or shall produce the receipt of the officer of the court for the same, and shall also pay the amount of the expenses of such distress up to the time of such payment or tender, such person shall refrain from executing the same:

If sum paid

6. Whenever the warrant shall be to commit any prisoner to gaol, the head or other constable or other person whose duty it shall be to convey such prisoner to gaol shall deliver over the said warrant and the said prisoner to the keeper of the gaol, who shall thereupon give to such head or other constable or other person a receipt for such prisoner (Form F.), setting forth the state and condition in which he shall have been delivered into the custody of such keeper.

Whenever the person to whom any warrant shall be so addressed, transmitted, or indorsed for execution, shall be unable to find the person against whom such warrant shall have been issued, or his goods, as the case may be, or to discover where such person or his goods are to be found, he shall return such warrant to the justices by whom the same shall have been issued within such time as shall have been fixed by such warrant (or within a reasonable time where no time shall have been so fixed), and together with it a certificate (G a.) of the reasons why the same shall not have been executed; and it shall be lawful for such justice to examine such person on oath touching the non-execution of such warrant, and to re-issue the said warrant again, or to issue any other warrant for the same purpose from time to time as shall seem expedient.

34. Whenever any person shall be bound to appear, or to keep the peace, it shall be done by a separate recognizance (C.); but whenever any person shall be bound to prosecute or to give evidence as a witness, it may be done either by recognizance at foot of his deposition (A b.), or by a separate recognizance at the discretion of the justice; and the taking of every recognizance shall be subject to the following provisions:

Any sub-inspector<sup>2</sup>, head or other constable, or other person who shall wilfully neglect to return any unexecuted warrant at the time required by the justices, or who shall commit any wilful default in respect to the execution of the same, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

The following are the terms of section 18 of the Grand Jury Act, 1856, referred to at p. 981, n. 1, ante :—

18. Any road contractor or other person who, without the authority of a resolution of the county council, or the consent of the county surveyor where such surveyor is authorized by the county council to give such consent, shall cut any sods or turf on the sides, fences, or any other part of any public road, or dig, raise, or carry away any sods, turf, earth, clay, stones, gravel, or other material from the sides, or fences, or any other part of any public road, bridge, or wall, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding forty shillings, anything in section nine of the Summary Jurisdiction (Ireland) Act, 1851, to the contrary notwithstanding.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE ACT, 1855.

[18 &amp; 19 VICT. CH. 126.]

1. Where any person is charged before any justices of the peace assembled at such petty sessions, as hereinafter provided, with having committed simple larceny, and the value of the whole of the property alleged to have been stolen does not in the judgment of such justices exceed five shillings, or with having attempted to commit larceny from the person or simple larceny, it shall be lawful for such justices to hear and determine the charge in a summary way; and if the person charged shall confess the same, or if such justices, after hearing the whole case for the prosecution and for the defence, shall find the charge to be proved, then it shall be lawful for such justices to convict the person charged, and commit him to the common gaol or house of correction, there to be imprisoned with or without hard labour, for any period not exceeding three calendar months; and if they find the offence not proved they shall dismiss the charge, and make out and deliver to the person charged a certificate under their hands, stating the fact of such dismissal; and every such conviction and certificate respectively may be in the forms (A) and (B) in the schedule to this Act, or to the like effect: Provided always that if the person charged do not consent to have the case heard and determined by such justices; or if it appear to such justices that the offence is one which, owing to a previous conviction of the person charged, is punishable by law with transportation or penal servitude; or if such justices be of opinion that the charge is, from any other circumstances, fit to be made the subject of prosecution by indictment rather than to be disposed of summarily, such justices shall, instead of summarily adjudicating thereon, deal with the case in all respects as if this Act had not been passed: Provided also, that if, upon the hearing of the charge, such justices shall be of opinion that there are circumstances in the case which render it inexpedient to inflict any punishment, they shall have power to dismiss the person charged without proceeding to a conviction.

Power to justices at petty sessions to try summarily persons charged with larceny where the value of the property does not exceed 5s., or with attempt to commit larceny from the person, or simple larceny.

2. Where the justices before whom any person is charged as aforesaid propose to dispose of the case summarily under the foregoing provisions, one of such justices, after the examinations of all the witnesses for the prosecution have been completed, and before calling on the person charged for any statement which he may wish to make, shall state to such person the substance of the charge against him, and shall then say to him these words, or words to the like effect: "Do you consent that the charge against you shall be tried by us, or do you desire that it shall be sent for trial by a jury at the sessions or assizes?" (as the case may be), and if the person charged shall consent to the charge being summarily tried and determined as aforesaid, then the justices shall reduce the charge into writing, and read the same to such person, and shall then ask him whether he is guilty or not of such charge; and if such person shall say that he is guilty the justices shall then proceed to pass such sentence upon him as may by law be passed, subject to the provisions of this Act in respect to such offence; but if the person charged shall say that he is not guilty, the justices shall then inquire of such person whether he has any defence to make to such charge, and if he shall state that he has a defence, the justices shall hear such defence, and then proceed to dispose of the case summarily.

Justices to ask the accused whether he consents to the charge being summarily determined.

Procedure if he does so consent.

3. Where any person is charged before any justices at such petty sessions as aforesaid with simple larceny (the property alleged to have been stolen exceeding in value five shillings), or stealing from the person, or larceny as a clerk or servant, and the evidence, when the case on the part of the prosecution has been completed, is in the opinion of such justices sufficient to put the person charged on his trial for the offence with which he is charged, such justices, if the case appears to them to be one which may properly be disposed of in a summary way, and may be adequately punished by virtue of the powers of this Act, shall reduce the charge into writing, and shall read it to the said person, and shall then ask him whether he is guilty or not of the charge; and if such person shall say that he is guilty, such justices shall thereupon cause a plea of guilty to be entered upon the proceedings, and shall convict him of such offence, and commit him to the common gaol or house of correction, there to be imprisoned, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding six calendar months; and every such conviction may be in the form (C) in the schedule to this Act, or the like effect: Provided always, that the said justices, before they ask such person whether he is guilty or not, shall explain to him that he is not obliged to plead or answer before them at all, and that if he do not plead or answer before them, he will be committed for trial in the usual course.

Persons accused may have assistance of counsel, &c.

5. Where any person is charged before any justice or justices with any offence mentioned in this Act, and in the opinion of such justice or justices the case may be proper to be disposed of by justices in petty sessions under this Act, the justice or justices before whom such person is so charged may, if they or he see fit, remand such person for further examination to the next petty sessions, in like manner in all respects as a justice or justices are authorised to remand a party accused under the Petty Sessions (Ir.) 7. The justices adjudicating under this Act shall transmit the conviction, or a duplicate of a certificate of dismissal, with the written charge, the depositions of the witnesses for the prosecution and for the defence, and the statement of the accused, to the next court of general or quarter sessions for the county or place, there to be kept by the proper officer among the records of the court; and a copy of such conviction, or of such certificate of dismissal, certified by the proper officer of the court, or proved to be a true copy, shall be sufficient evidence to prove a conviction or dismissal for the offence mentioned therein in any legal proceeding whatever.

8. It shall be lawful for the justices by whom any person is convicted under this Act, to order restitution of the property stolen, taken, or obtained by false pretences, in those cases in which the court before whom the person convicted would have been tried but for this Act, may be by law authorised to order restitution.

9. 12. Every person who obtains a certificate of dismissal or is convicted under this Act shall be released from all further or other criminal proceedings for the same cause.

13. No conviction, sentence, or proceeding under this Act shall be quashed for want of form, and no warrant of commitment upon a conviction shall be held void by reason of any defect therein, if it be therein

14. Justices may order payment of expenses of prosecutor and witnesses.

16. Any magistrate appointed to act at the police courts of the Dublin metropolitan district, and sitting at a police court within the said district, or any stipendiary magistrate appointed for any city, town, liberty, borough, or district, and sitting at a police court or other place appointed in that behalf, may, in the case of persons charged before such magistrate, do alone all acts by this Act authorised to be done by justices of the peace in petty sessions, and all the provisions of this Act referring to justices in petty sessions shall be read and construed as referring also to such magistrate.

COTTIER TENANT (IRELAND) ACT, 1856.

[19 &amp; 20 VICT. CH. 65.]

Description of tenement within Act.

(1) Dwelling house with or without small allotments.

(2) Tenure.

(3) Rent.

1. The description of tenements which shall be deemed to be within this Act shall be :

- (1) Any dwelling house held with not more than half an acre (if any) of land as a garden or cultivated allotment :
- (2) Of which the tenure shall have been by the year, half-year, quarter, month, or week :
- (3) And of which the rent shall not have exceeded the rate of twelve shillings by the month :

Provided that such tenement shall have been let by a written or printed agreement as nearly as possible of the form in the schedule to this Act, and that it shall have been expressly stated therein whether the said tenement and requisites should be maintained in good tenantable condition by the landlord or by the tenant, or what portion of the said tenements and requisites should be maintained in good tenantable condition by the landlord or by the tenant respectively.

2. The fifteenth section of the Summary Jurisdiction (Ir.) Act, 1851, shall be applicable to the delivery of the possession of any tenement within this Act, when wrongfully overheld, in the same manner as it would now apply to the delivery of the possession of any tenement within the said Act :

But no order shall be made under the said section except upon proof at the hearing of the case :

First : That the tenement had the following requisites at the commencement of the tenancy ; viz.

- (a) The walls and a sufficient chimney built of stones and mortar, or bricks and mortar :
- (b) At least two separate rooms :
- (c) A sufficient external window, with a moveable glazed sash or casement for the admission of air, in each room :
- (d) A sufficient privy :
- (e) A space at least eighteen feet wide extending immediately along the whole front of the dwelling (or, where any public thoroughfare shall pass nearer, the space (if any) between such thoroughfare and dwelling) sufficiently levelled and drained :
- (f) A sufficient space, either at the ends or in the rear of the dwelling, suited for a pigsty and also for a dunghill :

Second : And that the said requisites had been in good tenantable condition, and adapted to their proper use, at the commencement of the last period of the tenure for which the landlord shall have received any of the rent :

But this second obligation may be dispensed with when the landlord shall not have as yet received any of the rent subsequent to the commencement of the tenancy, and also when and so far as the tenantable condition of such requisites shall have been defective through the default of the tenant, and not of the landlord :

And upon further proof at the hearing of the case that, during any period of the tenure for which the landlord shall not have as yet received any of the rent, the tenant had made any default in observing the following obligations :

First : Not wilfully to permit any pigsty or dunghill to remain in front of the dwelling, within the space (if any) above required to be levelled and drained, for longer than three clear days after being served by the landlord with a notice in writing to remove the same ; and,

Second : Not wilfully to do, or wilfully to suffer others to do, any damage to the tenement :

Then the service of the summons in the case shall be deemed to have been sufficient (without other notice to quit) to have determined the tenancy at the time of such service.

3. Whenever the tenant shall have overheld the tenement (without reasonable cause) after the tenancy shall have been determined, and the possession shall have been duly demanded of him by the landlord, he shall be liable to pay to the landlord the full rent reserved for the period of the tenure during any part of which he shall have so overheld the possession, and which would have otherwise accrued due in case the tenancy had not been determined.

4. Whenever the tenant shall have sown or planted upon the tenement any growing crop, which he shall be unable to save by reason of the determination of the tenancy, the justices shall, by a distinct order, fix such sum (if any) as they shall think a fair compensation to him for the loss of such crop, after all just and proper deductions on account of any arrear of rent due by the said tenant to the landlord for the said tenement ; and no warrant shall be issued to execute the order for possession until the landlord shall have paid or tendered to the tenant or allowed him credit for the sum so fixed by the order for compensation.

Act not to deprive landlord of other remedies at law or in equity.

Act not to affect jurisdiction in fair and market towns.

Landlord not to act as justice in his own case.

5. This Act shall not be deemed to deprive the landlord, either before or after the justices may have declined to interfere, of any remedy for the enforcement of his rights which he might otherwise have in the superior or other courts of law or equity in Ireland.

6. This Act shall not be deemed to interfere with the jurisdiction established by the said recited Act as to small tenements in certain towns and villages in Ireland.

7. The land agent of the landlord of any tenement, if a justice of the peace, shall not as such justice take any part in the hearing of any complaint, or in the making of any order under this Act, in relation to such tenement.

Appeals.

8. In case any person shall feel aggrieved by any order made by any justices under this Act, it shall be lawful for such person to appeal against the same under the twenty-fourth section of "The Petty Sessions (Ir.) Act, 1851," save that, in lieu of the seven days' notice of appeal required by said Act, a five days' notice of appeal shall be sufficient ; that the amount of the recognisance shall be such reasonable sum as to the justices shall seem fit ; and that when the appeal shall be made by the tenant, the recognisance required by the said Act shall contain the further obligations that the tenant shall not do, or suffer others to do, any waste, injury, or dilapidation to the tenement pending the appeal, that he will satisfy all rent which shall accrue due whilst he shall continue in possession, and that he will perform such order as the Court of Appeal shall make.

Act to be construed as part of recited Act.

9. This Act shall be construed subject to the interpretation and other clauses (and as if it were a part) of the said recited Act ; and the word "landlord" shall include any agent, receiver, or other person legally representing the landlord ; the expression "period of the tenure" shall mean the year, half year, quarter, month, or week, as the case may be, according to which the rent shall have been reserved.

Short title.

10. In citing this Act in any other Act, instrument, or proceeding, it shall be sufficient to use the expression "The Cottier Tenant (Ir.) Act, 1856."

Act only to apply to tenements provided by landlord.
To extend to Ireland only.

11. This Act shall apply only to tenements which may be provided by the landlord for the use of the tenant who shall occupy the same.

12. This Act shall only extend to Ireland.

“Court of Queen’s Bench” shall mean for England the Court of Queen’s Bench at Westminster, and for Ireland the Court of Queen’s Bench at Dublin.

2. After the hearing and determination by a justice or justices of the peace of any information or complaint which he or they have power to determine in a summary way, by any law now in force or hereafter to be made, either party to the proceeding before the said justice or justices may, if dissatisfied with the said determination as being erroneous in point of law, apply in writing within three days after the same to the said justice or justices, to state and sign a case setting forth the facts and the grounds of such determination, for the opinion thereon of one of the superior courts of law to be named by the party applying ; and such party, hereinafter called “the appellant,” shall, within three days after receiving such case, transmit the same to the court named in his application, first giving notice in writing of such appeal, with a copy of the case so stated and signed, to the other party to the proceeding in which the determination was given, hereinafter called “the respondent.”

Justices, on application of a party aggrieved, to state a case for the opinion of superior court.

3. The appellant, at the time of making such application, and before a case shall be stated and delivered to him by the justice or justices, shall in every instance enter into a recognisance, before such justice or justices, or any one or more of them, or any other justice exercising the same jurisdiction, with or without surety or sureties, and in such sum as to the justice or justices shall seem meet, conditioned to prosecute without delay such appeal, and to submit to the judgment of the superior court, and pay such costs as may be awarded by the same ; and the appellant shall at the same time, and before he shall be entitled to have the case delivered to him, pay to the clerk to the said justice or justices his fees for and in respect of the case and recognisances, and any other fees to which such clerk shall be entitled, which fees, except such as are already provided for by law, shall be according to the schedule to this Act annexed marked (A) until the same shall be ascertained, appointed, and regulated in the manner prescribed by the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1848, section thirty ; and the appellant, if then in custody, shall be liberated upon the recognisance being further conditioned for his appearance before the same justice or justices ; or, if that is impracticable, before some other justice or justices exercising the same jurisdiction who shall be then sitting, within ten days after the judgment of the superior court shall have been given, to abide such judgment, unless the determination appealed against be reversed.

Security and notice to be given by the appellant.

4. If the justice or justices be of opinion that the application is merely frivolous, but not otherwise, he or they may refuse to state a case, and shall, on the request of the appellant, sign and deliver to him a certificate of such refusal : Provided that the justice or justices shall not refuse to state a case where application for that purpose is made to them by or under the direction of Her Majesty’s Attorney-General for England or Ireland, as the case may be.

Justices may refuse a case where they think the application frivolous.

5. Where the justice or justices shall refuse to state a case as aforesaid, it shall be lawful for the appellant to apply to the Court of Queen’s Bench upon an affidavit of the facts for a rule calling upon such justice or justices, and also upon the respondent, to show cause why such case should not be stated ; and the said court may make the same absolute or discharge it, with or without payment of costs, as to the court shall seem meet, and the justice or justices upon being served with such rule absolute shall state

PART I.

Jurisdiction—Jurisdiction of County Court.

3. In any proceeding before a county court in relation to any dispute between an employer and a workman arising out of or incidental to their relation as such (which dispute is hereinafter referred to as a dispute under this Act) the court may, in addition to any jurisdiction it might Power of county court as to ordering of payment of money, set-off, and rescission of contract and taking security.

have exercised if this Act had not passed, exercise all or any of the following powers: that is to say,

1. It may adjust and set off the one against the other all such claims on the part either of the employer or of the workman, arising out of or incidental to the relation between them, as the court may find to be subsisting, whether such claims are liquidated or unliquidated, and are for wages, damages, or otherwise; and,
2. If, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, it thinks it just to do so, it may rescind any contract between the employer and the workman upon such terms as to the apportionment of wages or other sums due thereunder, and as to the payment of wages or damages, or other sums due, as it thinks just; and,
3. Where the court might otherwise award damages for any breach of contract it may, if the defendant be willing to give security to the satisfaction of the court for the performance by him of so much of his contract as remains unperformed, with the consent of the plaintiff, accept such security, and order performance of the contract accordingly, in place either of the whole of the damages which would otherwise have been awarded, or some part of such damages.

The security shall be an undertaking by the defendant and one or more surety or sureties that the defendant will perform his contract, subject on non-performance to the payment of a sum to be specified in the undertaking.

Any sum paid by a surety on behalf of a defendant in respect of a security under this Act, together with all costs incurred by such surety in respect of such security, shall be deemed to be a debt due to him from the defendant; and where such security has been given in or under the direction of a court of summary jurisdiction, that court may order payment to the surety of the sum which has so become due to him from the defendant.

Court of Summary Jurisdiction.

Jurisdiction of justices in disputes between employers and workmen.

4. A dispute under this Act between an employer and a workman may be heard and determined by a court of summary jurisdiction, and such court, for the purposes of this Act, shall be deemed to be a court of civil jurisdiction, and in a proceeding in relation to any such dispute the court may order payment of any sum which it may find to be due as wages, or damages, or otherwise, and may exercise all or any of the powers by this Act conferred on a county court: Provided that in any proceeding in relation to any such dispute the court of summary jurisdiction—

1. Shall not exercise any jurisdiction where the amount claimed exceeds ten pounds; and,
2. Shall not make an order for the payment of any sum exceeding ten pounds, exclusive of the costs incurred in the case; and,
3. Shall not require security to an amount exceeding ten pounds from any defendant or his surety or sureties.

Jurisdiction of justices in disputes between masters and apprentices.

5. Any dispute between an apprentice to whom this Act applies and his master, arising out of or incidental to their relation as such (which dispute is hereinafter referred to as a dispute under this Act), may be heard and determined by a court of summary jurisdiction.

Powers of justices in respect of apprentices.

6. In a proceeding before a court of summary jurisdiction in relation to a dispute under this Act between a master and an apprentice, the court shall have the same powers as if the dispute were between an employer and a workman, and the master were the employer and the apprentice the workman, and the instrument of apprenticeship a contract between an employer and a workman, and shall also have the following powers:

1. It may make an order directing the apprentice to perform his duties under the apprenticeship; and,
2. If it rescinds the instrument of apprenticeship, it may, if it thinks it just so to do, order the whole or any part of the premium paid on the binding of the apprentice to be repaid.

Where an order is made directing an apprentice to perform his duties under the apprenticeship, the court may, from time to time, if satisfied after the expiration of not less than one month from the date of the order that the apprentice has failed to comply therewith, order him to be imprisoned for a period not exceeding fourteen days.

7. In a proceeding before a court of summary jurisdiction in relation to a dispute under this Act between a master and an apprentice, if there is any person liable, under the instrument of apprenticeship, for the conduct of the apprentice, that person may, if the court so direct, be summoned in like manner as if he were the defendant in such proceeding to attend on the hearing of the proceeding, and the court may, in addition to or in substitution for any order which the court is authorised to make against the apprentice, order the person so summoned to pay damages for any breach of the contract of apprenticeship to an amount not exceeding the limit (if any) to which he is liable under the instrument of apprenticeship.

Order against surety of apprentice, and power to friend of apprentice to give security.

The court may, if the person so summoned, or any other person, is willing to give security to the satisfaction of the court for the performance by the apprentice of his contract of apprenticeship, accept such security instead of or in mitigation of any punishment which it is authorised to inflict upon the apprentice.

PART II.

Procedure.

8. A person may give security under this Act in a county court or court of summary jurisdiction by an oral or written acknowledgment in or under the direction of the court of the undertaking or condition by which and the sum for which he is bound, in such manner and form as may be prescribed by any rule for the time being in force, and in any case where security is given, the court in or under the direction of which it is given may order payment of any sum which may become due in pursuance of such security.

Mode of giving security.

The Lord Chancellor may from time to time make, and when made, rescind, alter, and add to, rules with respect to giving security under this Act.

9. Any dispute or matter in respect of which jurisdiction is given by this Act to a court of summary jurisdiction shall be deemed to be a matter on which that court has authority by law to make an order on complaint in pursuance of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, but shall not be deemed to be a criminal proceeding: and all powers by this Act conferred on a court of summary jurisdiction shall be deemed to be in addition to and not in derogation of any powers conferred on it by the Summary Jurisdiction Act, except that a warrant shall not be issued under that Act for apprehending any person other than an apprentice for failing to appear to answer a complaint in any proceeding under this Act, and that an order made by a court of summary jurisdiction under this Act for the payment of any money shall not be enforced by imprisonment except in the manner and under the conditions by this Act provided; and no goods or chattels shall be taken under a distress ordered by a court of summary jurisdiction which might not be taken under an execution issued by a county court.

Summary proceedings.

A court of summary jurisdiction may direct any sum of money, for the payment of which it makes an order under this Act, to be paid by instalments, and may from time to time rescind or vary such order.

Any sum payable by any person under the order of a court of summary jurisdiction in pursuance of this Act shall be deemed to be a debt due from him in pursuance of a judgment of a competent court within the meaning of the fifth section of the Debtors Act, 1869,<sup>1</sup> and may be

[47 & 48 VICT. CH. 19.]

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited for all purposes as the Summary Jurisdiction over Children (Ir.) Act, 1884.

Extension of Act.

2. This Act shall extend to Ireland only.

Summary trial of children for indictable offences unless objected to by parent or guardian.

4. (1) Where a child is charged before a court of summary jurisdiction with any indictable offence other than homicide, the court, if they think it expedient so to do, and if the parent or guardian of the child so charged, when informed by the court of his right to have the child tried by a jury, does not object to the child being dealt with summarily, may deal summarily with the offence, and inflict the same description of punishment as might have been inflicted had the case been tried on indictment:

Provided that—

- (a) A sentence of penal servitude shall not be passed, but imprisonment shall be substituted therefor; and
- (b) Where imprisonment is awarded the term shall not in any case exceed one month; and
- (c) Where a fine is awarded the amount shall not in any case exceed forty shillings; and
- (d) When the child is a male the court may, instead of any other punishment, adjudge the child to be, as soon as practicable, privately whipped with not more than six strokes of a birch rod by a constable, in the presence of an inspector or other officer of police of higher rank than a constable, and also in the presence, if he desires to be present, of the parent or guardian of the child.

(2) For the purpose of a proceeding under this section, the court of summary jurisdiction, at any time during the hearing of the case at which they become satisfied by the evidence that it is expedient to deal with the case summarily, shall cause the charge to be reduced into writing and read to the parent or guardian of the child, and then address a question to such parent or guardian to the following effect: "Do you desire the child to be tried by a jury, and object to the case being dealt with summarily?" with a statement, if the court think such statement desirable for the information of such parent or guardian, of the meaning of the case being dealt with summarily, and of the assizes or sessions (as the case may be) at which the child will be tried if tried by a jury.

(3) Where the parent or guardian of a child is not present when the child is charged with an indictable offence before a court of summary jurisdiction, the court may, if they think it just so to do, remand the child for the purpose of causing notice to be served on such parent or guardian, with a view, so far as is practicable, of securing his attendance at the hearing of the charge, or the court may, if they think it expedient so to do, deal with the case summarily.

(4) This section shall not prejudice the right of a court of summary jurisdiction to send a child to a reformatory or industrial school.

(5) This section shall not render punishable for an offence any child who is not, in the opinion of the court before whom he is charged, above the age of seven years and of sufficient capacity to commit crime.

5. (1) Where a young person is charged before a court of summary jurisdiction with any indictable offence other than homicide,<sup>1</sup> the court, if they think it expedient so to do, having regard to the character and antecedents of the person charged, the nature of the offence, and all the circumstances of the case, and if the young person charged with the offence, when informed by the court of his right to be tried by a jury, consents to be dealt with summarily, may deal summarily with the offence, and in their discretion adjudge such person, if found guilty of the offence, either to pay a fine not exceeding ten pounds, or to be imprisoned, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding three months.<sup>2</sup>

Summary trial with consent of young persons.

(2) For the purpose of a proceeding under this section, the court, at any time during the hearing of the case at which they become satisfied by the evidence that it is expedient to deal with the case summarily, shall cause the charge to be reduced into writing and read to the young person charged, and then address a question to him to the following effect: "Do you desire to be tried by a jury, or do you consent to the case being dealt with summarily?" with a statement, if the court think such statement desirable for the information of the young person to whom the question is addressed, of the meaning of the case being dealt with summarily, and of the assizes or sessions (as the case may be) at which he will be tried if tried by a jury.

(3) This section shall not prejudice the right of a court of summary jurisdiction to send a young person to a reformatory or an industrial school.

6. A child on summary conviction for an offence punishable on summary conviction under this Act, or under any other Act, whether past or future, shall not be<sup>3</sup> fined a larger sum than forty shillings.

Restriction on punishment of child for summary offence.

7. If upon the hearing of a charge against children and young persons for an offence punishable on summary conviction under this Act, or under any other Act, whether past or future, the court of summary jurisdiction think that, though the charge is proved, the offence was in the particular case of so trifling a nature that it is inexpedient to inflict any punishment, or any other than a nominal punishment,—

Power of court to discharge accused children and young persons without punishment.

(1) The court, without proceeding to conviction, may dismiss the information, and, if the court think fit, may order the person charged to pay such damages, not exceeding forty shillings, and such costs of the proceeding, or either of them, as the court think reasonable; or,

(2) The court upon convicting the person charged may discharge him conditionally on his giving security, with or without sureties, to appear for sentence when called upon, or to be of good behaviour, and either without payment of damages and costs, or subject to the payment of such damages and costs, or either of them, as the court think reasonable.

8. (a) The enactments in force in the Dublin Metropolitan Police District relative to appeals in cases of summary jurisdiction, and the enactments of the Petty Sessions (Ir.) Special proclamation putting into force the enactments of this Act relating to dangerous associations.

exists in any part of Ireland, the Lord-Lieutenant, by and with the advice of the Privy Council, may from time to time by proclamation declare to be dangerous any such association or associations named or described in such proclamation.

(1) A proclamation under the authority conferred upon the Lord-Lieutenant by this section is in this Act referred to as a special proclamation.

(2) A copy of every special proclamation shall be laid before each House of Parliament within seven days after the making thereof, if Parliament is then sitting, and if not, then within seven days after the next meeting of Parliament.

(3) If within a period of fourteen days after a special proclamation has been laid before Parliament an address is presented to Her Majesty by either House of Parliament praying that such special proclamation shall not continue in force as to an association or associations named or described therein, such special proclamation shall be deemed to have expired so far as the same relates to such association or associations.

(4) Whenever any special proclamation is issued under this Act, if Parliament be then separated by such adjournment or prorogation as will not expire within twenty days, such special proclamation shall be deemed to have expired at the end of a week from the date thereof, unless during that week Parliament shall be summoned to meet within twenty days from the date of the summons.

From and after the date of such order, and during the continuance thereof, every assembly or meeting of such association, or of the members of it as such members, in the specified district, shall be an unlawful assembly, and the association itself shall be an unlawful association; and every person calling together a meeting of such association in the specified district, or of any members thereof as such members, or knowingly taking part in any such meeting, or publishing with a view to promoting the objects of such association any notice of the calling together of any such meeting, or of the proceedings at such meeting, or contributing or receiving or soliciting in the specified district any contribution for the purposes of such association, or in any way taking part in the proceedings thereof in the specified district, or of any branch or meeting of it in such district, shall be guilty of an offence and may be prosecuted before a court of summary jurisdiction under this Act.

[51 & 52 VICT. CH. 33.]

1. This Act may be cited as the Hawkers Act, 1888.

Short title.

2. In this Act each of the following terms shall have the meaning assigned to it by this section unless it is otherwise expressly provided, or there is something in the subject or context inconsistent with such meaning:—

Definitions.

"Hawker"<sup>1</sup> means any person who travels with a horse or other beast bearing or drawing burden, and goes from place to place or to other men's houses carrying to sell or exposing for sale any goods, wares, or merchandise, or exposing samples or patterns of any goods, wares, or merchandise to be afterwards delivered, and includes any person who travels by any means of locomotion to any place in which he does not usually reside or carry on business, and there sells or exposes for sale any goods, wares, or merchandise in or at any house, shop, room, booth, stall, or other place whatever hired or used by him for that purpose (s. 2).

"Officer" means officer of Inland Revenue. "Justice" means justice of the peace.

<sup>1</sup> A single act of selling does not make a hawker (R. v. Little (1785), 1 Burr 610); but where the defendant was proved to have hired a room in a town and sold goods by auction there, and to have done the same in another town, it was held he should have been convicted (Hudson v. Shooter (1891), 55 J.P. 325). A shopkeeper who calls at the houses of customers with goods, which he habitually sells there, as distinguished from merely delivering goods previously ordered, is a "hawker" (O'Dea v. Crowhurst

Hawker's licence.

3. (1) There shall be granted and paid, for the use of His Majesty, upon an excise licence to be taken out annually by every hawker in the United Kingdom, the duty of £2.

(2) Every such licence shall be in such form as the Commissioners of Inland Revenue shall direct, shall whenever issued be granted only on payment in full of the duty, and shall expire on the 31st day of March in each year.

Exemptions.

(3) It shall not be necessary for a licence to be taken out under this Act in the following cases; that is to say—(a) By any person selling or seeking orders for goods, wares, or merchandise to or from persons who are dealers therein, and who buy to sell again. (b) By the real worker or maker of any goods, wares, or merchandise, and his children, apprentices, and servants usually residing in the same house with him, selling or seeking orders for goods, wares, or merchandise made by such real worker or maker. (c) By any person selling fish, fruit, victuals, or coal. (d) By any person selling or exposing for sale goods, wares, or merchandise in any public mart, market, or fair legally established.

Licence not to be granted without certificate.

4. (1) A hawker's licence shall not be granted to any person, otherwise than by way of renewal of a licence for the year immediately preceding, except on the production of a certificate signed by a clergyman or minister of the parish or place wherein such person resides, and two householders of such parish or place, or by a justice for the county or place, or superintendent or inspector of police for the district wherein the officer to whom application is made for the grant of a licence resides, attesting that such person is of good character and is a proper person to be licensed as a hawker.

(2) If any person forges or counterfeits any certificate for obtaining a licence under this Act, or produces or makes use of any forged or counterfeited certificate or licence, knowing the same to be forged or counterfeited, he shall incur a fine of fifty pounds; and any licence obtained on a forged or counterfeited certificate shall be void.

Provisions to be observed by hawkers and others.

5. (1) Every hawker shall keep his name and the words "licensed hawker" visibly and legibly written, painted, or printed upon every box or other package and every vehicle used for the carriage of his goods, and upon every room or shop in which his goods are sold, and upon every handbill or advertisement which he distributes or publishes.

(2) A hawker shall not let to hire or lend his licence to any person: Provided that a servant may travel with his master's licence and trade for his master's benefit.

(3) If a hawker contravenes any of the foregoing provisions of this section he shall, for every offence, incur a fine of ten pounds.

(4) If any person not having in force a licence under this Act in his own real name—

(a) Uses the words "licensed hawker" or any words importing that he carries on the trade of a hawker, or is licensed so to do; or

(b) Trades with or under colour of a licence granted to any person other than his master, he shall, for every such offence, incur a fine of ten pounds.

6. (1) If any person does any act for which a licence is required by this Act—

(a) Without having a proper licence in force in that behalf; or

(b) Without immediately producing, upon demand by any person, a proper licence granted to him or to his master, and then in force, he shall for every such offence incur a fine of ten pounds over and above any other penalty to which he may be liable.

(2) In any proceeding for recovery of the fine imposed by this section it shall be sufficient to allege that the defendant did trade as a hawker without having in force a proper licence, and it shall not be necessary further or otherwise to describe the offence.

(3) Any officer or officer of the peace may arrest a person found committing an offence under this section—(1899), 19 Cox 260; see also Holland v. Hally (1902), 18 T.L.R. 368; but see Philpott v. Alright (1906), 4 L.G.R. 1013. An incorporated society may be a hawker (Co-operative Drapery and Furnishing Society, Ltd. v. Bligh (1902), 39 Sc. L.R. 500, 66 J.P. 215).

Hawking without licence or not producing licence.

mitting an offence against this section and convey him before a justice having jurisdiction at the place where the offence is committed, and in default of immediate payment, upon conviction, of the fine, or of the sum to which the fine may be mitigated (which mitigation is hereby authorised), the offender shall be imprisoned, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding one month.

7. The powers and provisions contained in any Act relating to licences and penalties under Excise Acts, and now or hereafter in force, shall respectively be of full force and effect with respect to the licences under this Act and the fines hereby imposed so far as the same are applicable and are consistent with the provisions of this Act as fully and effectually as if the same had been herein specially enacted with reference thereto.

Provisions to be applied to licences and fines under this Act.

BARBED WIRE ACT, 1893.

[56 & 57 VICT. CH. 32.]

1. This Act may be cited for all purposes as the Barbed Wire Act, Short title. 1893.

2. In this Act—

Interpretation.

The expression “barbed wire” means any wire with spikes or jagged projections; and the expression “nuisance to a highway,” as applied to barbed wire, means barbed wire which may probably be injurious to persons or animals lawfully using such highway: . . .

In Ireland the expression “local authority” means the county surveyor,<sup>1</sup> or the city engineer, or the borough surveyor,<sup>1</sup> as the case may be, or some person duly appointed to act for any such surveyor or engineer.

3. (1) Where there is on any land adjoining a highway within the county or district of a local authority a fence made with barbed wire, or in or on which barbed wire has been placed, and such barbed wire is a nuisance to such highway, it shall be lawful for such local authority to serve notice in writing upon the occupier of such land requiring him within a time therein stated (not to be less than one month nor more than six months after the date of the notice) to abate such nuisance.<sup>2</sup>

Removal of barbed wire, where nuisance to highway.

(2) If on the expiration of the time stated in the notice the occupier shall have failed to comply therewith, it shall be lawful for the local authority to apply to a court of summary jurisdiction, and such court, if satisfied that the said barbed wire is a nuisance to such highway, may by summary order direct the occupier to abate such nuisance; and on his failure to comply with such order within a reasonable time the local authority may do whatever may be necessary in execution of the order, and recover in a summary manner the expenses incurred in connection therewith.

(3) In Ireland, sections one hundred and twelve, one hundred and fourteen, one hundred and fifteen, and two hundred and sixty-nine of the Public Health (Ir.) Act, 1878, shall apply, with the necessary modifications, where an order is made by a court of summary jurisdiction under this section, in like manner as if that order were an order under the said section one hundred and twelve.<sup>3</sup>

<sup>1</sup> It is submitted that the powers of the surveyor under this Act are not affected by s. 72 (2) of the Local Government (Ir.) Act, 1898, and do not therefore pass to the County Council.

<sup>2</sup> The erection of barbed wire on a fence adjoining the highway without the consent of the county surveyor is an alteration of a fence within s. 9 (3) of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1857, 14 & 15 Vict. c. 42, and probably also amounts to an offence of wilful obstruction of the free passage of persons or carriages under s. 13 (3) of the same statute (Collen v. Ellis (1893), 32 L.R.I. 491).

<sup>3</sup> Section 112 of the Public Health (Ir.) Act, 1878, gives power to a court of summary jurisdiction to make an order dealing with a nuisance; s. 114 enacts a penalty not exceeding 10s. per day for default, and not exceeding 20s. per day for knowingly and Proceedings where local authority is occupier of the land.

Expenses of local authority.

4. Where the local authority are the occupiers of the land, proceedings under this Act may be taken by any ratepayer within the district of the local authority, and a notice to the local authority to abate the nuisance shall be deemed to be properly served if it is served upon the clerk of the local authority, and any ratepayer taking proceedings may do all acts and things which a local authority is empowered to do.

5. Any expenses incurred by a local authority in the execution of this Act shall be defrayed in like manner as the expenses of the local authority incurred in respect of any highways.

(2) An order under this section shall not affect the right of any person to take within six months from the date of the order legal proceedings against any person in possession of property delivered by virtue of the order for the recovery of the property, but on the expiration of those six months the right shall cease.

Regulations with respect to unclaimed property in possession of police.

- (b) the payment of reasonable compensation to any person by whom the property has been delivered into the possession of the police ;
- (c) the making of payments for the benefit of discharged prisoners or of persons dependent on prisoners or discharged prisoners ; or
- (d) such other purposes as the Secretary of State may consider expedient.

(3) Where the property is a perishable article or its custody involves unreasonable expense or inconvenience it may be sold at any time, but the proceeds of sale shall not be disposed of until they have remained in the possession of the police for a year. In any other case the property shall not be sold until it has remained in the possession of the police for a year.

(4) The regulations may also provide for the investment of money and for the audit of accounts.

(5) The regulations shall apply whether the property to which they relate has come into the possession of the police before or after the making of the regulations.

(6) The regulations shall be laid before Parliament as soon as may be after they are made.

Extent, repeal, and short title.

3. (2) In the application of this Act to Ireland, the Chief Secretary shall be substituted for the Secretary of State.

(4) This Act may be cited as the Police (Property) Act, 1897.

willfully acting contrary to an order of prohibition ; s. 115 gives a stay of liability on appeal ; s. 269 gives a right of appeal against any order or conviction (irrespective of amount) in manner thereby provided. See PUBLIC HEALTH, p. 694, and as to appeal, see p. 695.

4. - (g) Interest or fines in excess of the amount authorised by the principal Act having been charged against, or paid by, the borrower on account of the indebtedness in respect of which the said note was made.

Provided that every such note shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, only stand as a security for, and there shall only be recoverable thereon, such sum as would have been due thereon had such excess not been charged, and had due credit been given as against such sum for all moneys paid by, or on behalf of, the persons liable thereon, in discharge in whole or in part of such excess.

Provisions with respect to taking account.

2. (1) The treasurer of a loan society shall prepare and provide an account setting forth the particulars of the amount sought to be recovered in respect of any note under the principal Act, and that account shall be issued together with the summons for such recovery.

(2) In ascertaining the amount due in respect of any such note an account shall not be carried back for a period exceeding six years from the date of the note, and where the account is so carried back, the loan secured by the note current at the commencement of such period, or if no note was then current, by the note which last before that date became due, shall be deemed and taken to be the first loan made by the said society to the borrower.

(3) The court may, if it thinks fit, order that the amount found due on such account shall be paid by such instalments extending over such period (not exceeding three years) as the court may think fit.

(4) In taking such account there shall be no periodical rests and no sums shall be allowed in respect of compound interest.

(5) If, on taking such account, any balance is found due by the loan society, judgment for the amount of such balance shall be given in favour of the defendant.

As to forms and costs. 14 & 15 Vict. c. 93.

3. (1) In any proceedings under the principal Act the forms in the schedules to the Petty Sessions (Ir.) Act, 1851, shall, wherever applicable, be used instead of the forms in the schedules to the principal Act, and costs, which shall be in the discretion of the court, may be awarded to the amount mentioned in section twenty-two of the said Act of 1851.

(2) Out of any sum awarded in respect of costs under the foregoing enactment, the court may award such sum as it thinks fit, as remuneration for taking any account under the principal Act as amended by this Act, to be paid to such person as the court may appoint to take the account.

Power for loan societies to compromise debts.

4. A loan society acting under the principal Act may, if they think fit, accept any composition on any security, real or personal, for any debt, and may allow any time for payment for any debt, and may compromise, compound, abandon, submit to arbitration, or otherwise settle, any debt, account, claim, or thing whatever, arising under the principal Act or this Act, and for any of those purposes may enter into, give, execute, and do such agreements, instruments of composition or arrangement, releases, and other things, as to them seem expedient without being responsible for any loss occasioned by any act or thing so done by them in good faith.

5. So much of section fifty-eight of the principal Act as enables a Justice of the Peace who may be a trustee or other unpaid officer or member of a loan society to adjudicate in the matters therein mentioned shall not apply to any proceedings instituted under or by virtue of this Act. Part of 6 & 7 Vict. c. 91, s. 58, not to apply to proceedings under this Act.

6. The expression "fines" in this Act shall include any sums charged for stamps, fees, or costs in respect of summonses under the principal Act which were not in fact issued, or documents purporting to be such summonses. Definition.

FACTORY AND WORKSHOP ACT, 1901.

[1 EDW. 7, CH. 22.]<sup>1</sup>

PART I.

HEALTH AND SAFETY.

(i.) Health.

1. (1) The following provisions shall apply to every factory as defined by this Act,<sup>2</sup> except a domestic factory:<sup>3</sup>—(a) It must be kept in a cleanly state; (b) it must be kept free from effluvia arising from any drain, water-closet, earth-closet, privy, urinal, or other nuisance; (c) it must not be so overcrowded<sup>4</sup> while work is carried on therein as to be dangerous or injurious to the health of the persons employed therein; (d) it must be ventilated in such a manner as to render harmless, so far as is practicable, all the gases, vapours, dust, or other impurities generated in the course of the manufacturing process or handicraft carried on therein, that may be injurious to health. Sanitary condition of factory.

(2) The provisions of section ninety-one of the Public Health Act, 1875,<sup>5</sup> with respect to a factory, workshop, or workplace not kept in a cleanly state, or not ventilated, or overcrowded, shall not apply to any factory to which this section applies.

(3) For the purpose of securing the observance of the requirements in this section as to cleanliness in factories, all the inside walls of the rooms of a factory, and all the ceilings or tops of those rooms (whether those walls, ceilings, or tops are plastered or not), and all the passages and staircases of a factory, if they have not been painted with oil or varnished once at least within seven years, shall (subject to any special exceptions made in pursuance of this section) be limewashed once at least within every fourteen months, to date from the time when they were last limewashed; and if they have been so painted or varnished shall be washed with hot water and soap once at least within every fourteen months, to date from the time when they were last washed.

(4) Where it appears to the Secretary of State that in any class of factories, or parts thereof, the provisions of this section with respect to limewashing or washing are not required for the purpose of securing therein the observance of the requirements of this Act as to cleanliness, or are by reason of special circumstances inapplicable, he may, if he thinks fit, by Special Order grant to that class of factories, or parts thereof, a special exception that the said provisions shall not apply thereto.

(5) A factory in which there is a contravention of this section shall be deemed not to be kept in conformity with this Act.<sup>6</sup>

Sanitary condition of workshops and workplaces.
38 & 39 Vict.
c. 55.

2. (1) The provisions of section ninety-one of the Public Health Act, 1875,<sup>1</sup> with respect to a factory, workshop, or workplace, not kept in a cleanly state, or not ventilated, or overcrowded,<sup>2</sup> shall apply to every factory, workshop,<sup>3</sup> and workplace,<sup>4</sup> except any factory to which the last preceding section applies.

(2) Every workshop<sup>3</sup> and every workplace within the meaning of the Public Health Act, 1875,<sup>1</sup> must be kept free from effluvia arising from any drain, water-closet, earth-closet, privy, urinal, or other nuisance, and unless so kept shall be deemed to be a nuisance liable to be dealt with summarily under the law relating to public health.

(3) Where on the certificate of a medical officer of health or inspector of nuisances it appears to any district council<sup>5</sup> that the limewashing, cleansing, or purifying, of any such workshop, or of any part thereof, is necessary for the health of the persons employed therein, the council shall give notice in writing to the owner<sup>3</sup> or occupier of the workshop to limewash, cleanse, or purify the same, or part thereof, as the case may require.

(4) If the person to whom notice is so given fails to comply therewith within the time therein specified, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten shillings for every day during which he continues to make default, and the council may, if they think fit, cause the workshop or part to be limewashed, cleansed, or purified, and may recover in a summary manner the expenses incurred by them in so doing from the person in default.

(5) This section shall not apply to any workshop or workplace to which the Public Health (London) Act, 1891, applies.

3. (1) A factory shall for the purposes of this Act, and a workshop shall for the purposes of the law relating to public health, be deemed to be so overcrowded as to be dangerous or injurious to the health of the persons employed therein, if the number of cubic feet of space in any room therein bears to the number of persons employed at one time in the room a proportion less than two hundred and fifty, or, during any period of overtime, four hundred, cubic feet of space to every person.

(2) Provided that the Secretary of State may, by Special Order, modify this proportion for any period during which artificial light other than electric light is employed for illuminating purposes, and may, by like order, as regards any particular manufacturing process or handicraft, substitute for the said figures of two hundred and fifty and four hundred respectively any higher figures, and thereupon this section shall have effect as modified by the order.

(3) Where a workshop or workplace, not being a domestic workshop, is occupied by day as a workshop and by night as a sleeping apartment, the Secretary of State may by Special Order<sup>6</sup> modify the proportion of cubic feet of space prescribed by this section, and substitute therefor any higher figures, and thereupon this section shall have effect as modified by the order.

(4) There shall be affixed in every factory and workshop a notice specifying the number of persons who may be employed in each room of the factory or workshop by virtue of this section.

4. (1) If the Secretary of State is satisfied that the provisions of this Act, or of the law relating to public health in so far as it affects factories, workshops, and workplaces, have not been carried out by any district council, he may, by order, authorise an inspector to take, during such period as may be mentioned in the order, such steps as appear necessary or proper for enforcing those provisions.

c. 76.

Overcrowding of factory or workshop.

Power of Secretary of State to act in default of local authority.

<sup>4</sup> Not defined. "I think that a workplace must be a place where some work is being perpetually or permanently done. I do not say that the mere presence of workmen in repairing a private house would make it a workplace" (per Channell, J., in Bennett v. Harding (1900), 2 Q.B. 397, at p. 401).

(2) An inspector authorised in pursuance of this section shall, for the purpose of his duties thereunder, have the same powers with respect to workshops and workplaces as he has with respect to factories, and he may, for that purpose, take the like proceedings for enforcing the provisions of this Act or of the law relating to public health, or for punishing or remedying any default as might be taken by the district council; and he shall be entitled to recover from the district council all such expenses in and about any proceedings as he may incur, and as are not recovered from any other person.

5. (1) Where it appears to an inspector that any act, neglect, or default, in relation to any drain, water-closet, earth-closet, privy, ashpit, water-supply, nuisance, or other matter in a factory or workshop, is punishable or remediable under the law relating to public health, but not under this Act, that inspector shall give notice in writing of the act, neglect, or default, to the district council in whose district the factory or workshop is situate, and it shall be the duty of the district council to make such inquiry into the subject of the notice, and take such action thereon, as seems to that council proper for the purpose of enforcing the law, and to inform the inspector of the proceedings taken in consequence of the notice.<sup>1</sup>

Powers of inspector as to sanitary defects in factory or workshop remediable by sanitary authority.

(2) An inspector may, for the purposes of this section, take with him into a factory or a workshop a medical officer of health, inspector of nuisances, or other officer of the district council.

(3) Where notice of an act, neglect, or default, is given by an inspector under this section to a district council, and proceedings are not taken within one month for punishing or remedying the act, neglect, or default, the inspector may take the like proceedings for punishing or remedying the same as the district council might have taken, and shall be entitled to recover from the district council all such expenses in and about the proceedings as the inspector incurs and as are not recovered from any other person, and have not been incurred in any unsuccessful proceedings.

6. (1) In every factory and workshop<sup>2</sup> adequate measures must be taken for securing and maintaining a reasonable temperature in each room in which any person is employed, but the measures so taken must not interfere with the purity of the air of any room in which any person is employed.

Temperature in factories and workshops.

(2) The Secretary of State may, by Special Order, direct with respect to any class of factories or workshops that thermometers be provided, maintained, and kept in working order, in such place and position as may be specified in the order.

(3) A factory or workshop in which there is any contravention of this section, or of any order under this section, shall be deemed not to be kept in conformity with this Act.<sup>3</sup>

7. (1) In every room in any factory or workshop<sup>4</sup> sufficient means of ventilation shall be provided, and sufficient ventilation shall be maintained.

Ventilation.

(2) The Secretary of State may, by Special Order, prescribe a standard of sufficient ventilation for any class of factories or workshops, and that standard shall be observed in all factories and workshops of that class, and an order made under this power may supersede any provision of this Act or order of the Secretary of State with respect to ventilation in cotton cloth factories.

(3) A factory in which there is a contravention of the provisions of

this section shall be deemed not to be kept in conformity with this Act, and a workshop in which there is a contravention of the provisions of this section shall be deemed to be a nuisance liable to be dealt with summarily under the law relating to public health.

(4) If the occupier of a factory or workshop (including a cotton cloth factory in which humidity of the atmosphere is artificially produced) alleges that the whole or part of the expenses of providing the means of ventilation required by this Act ought to be borne by the owner, he may by complaint apply to a court of summary jurisdiction, and that court may make such order concerning the expenses or their apportionment as appears to the court to be just and equitable under the circumstances of the case, regard being had to the terms of any contract between the parties.<sup>1</sup>

of floors.

8. (1) In every factory or workshop<sup>2</sup> or part thereof in which any process is carried on which renders the floor liable to be wet to such an extent that the wet is capable of being removed by drainage, adequate means shall be provided for draining off the wet.

(2) A factory in which there is a contravention of the provisions of this section shall be deemed not to be kept in conformity with this Act,<sup>3</sup> and a workshop in which there is a contravention of the provisions of this section shall be deemed to be a nuisance liable to be dealt with summarily under the law relating to public health.

Sanitary conveniences in factories and workshops.

9. (1) Every factory and workshop<sup>4</sup> must be provided with sufficient and suitable accommodation in the way of sanitary conveniences, regard being had to the number of persons employed in or in attendance at the factory or workshop, and also where persons of both sexes are or are intended to be employed or in attendance, with proper separate accommodation for persons of each sex.

(2) The Secretary of State shall, by Special Order, determine what is sufficient and suitable accommodation within the meaning of this section.

(3) A factory or workshop in which there is a contravention of this section shall be deemed not to be kept in conformity with this Act.<sup>5</sup>

(4) This section does not apply to the administrative county of London, or to any place where section twenty-two of the Public Health Acts Amendment Act, 1890, is in force.

(ii.) Safety.

Fencing of machinery.

10. (1) With respect to the fencing of machinery in a factory<sup>6</sup> the following provisions shall have effect:—(a) Every hoist or teagle,<sup>6</sup> and every fly-wheel directly connected with the steam or water or other mechanical power, whether in the engine-house or not, and every part of any water wheel or engine worked by any such power, must be securely<sup>7</sup>

<sup>1</sup> A court of summary jurisdiction has exclusive jurisdiction under this subsection; and in the case of a lease providing that either lessor or lessee shall pay all outgoing the court may still make such order as seems to it just (Stuckey v. Hook (1906), 2 K.B. 20, decided upon s. 101 (2) (8); see also Horner v. Franklin (1905), 1 K.B. 479, and Month v. Arnold (1902), 1 K.B. 761, both decided upon s. 14 (4)).

<sup>5</sup> Machinery used for crushing mortar was erected on a piece of ground where the respondents were erecting a new sheet mill. It was within the close, curtilage, and precincts of the respondents' factory, but was used solely by the respondents for a purpose other than the manufacturing process or handicraft carried on in their factory. An accident having occurred owing to the machinery in question being unfenced, the respondents were summoned for not having same securely fenced. The justices being of opinion that the piece of ground did not form part of the respondents' factory, and was not otherwise a "factory," dismissed the summons. Held, that on the facts the justices were right (Lewis v. Gilbertson (1904), 20 Cox 677).

fenced ;<sup>1</sup> and (b) every wheel-race not otherwise secured must be securely fenced close to the edge of the wheel-race ; and (c) all dangerous<sup>2</sup> parts of the machinery,<sup>3</sup> and every part of the mill gearing, must either be securely fenced, or be in such position or of such construction as to be equally safe to every person employed or working in the factory as it would be if it were securely fenced ; and (d) all fencing must be constantly maintained in an efficient state while the parts required to be fenced are in motion or use, except where they are under repair or under examination in connection with repair, or are necessarily exposed for the purpose of cleaning or lubricating or for altering the gearing or arrangements of the parts of the machine.<sup>4</sup>

(2) A factory in which there is a contravention of this section shall be deemed not to be kept in conformity with this Act.<sup>5</sup>

11. (1) Every steam boiler used for generating steam in a factory or workshop, or in any place to which any of the provisions of this Act apply, must, whether separate or one of a range—(a) have attached to it a proper safety valve and a proper steam gauge and water gauge to show the pressure of steam and the height of water in the boiler ; and (b) be examined thoroughly by a competent person at least once in every fourteen months. Steam boilers.

(2) Every such boiler, safety valve, steam gauge, and water gauge must be maintained in proper condition.

(3) A report of the result of every such examination in the prescribed form, containing the prescribed particulars, shall within fourteen days be entered into or attached to the general register of the factory or workshop, and the report shall be signed by the person making the examination, and, if that person is an inspector of a boiler-inspecting company or association, by the chief engineer of the company or association.

(4) A factory or workshop in which there is a contravention of this section shall be deemed not to be kept in conformity with this Act.<sup>6</sup>

(5) This section shall not apply to the boiler of any locomotive which belongs to and is used by any railway company, or to any boiler belonging to or exclusively used in the service of His Majesty.

(6) For the purposes of this section, the whole of a tenement factory or workshop shall be deemed to be one factory or workshop, and the owner shall be substituted for the occupier, and he shall register the report referred to in this section.

12. (1) In a factory erected on or after the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and ninety-six, the traversing carriage of any self-acting machine must not be allowed to run out within a distance of eighteen inches from any fixed structure not being part of the machine, if the space over which it runs out is a space over which any person is liable to pass, whether in the course of his employment<sup>7</sup> or otherwise. Regulations as to self-acting machines.

<sup>1</sup> In Coe v. Platt (1852), 7 Ex. 923, it was held upon s. 21 of the 7 & 8 Vict. c. 15, that machinery need be fenced only while in motion for a manufacturing purpose. That section, however, provided that the fencing should not be removed "while the parts required to be fenced are in motion by the action of the steam-engine, waterwheel, or other mechanical power for any mechanical process." Consequently Coe v. Platt is not now in point.

The machinery must be securely fenced whether it is or is not dangerous if left unfenced (Doel v. Sheppard (1856), 5 E. & B. 856).

<sup>3</sup> That is to say, of any machinery in the factory (Redgrave v. Lloyd (1895), 1 Q.B. 876).

<sup>4</sup> "The extent of the security which must be afforded by the fencing is different [under clauses (c) and (d)]. Whilst the machinery is not under repair, or such examination or exposure as is mentioned in clause (d), the obligation is to maintain it in an efficient state ; or, in other words, in such a state as to be capable of effecting the intended object of securing the safety of the workers. During the excepted periods of repair, examination, or exposure, the obligation is under (c), and . . . is to fence so as to ensure safety so far as is reasonably practicable, having regard to the exigencies of such repair, examination, or exposure (Scott v. Brookfield Linen Co. (1910), 2 I.R. 509, at p. 520, per Palles, C.B.).

Provided that nothing in this subsection shall prevent any portion of the traversing carriage of any self-acting cotton spinning or woollen spinning machine being allowed to run out within a distance of twelve inches from any part of the head stock of another self-acting cotton spinning or woollen spinning machine.

(2) A person employed in a factory must not be allowed<sup>1</sup> to be in the space between the fixed and the traversing parts of a self-acting machine unless the machine is stopped with the traversing part on the outward run, but for the purpose of this provision the space in front of a self-acting machine shall not be included in the space aforesaid.

(3) A woman,<sup>2</sup> young person,<sup>2</sup> or child,<sup>2</sup> must not be allowed to work between the fixed and traversing part of any self-acting machine while the machine is in motion by the action of steam, water, or other mechanical power.

(4) A factory in which a traversing carriage is allowed to run out in contravention of this section shall be deemed not to be kept in conformity with this Act, and any person allowed to be in the space aforesaid or to work in contravention of this section shall be deemed to be employed contrary to the provisions of this Act.<sup>3</sup>

cleaning when machinery is in motion.

13. (1) A child<sup>2</sup> must not be allowed to clean<sup>4</sup> in any factory:—(a) any part<sup>5</sup> of any machinery; or (b) any place under any machinery other than overhead mill-gearing, while the machinery is in motion by the aid of steam, water, or other mechanical power.

(2) A young person<sup>2</sup> must not be allowed to clean any dangerous part of the machinery in a factory while the machinery is in motion by the aid of steam, water, or other mechanical power; and for this purpose such parts of the machinery shall, unless the contrary is proved, be presumed to be dangerous as are so notified by an inspector to the occupier of the factory.

(3) A woman<sup>2</sup> or young person<sup>2</sup> must not be allowed to clean such part of the machinery in a factory as is mill-gearing while the machinery is in motion for the purpose of propelling any part of the manufacturing machinery.

means of escape in case of fire.

14. (1) Every factory<sup>6</sup> of which the construction was not commenced on or before the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two, and in which more than forty persons are employed, and every workshop of which the construction was not commenced before the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and ninety-six, and in which more than forty persons are employed, must be furnished with a certificate from the district council<sup>7</sup> of the district in which the factory or workshop is situate that the factory or workshop is provided with such means of escape in case of fire for the persons employed therein as can reasonably be

required under the circumstances of each case, and if the factory or workshop is not so furnished it shall be deemed not to be kept in conformity with this Act; and it shall be the duty of the council to examine every such factory and workshop, and, on being satisfied that the factory or workshop is so provided, to give such a certificate as aforesaid. The certificate must specify in detail the means of escape so provided.

(2) With respect to all factories<sup>1</sup> and workshops to which the foregoing provisions of this section do not apply, and in which more than forty persons are employed, it shall be the duty of the district council<sup>2</sup> of every district from time to time to ascertain whether all such factories and workshops within their district are provided with such means of escape as aforesaid, and, in the case of any factory or workshop which is not so provided, to serve on the owner of the factory or workshop a notice in writing specifying the measures necessary for providing such means of escape as aforesaid, and requiring him to carry them out before a specified date, and thereupon the owner shall, notwithstanding any agreement with the occupier, have power to take such steps as are necessary for complying with the requirements, and unless the requirements are complied with, the owner shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one pound for every day that the non-compliance continues.

(3) In case of a difference of opinion between the owner of the factory or workshop and the council under the last foregoing subsection, the difference shall, on the application of either party, to be made within one month after the time when the difference arises, be referred to arbitration, and thereupon the provisions of the First Schedule to this Act shall have effect, and the award on the arbitration shall be binding on the parties thereto, and the notice of the council shall be discharged, amended, or confirmed in accordance with the award.

(4) If the owner alleges that the occupier of the factory or workshop ought to bear or contribute to the expenses of complying with the requirement, he may apply to the county court<sup>3</sup> having jurisdiction where the factory or workshop is situate, and thereupon the county court, after hearing the occupier, may make such order as appears to the court just and equitable under all the circumstances of the case.<sup>4</sup>

(5) For the purpose of enforcing the foregoing provisions of this section, an inspector may give the like notice and take the like proceedings as under the foregoing provisions of this Act with respect to matters punishable or remediable under the law relating to public health but not under this Act, and those provisions shall apply accordingly.

(6) The means of escape in case of fire provided in any factory or workshop shall be maintained in good condition and free from obstruction, and if it is not so maintained the factory or workshop shall be deemed not to be kept in conformity with this Act.<sup>5</sup>

(7) For the purposes of this section the whole of a tenement factory<sup>6</sup> or workshop<sup>6</sup> shall be deemed to be one factory or workshop, and the owner shall be substituted for the occupier.

(4) Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Secretary of State that in any class of factories or workshops or parts thereof it is necessary, by reason of the continuous nature of the process or of special circum-

(2) Where an occupier avails himself of this exception, the notice required to be served and affixed by an occupier of a factory or workshop availing himself of any special exception, need not specify the hours for the beginning and end of the period of employment, or the times to be allowed for meals.

42. In the case of creameries in which women and young persons are employed, the Secretary of State may, by Special Order, vary the beginning and end of the daily period of employment of those women and young persons, and the times allowed for their meals, and allow their employment for not more than three hours on Sundays and holidays : Provided that the order shall not permit any excess over either the daily or the weekly maximum number of hours of employment allowed by this Act.

43. Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Secretary of State that the customs or exigencies of the trade carried on in any class of non-textile factories or workshops, either generally or when situate in any particular locality, require some other day in the week to be substituted for Saturday as regards the hour at which the period of employment for women, young persons, and children is required by this Act to end on Saturday, he may, by Special Order, grant to that class of factories or workshops a special exception, authorising the occupier of every such factory and workshop to substitute by a notice affixed in his factory or workshop some other day for Saturday, and in that case this Act shall apply in the factory or workshop in like manner as if the substituted day were Saturday, and Saturday were an ordinary work day. In the case of newspaper printing offices, he may by such order authorise the substitution of some other day for Saturday in respect of some of the young persons therein employed.

45. Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Secretary of State that the customs or exigencies of the trade carried on in any class of non-textile factories or workshops, either generally or when situate in any particular locality, require that the special exception hereafter in this section mentioned should be granted, he may, by Special Order, grant to that class of factories or workshops a special exception authorising the occupier of any such factory or workshop to allow all or any of the annual whole holidays or half holidays on different days to any of the women, young persons, and children employed in his factory or workshop, or to any sets of those women, young persons, and children, and not on the same days.

46. Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Secretary of State that the customs or exigencies of the trade carried on in any class of factories or workshops, or parts thereof, either generally or when situate in any particular locality, require that that trade should be excepted from the operation of the provisions of this Act relating to employment inside and outside a factory or workshop on the same day, he may, by special order, grant to that class of factories or workshops, or parts thereof, such special exception as may be necessary.

Where the occupier avails himself of this exception, this Act shall apply to the factory or workshop in like manner as if in the provisions thereof respecting Sunday the word Saturday were substituted for Sunday, and in the provisions thereof respecting Saturday the word Sunday, or, if the occupier so specify in the notice, the word Friday were substituted for Saturday.

Overtime.

Overtime employment of women for press of work.

49. (1) In the non-textile factories and workshops or parts thereof and warehouses to which this exception applies, the period of employment for women on any day except Saturday, or any day substituted for Saturday, may be between six o'clock in the morning and eight o'clock in the evening, or between seven o'clock in the morning and nine o'clock in the evening, or between eight o'clock in the morning and ten o'clock in the evening, if they are employed in accordance with the following conditions, namely:—(a) There must be allowed to every woman for meals during the period of employment not less than two hours, of which half an hour must be after five o'clock in the evening; and (b) a woman must not be so employed in the whole for more than three days in any one week; and (c) overtime employment under this section must not take place in a factory or workshop on more than thirty days in the whole in any twelve months, and in reckoning that period of thirty days, every day on which any woman has been employed overtime is to be taken into account.

(3) Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Secretary of State that in any class of non-textile factories or workshops or parts thereof it is necessary, by reason of the material which is the subject of the manufacturing process or handicraft therein being liable to be spoiled by the weather, or by reason of press of work arising at certain recurring seasons of the year, or by reason of the liability of the business to a sudden press of orders arising from unforeseen events, to employ women in manner authorised by this exception, and that such employment will not injure the health of the women affected thereby, he may, by Special Order, extend this exception to those factories or workshops or parts thereof.

<sup>1</sup> The occupier of a workshop, wherein young persons of the Jewish religion were employed on Sunday, carried on there the business of making button-holes for tailors on garments delivered to him by them for that purpose. The workshop was open to his customers on Sunday for the purpose of enabling them to send or fetch away garments in pursuance of contracts previously made, but not for the purpose of their giving fresh orders. Held, that the workshop was not thereby "open for traffic on Sunday" (Goldstein v. Vaughan (1897), 1 Q.B. 549).

50. (1) In the factories and workshops and parts thereof to which this exception applies, the period of employment for a woman may on any day except Saturday, or any day substituted for Saturday, be between six o'clock in the morning and eight o'clock in the evening, or between seven o'clock in the morning and nine o'clock in the evening, if she is employed in accordance with the following conditions, namely :—

(2) This exception applies to every factory and workshop or part thereof in which is carried on—(a) The process of making preserves from fruit ; or (b) the process of preserving or curing fish ; or (c) the process of making condensed milk.

(3) Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Secretary of State that in any class of non-textile factories or workshops or parts thereof it is necessary, by reason of the perishable nature of the articles or materials which are the subject of the manufacturing process or handicraft, to employ women in manner authorised by this exception, and that such employment will not injure the health of the women employed, he may, by Special Order, extend this exception to those factories or workshops or parts thereof.

51. (1) If in any factory or workshop or part thereof to which this exception applies, the process in which a woman, young person, or child is employed, is in an incomplete state at the end of the period of employment of the woman, young person, or child, the woman, young person, or child may on any day except Saturday, or any day substituted for Saturday, be employed for a further period not exceeding thirty minutes :

Overtime employment on incomplete process.

Provided that those further periods, when added to the total number of hours of the periods of employment of the woman, young person, or child in that week, do not raise that total above the number otherwise allowed under this Act.

(2) This exception applies to the factories and workshops following, namely :—(a) Bleaching and dyeing works ; (b) print works ; (c) iron mills in which male young persons are not employed during any part of the night ; (d) foundries in which male young persons are not employed during any part of the night ; and (e) paper mills in which male young persons are not employed during any part of the night.

(3) Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Secretary of State that in any class of non-textile factories or workshops or parts thereof the time for the completion of a process cannot by reason of the nature thereof be accurately fixed, and that the extension to that class of factories or workshops or parts thereof of this exception can be made without injury to the health of the women, young persons, and children, affected thereby, he may, by Special Order, extend this exception accordingly.

52. Where it appears to the Secretary of State that factories driven by water power are liable to be stopped by drought or flood, he may, by Special Order, grant to those factories a special exception permitting the employment of women and young persons during a period of employment from six o'clock in the morning until seven o'clock in the evening, on such conditions as he thinks proper, but so as that no person shall be deprived of the meal hours by this Act provided, nor be so employed on Saturday, or any day substituted for Saturday, and that as regards factories liable to be stopped by drought, the special exception shall not extend to more than ninety-six days in any period of twelve months, and as regards factories liable to be stopped by floods, the special exception shall not extend to more than forty-eight days in any period of twelve months. This overtime shall not extend in any case beyond the time already lost during the previous twelve months.

Overtime employment in Turkey red dyeing and open-air bleaching.

53. A woman or young person may on any day except Saturday, or any day substituted for Saturday, be employed beyond the period of employment, so far as is necessary for the purpose only of preventing any damage which may arise from spontaneous combustion in the process of Turkey red dyeing, or from any extraordinary atmospheric influence in the process of open-air bleaching.

Night Work.

54. (1) In the factories and workshops to which this exception applies, a male young person of fourteen years of age and upwards may be employed during the night, if he is employed in accordance with the following conditions, namely—(a) The period of employment must not exceed twelve consecutive hours, and must begin and end at the hours specified in the notice in this Act mentioned; and (b) the provisions of this Part of this Act with respect to the allowance of times for meals shall be observed with the necessary modifications as to the hour at which the meal times are fixed; and (c) a young person employed during any part of the night must not be employed during any part of the twelve hours preceding or succeeding the period of employment; and (d) he must not be employed on more than six nights, or in the case of blast furnaces or paper mills seven nights, in any two weeks; provided that this condition shall not prevent the employment of male young persons in three shifts of not more than eight hours each, if there is an interval of two unemployable shifts between each two shifts of employment; and (e) in the case of blast furnaces, iron mills, letter-press printing works, or paper mills, he must not be employed during the night in any process other than a process incidental to the business of the factory as described in Part I. of the Sixth Schedule to this Act.

(2) The provisions of this Act with respect to the period of employment on Saturday, and with respect to the allowance to young persons of whole or half holidays, shall not apply to a male young person employed in day and night turns in pursuance of this exception.

(3) This exception applies to the following factories, namely :—(a) Blast furnaces, (b) iron mills, (c) letter-press printing works, and (d) paper mills.

(4) Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Secretary of State that in any class of non-textile factories or workshops, or parts thereof, it is necessary by reason of the nature of the business requiring the process to be carried on throughout the night to employ male young persons of sixteen years of age and upwards at night, and that such employment will not injure the health of the male young persons employed, he may, by Special Order, extend this exception to those factories or workshops or parts thereof so far as regards young persons of the age of sixteen years and upwards.

55. In glass works a male young person of fourteen years of age and upwards may work according to the accustomed hours of the works, if he is employed in accordance with the following conditions, namely :—(a) The total number of hours of the periods of employment must not exceed sixty in any one week; and (b) the periods of employment must not exceed fourteen hours in four separate turns per week, or twelve hours in five separate turns per week, or ten hours in six separate turns per week, or any less number of hours in the accustomed number of separate turns per week, so that the number of turns do not exceed nine; and (c) he must not work in any turn without an interval of time not less than one full turn; and (d) he must not be employed continuously for more than five hours without an interval of at least half an hour for a meal; and (e) he must not be employed on Sunday.

56. In a factory or workshop in which the process of printing newspapers is carried on on not more than two nights in the week, a male young person above the age of sixteen years may be employed at night during not more than two nights in a week, as if he were no longer a young person: Provided that he must not in pursuance of this exception be employed more than twelve hours in any consecutive period of twenty-four hours.

[Section 57, as to exemption for certain flax scutch mills, repealed, Employment of Women Act, 1907, 7 Edw. 7, c. 10.]

Supplemental.

58. (1) Where it appears to the Secretary of State—(a) That the adoption of any special means or provision for the cleanliness or ventilation of a factory or workshop is required for the protection of the health of women, young persons, or children, employed, in pursuance of an exception under this Part of this Act, either for a longer period than is otherwise allowed by this Act, or at night; or (b) that the adoption of a special provision as to the total number of hours of employment in each week, the periods of employment, and the intervals between such periods, is required for the protection of the health of any women or young persons employed in pursuance of such an exception at night, he may, by Special Order, direct that the adoption of the means or provision shall be a condition of such employment.

Power to impose sanitary requirements as condition of special exceptions.

(2) If it appears to the Secretary of State that the adoption of any such means or provision is no longer required, or is, having regard to all the circumstances, inexpedient, he may, by Special Order, rescind the order directing the adoption without prejudice to the subsequent making of another order.

59. Where an exception has been granted or extended under this Act by an order of the Secretary of State, and it appears to the Secretary of State that the exception is injurious to the health of the women, young persons, or children employed in, or is no longer necessary for the carrying on of the business in, the class of factories or workshops or parts thereof to which the exception was so granted or extended, he may, by Special Order, rescind the grant or extension, without prejudice to the subsequent making of another order.

Power to rescind orders as to special exceptions.

60. (1) An occupier of a factory or workshop,<sup>1</sup> not less than seven days before he avails himself of any special exception made by or in pursuance of this Act, shall serve on the inspector for the district, and affix in his factory or workshop, notice of his intention so to avail himself, and whilst he avails himself of the exception shall keep the notice so affixed.

Notices, registers, &c., relating to special exceptions.

(2) Before the service of the notice on the inspector the special exception shall not be deemed to apply to the factory or workshop, and after the service of the notice on the inspector it shall not be competent in any proceeding under this Act for the occupier to prove that the exception does not apply to his factory or workshop, unless he has previously served on the inspector for the district notice that he no longer intends to avail himself of the exception.

(3) The notice so served and affixed must, except as otherwise provided by this Act, specify the hours for the beginning and end of the period of employment, and the times to be allowed for meals to every woman, young person, and child where they differ from the ordinary hours or times.

(4) An occupier of a factory or workshop shall enter in the prescribed register and report to the inspector for the district the prescribed particulars respecting the employment of a woman, young person, or child

in pursuance of a special exception; and, in the case of employment overtime, he shall also cause a notice containing the prescribed particulars respecting the employment to be kept affixed in the factory or workshop during the prescribed time, and he shall send the report required by this subsection to the inspector not later than eight o'clock in the evening on which any woman, young person, or child is employed overtime in pursuance of the exception.<sup>1</sup>

(5) Where the occupier of a factory or workshop avails himself of a special exception made by or in pursuance of this Act, and a condition for availing himself of that exception (whether specified in this Act, or in an order of the Secretary of State made under this Act) is not observed in that factory or workshop, then—(a) If the condition relates to the cleanliness, ventilation, or overcrowding of the factory or workshop, the factory or workshop shall be deemed not to be kept in conformity with this Act; and (b) in any other case a woman, young person, or child, employed in the factory or workshop, in alleged pursuance of the exception, shall be deemed to be employed contrary to the provisions of this Act.

(6) Where an occupier of a factory or workshop<sup>2</sup> has served on an inspector a report in pursuance of this section of his intention to employ any persons overtime by virtue of a special exception, the report shall, unless withdrawn, be prima facie evidence in any proceedings under this Act that the occupier has in fact employed persons overtime in accordance with the report.<sup>3</sup>

(iii.) Fitness for Employment.

Prohibition of employment of women after childbirth.

Prohibition of employment of children under twelve.

Certificates of fitness for employment of young persons under sixteen and children in factories.

61. An occupier of a factory or workshop shall not knowingly allow a woman or girl to be employed therein within four weeks after she has given birth to a child.<sup>4</sup>

62. A child under the age of twelve years must not be employed in a factory or workshop unless lawfully so employed at the commencement of this Act.<sup>4</sup>

63. (1) In a factory<sup>5</sup> a young person under the age of sixteen years or a child must not be employed for more than seven, or if the certifying surgeon for the district resides more than three miles from the factory thirteen, work days, unless the occupier of the factory has obtained a certificate, in the prescribed form, of the fitness of the young person or child for employment in that factory.<sup>6</sup>

(2) When a child becomes a young person a fresh certificate of fitness must be obtained.

(3) The occupier shall, when required, produce to an inspector at the factory in which a young person or child is employed the certificate of fitness of that young person or child for employment.

64. With respect to a certificate of fitness for employment for the purposes of this Act, the following provisions shall have effect:—

(1) The certificate shall be granted by the certifying surgeon<sup>7</sup> for the district. (2) The certificate must not be granted except upon personal examination of the person named therein. (3) A certifying surgeon shall not examine a young person<sup>8</sup> or child<sup>8</sup> for the purpose of the certificate or sign the certificate elsewhere than at the factory where the young person<sup>8</sup> or child<sup>8</sup> is or 'is about to be employed, unless the number of young persons and children<sup>8</sup> employed in that factory is less than five, or unless for some special reason allowed in writing by an inspector.

<sup>6</sup> For penalty, see ss. 137, 138. It appears to be doubtful whether the occupier is liable to a penalty for breaches of ss. 62 and 63, where a child or young person has misrepresented his age and where the occupier has acted in good faith. See Carty v. Nicoll (1878), 6 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 194.

(4) The certificate must be to the effect that the certifying surgeon is satisfied, by the production of a certificate of birth or other sufficient evidence, that the person named in the certificate is of the age therein specified, and has been personally examined by him and is not incapacitated by disease or bodily infirmity from working daily for the time allowed by law in the factory named in the certificate.<sup>1</sup> (5) The certificate may be qualified by conditions as to the work on which a child or young person<sup>2</sup> is fit to be employed, and if it is so qualified the occupier shall not employ the young person or child otherwise than in accordance with the conditions. (6) A certifying surgeon shall have the same powers as an inspector for the purpose of examining any process in which a child or young person<sup>3</sup> presented to him for the grant of a certificate is proposed to be employed. (7) All factories in the occupation of the same occupier and in the district of the same certifying surgeon, or any of them, may be named in the certificate, if the surgeon is of opinion that he can truly give the certificate for employment therein. (8) The certificate of birth (which may be produced to a certifying surgeon) shall either be a certified copy of the entry in the register of births, kept in pursuance of the Acts relating to the registration of births, of the birth of the young person or child (whether that copy is obtained in pursuance of the Elementary Education Act, 1876,<sup>3</sup> or otherwise), or be a certificate from a local authority within the meaning of the Elementary Education Act, 1876,<sup>3</sup> to the effect that it appears from the returns transmitted to that authority in pursuance of the said Act by the registrar of births and deaths that the child was born at the date named in the certificate. (9) Where the certificate is to the effect that the certifying surgeon has been satisfied of the age of a young person or child by evidence other than the production of a certificate of birth, an inspector may, by notice in writing, annul the surgeon's certificate if he has reasonable cause to believe that the real age of the young person or child named in it is less than that mentioned in the certificate, and thereupon that certificate shall be of no avail for the purposes of this Act. (10) Where a certifying surgeon refuses to grant a certificate for any person examined by him, he shall when required give in writing and sign the reasons for his refusal.

65. In order to enable occupiers of workshops<sup>4</sup> to better secure the observance of this Act, and prevent the employment in their workshops of young persons under the age of sixteen years and children who are unfitted for that employment, an occupier of a workshop may obtain, if he thinks fit, from the certifying surgeon for the district, certificates of the fitness of young persons under the age of sixteen years and children for employment in his workshop, in like manner as if that workshop were a factory, and the certifying surgeon shall examine the young persons and children, and grant certificates accordingly.

66. (1) Where it appears to the Secretary of State that by reason of special circumstances affecting any class of workshops<sup>4</sup> it is expedient for protecting the health of the young persons under the age of sixteen years, and of the children employed therein, to extend thereto the prohibition in this section mentioned, he may, by Special Order, extend to that class of workshops the prohibition in this Act of the employment of young persons under the age of sixteen years and children without a certificate of the fitness of the young person or child for employment, and thereupon the provisions of this Act with respect to certificates of fitness for employment shall apply to the class of workshops named in the order in like manner as if they were factories.

(2) If the prohibition is proved to the satisfaction of the Secretary of State to be no longer necessary for the protection of the health of the young persons under the age of sixteen years and the children employed in any class of workshops<sup>4</sup> to which it has been extended under this section, he may, by Special Order, rescind the order of extension, without prejudice to the subsequent making of another order.

(2) The regulations may apply to tenement factories and tenement workshops, and in such case may impose duties on occupiers who do not employ any person, and on owners.

(3) No person shall be precluded by any agreement from doing, or be liable under any agreement to any penalty or forfeiture for doing, such acts as may be necessary in order to comply with the provisions of any regulation made under this Act.

(2) If any person other than an occupier, owner, or manager, who is bound to observe any regulation under this Act, acts in contravention of, or fails to comply with, the regulation, he shall be liable for each offence to a fine not exceeding two pounds; and the occupier of the factory or workshop shall also be liable to a fine not exceeding ten pounds, unless he proves that he has<sup>1</sup> taken all reasonable means by publishing, and to the best of his power enforcing, the regulations to prevent the contravention or non-compliance.

(6) Regulations for the time being in force under this Act shall be judicially noticed.

PART V.

SPECIAL MODIFICATIONS AND EXTENSIONS.

(i.) Tenement Factories.

87. (1) The owner (whether or not he is one of the occupiers) of a tenement factory<sup>1</sup> shall, instead of the occupier, be liable for the observance, and punishable for non-observance, of the following provisions of this Act, namely, the provisions with respect to—(i.) The cleanliness, freedom from effluvia, overcrowding and ventilation of factories, contained in section one of this Act, including, so far as they relate to any engine-house, passage, or staircase, or to any room which is let to more than one tenant, the provisions with respect to limewashing and washing of the interior of a factory; (ii.) the fencing of machinery, and penal compensation for neglect to fence machinery in a factory, except so far as relates to such parts of the machinery as are supplied by the occupier; (iii.) the notices to be affixed in a factory with respect to the period of employment, times for meals, and system of employment of children; (iv.) the prevention of the inhalation of dust, gas, vapour, or other impurity, so far as that provision requires the supply of pipes or other contrivances necessary for working the fan or other means for that purpose; and (v.) the affixing of an abstract and notices in a factory.

Duties of owner of tenement factory.

Provided that any occupier may affix in his own tenement the notice with respect to the period of employment, times for meals, and system of employment of children, and thereupon that notice shall, with respect to persons employed by that occupier, have effect in substitution for the corresponding notice affixed by the owner.

(2) The provisions of this Act with respect to the power to make orders in the case of dangerous premises shall apply in the case of a tenement factory as if the owner were substituted for the occupier.

(3) In the case of any tenement factory or class of tenement factories used wholly or partly for the weaving of cotton cloth, the owner shall, if the Secretary of State by order so directs, be substituted for the occupier for the purpose of the requirements of section seven and section ninety-four of this Act or of any order of the Secretary of State with respect to ventilation.

(4) Where, by or under this section, the owner of a tenement factory is substituted for the occupier with respect to any provisions of this Act, any summons, notice, or proceeding, which for the purpose of any of those provisions is by this Act required or authorised to be served on or taken in relation to the occupier, is hereby required or authorised (as the case may be) to be served on or taken in relation to the owner.

88. (1) Where grinding is carried on in a tenement factory, the owner of the factory shall be responsible for the observance of the regulations set forth in the Third Schedule to this Act.

(2) In every such tenement factory it shall be the duty of the owner and of the occupier of the factory respectively to see that such part of the horsing chains and of the hooks to which the chains are attached as are supplied by them respectively are kept in efficient condition.

(3) In every tenement factory where grinding of cutlery is carried on, the owner of the factory shall provide that there shall at all times be instantaneous communication between each of the rooms in which the work is carried on and both the engine-room and the boiler-house.

(4) A tenement factory in which there is a contravention of this section shall be deemed not to be kept in conformity with this Act, but for the purposes of any proceeding in respect of a provision for the observance of which the owner of the factory is responsible, that owner shall be substituted for the occupier of the factory.

(5) This section shall not apply to a textile factory.

Certificate of
tenement factory.

89. A certificate of the fitness of any young person or child for employment in a tenement factory shall be valid for his similar employment in any part of the same tenement factory.

(ii.) Cotton Cloth and other Humid Factories.

Temperature and humidity.

90. In every room, shed, or workshop, or part thereof, in which the weaving of cotton cloth is carried on (in this Act referred to as a "cotton cloth factory"), the following provisions shall have effect:—(1) The amount of moisture in the atmosphere must not at any time be in excess of such amount as is represented by the number of grains of moisture per cubic foot of air shown in Column I. of the table in the Fourth Schedule to this Act opposite to such figure in Column II. as represents the temperature existing in the cotton cloth factory at that time: Provided that the temperature shall not at any time be raised by any artificial means whatsoever (except by gas used for lighting purposes only) above seventy degrees, except in so far as may be necessary in the process of giving humidity to the atmosphere. (2) The fact that one of the wet-bulb thermometers in the factory gives a higher reading than the figure shown in Column III. of the said table opposite to such figure in Column II. as represents the temperature existing in the factory, shall be evidence that the amount of moisture in the atmosphere exceeds the limit prescribed by this section.

of humidity.

91. The Secretary of State may by order repeal or vary the table in the Fourth Schedule to this Act, and substitute any new or amended table therefor: Provided as follows:—(a) The varied or substituted table shall be laid in a complete form before both Houses of Parliament if Parliament is sitting, or if not, then within three weeks after the beginning of the next ensuing session of Parliament; and if the table is disapproved by either House of Parliament within forty days after having been so laid before Parliament, the table shall be void and of no effect: (b) The table shall not come into operation until it has been laid before Parliament for forty days; but after the expiration of those forty days, if the table has not been disapproved of as aforesaid, the Secretary of State shall cause a copy thereof to be published in the London Gazette, and to be given to every occupier of a cotton cloth factory who, in pursuance of this Act, has given notice of humidity of the atmosphere being artificially produced in that factory, and after the expiration of fourteen days from the first publication thereof in the London Gazette, the varied or substituted table shall be deemed to be the table in the Fourth Schedule to this Act.

Employment of thermometers.

92. (1) In every cotton cloth factory, for the purpose of recording the humidity of the atmosphere and the temperature there must be provided, maintained, and kept in correct working order two sets of standardised wet and dry bulb thermometers.

(2) The following regulations shall be observed with reference to the employment of such thermometers:—(a) One set of thermometers is to be fixed in the centre and one at the side of the factory, or in such other position as is directed or sanctioned by an inspector, so as to be plainly visible to the workers; (b) The occupier or manager or person for the time being in charge of the factory shall read the thermometers thrice in the day, namely, between seven and eight o'clock in the forenoon, between ten and eleven o'clock in the forenoon, and between three and four o'clock in the afternoon, on every day on which any workers are employed in the factory, and shall record the readings of each thermometer at each of those times on a form provided for the purpose for each set of thermometers in accordance with the Form of Record and the regulations contained in the Fourth Schedule to this Act; (c) The form in which the readings of each thermometer are to be recorded must be kept hung up near the thermometers, and after being duly filled up, must be forwarded at the end of each month to the inspector of the district, and a copy must be kept at the factory for reference; (d) There must be kept hanging up in a frame, and properly glazed, in a conspicuous position and near to each set of thermometers, a copy of the table set out in the Fourth Schedule to this Act; (e) Each form shall be prima facie evidence of the humidity of the atmosphere and temperature in the factory in which the form was hung up.

93. (1) The occupier of every cotton cloth factory in which humidity of the atmosphere is produced by any artificial means whatsoever (except by gas used for lighting purposes only) shall, at or before the time at which such artificial production of humidity is commenced, give notice thereof in writing to the chief inspector of factories. Notices and inspections where humidity is artificially produced.

(2) Every factory in respect of which any such notice has been given shall be visited by an inspector once at least in every three months. The inspector shall examine into the temperature, humidity of the atmosphere, ventilation, and quantity of fresh air in the factory, and shall report to the chief inspector of factories in the prescribed form.

(3) If at any time the occupier of any factory in respect of which any such notice has been given ceases to produce humidity by artificial means, he may give notice in writing of such cessation, and from the date of that notice, and so long as humidity is not artificially produced in the factory, the provisions of this section shall not apply to that factory.

94. In every cotton cloth factory the following regulations for the protection of health shall have effect, viz.:—(1) The water used for the purpose of producing humidity shall either be taken from a public supply of drinking water or other source of pure water, or shall be effectively purified to the satisfaction of the inspector before being introduced in the form of steam into the factory, and all ducts for the introduction of humidified air shall be kept clean. (2) The pipes used for the introduction of steam into a cotton cloth factory in which the temperature is seventy degrees Fahrenheit or over shall, so far as they are within the shed, be as small both in diameter and length as is reasonably practicable, and shall be effectively covered with non-conducting material to the satisfaction of the inspector, so as to minimise the amount of heat thrown off by them into the shed. (3) In the case of a cotton cloth factory in which humidity of the atmosphere is produced by any artificial means whatsoever (except by gas used for lighting purposes only), the arrangements for ventilation shall be such that during working hours in no part of the cotton cloth factory shall the proportion of carbonic acid (carbon dioxide) in the air be greater than nine volumes of carbonic acid to every ten thousand volumes of air. (4) Unless some other method certified by the inspector to be equally satisfactory is adopted, the outside of the roof of every cotton cloth factory shall be whitewashed every year before the thirty-first day of May, and such whitewash shall be effectively maintained until the thirty-first day of August. (5) In every cotton cloth factory erected after the second day of February one thousand eight hundred and ninety-eight a sufficient and suitable cloak room, or cloak rooms, shall be provided for the use of all the persons employed therein, and shall be ventilated and kept at a suitable temperature. Regulations for the protection of health.

95. If in the case of any cotton cloth factory there is a contravention of or non-compliance with any of the foregoing provisions with regard to cotton cloth factories, the inspector shall give notice in writing to the Penalties for non-compliance.

occupier of the factory of the acts or omissions constituting the contravention or non-compliance, and if those acts or omissions, or any of them, are continued or not remedied, or are repeated within twelve months after the notice has been given, the occupier of the factory shall be liable, for the first offence to a fine not less than five pounds and not exceeding ten pounds, and for every subsequent offence to a fine not less than ten pounds and not exceeding twenty pounds.<sup>1</sup>

On July 31, in consequence of the machinery still being unfenced, a person suffered bodily injury. On October 24 an information was laid charging that, on July 31, the defendants' factory was not kept in conformity with the Act, whereby a person suffered bodily injury. The magistrate dismissed the information on the ground that it was out of time, inasmuch as it had not been laid within three months of January 21. Heid, that ss. 135 and 136 create separate and distinct offences; that the offence with which the defendants were charged was the offence under s. 136; and that, that offence having been committed on July 31, the information had been laid in time (R. v. Taylor (1908), 2 K.B. 237).

pounds for each person so employed, and, in the case of a second or subsequent conviction within two years from the last conviction in relation to a factory for the same offence, not less than one pound for each offence.

(2) If a woman, young person, or child is not allowed times for meals and absence from work as required by this Act, or during any part of the times allowed for meals or absence from work is, in contravention of the provisions of this Act, employed in the factory or workshop, or allowed to remain in any room, the woman, young person, or child shall be deemed to be employed contrary to the provisions of this Act.

138. (1) If a young person or child is employed in a factory or workshop contrary to the provisions of this Act, the parent<sup>1</sup> of the young person or child shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty shillings for each offence, unless it appears to the court that the offence was committed without the consent, connivance, or wilful default of the parent. Fine for offence by parent.

(2) If the parent of a child neglects to cause the child to attend school in accordance with this Act, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty shillings for each offence.

139. If any person—(a) Forges or counterfeits any certificate for the purposes of this Act (for the forging or counterfeiting of which no other punishment is provided); or (b) gives or signs any such certificate knowing the same to be false in any material particular; or (c) knowingly utters or makes use of any certificate so forged, counterfeited, or false as aforesaid; or (d) knowingly utters or makes use of as applying to any person a certificate which does not so apply; or (e) personates any person named in a certificate; or (f) falsely pretends to be an inspector; or (g) wilfully connives at the forging, counterfeiting, giving, signing, uttering, making use, or personating as aforesaid; or (h) wilfully makes a false entry in any register, notice, certificate, or document, required by this Act to be kept or served or sent; or (i) wilfully makes or signs a false declaration under this Act; or (j) knowingly makes use of any such false entry or declaration, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months, with or without hard labour. Forgery of certificates, false entries, and false declarations.

140. The person so convicted shall, in the discretion of the court, be also liable to pay any costs incidental to the proceedings. Power of occupier to exempt himself from fine on conviction of the actual offender.

(2) When it is made to appear to the satisfaction of an inspector at the time of discovering an offence—(a) That the occupier of the factory or workshop has used all due diligence to enforce the execution of this

<sup>2</sup> A child was employed in a factory where the meal-time was from 5.30 to 6 P.M. Work was stopped for the day at 5.30, and the child was employed after that time in wiping the spindles of a machine in a room where the under-manager and several overlookers were present. Notices were exhibited calling attention to the provisions of the Factory Acts against working in meal-times. The justices dismissed an information against the masters for employing a child in meal-time, on the ground that they had used every possible means to carry out the provisions of the Factory and Workshop Act, 1901. Held, that it could not be said that the masters had used due diligence to enforce the Act within s. 141 (Rogers v. Barlow (1906), 94 L.T. 519).

Act; and (b) by what person the offence has been committed; and (c) that it has been committed without the knowledge, consent, or connivance of the occupier and in contravention of his orders, the inspector shall proceed against the person whom he believes to be the actual offender without first proceeding against the occupier of the factory or workshop.

Owner of machine liable in certain cases instead of occupier.

142. Where in a factory the owner or hirer of a machine or implement moved by steam, water, or other mechanical power, is some person other than the occupier of the factory, the owner or hirer shall, so far as respects any offence against this Act committed in relation to a person who is employed in or about or in connection with that machine or implement, and is in the employment or pay of the owner or hirer, be deemed to be the occupier of the factory.

Limit to cumulative fines.

143. A person shall not be liable in respect of a repetition of the same kind of offence from day to day to any larger amount of fines than the highest fine fixed by this Act for the offence, except—(a) Where the repetition of the offence occurs after an information has been laid for the previous offence; or (b) where the offence is one of employing two or more persons, contrary to the provisions of this Act.

Prosecution of offences and recovery and application of fines.

144. (1) All offences under this Act shall be prosecuted, and all fines under this Act shall be recovered, on summary conviction, before a court of summary jurisdiction in manner provided by the Summary Jurisdiction Acts.<sup>1</sup>

(2) A summary order may be made for the purposes of this Act by a court of summary jurisdiction in manner provided by the Summary Jurisdiction Acts.<sup>1</sup>

(3) All fines imposed in pursuance of this Act shall, save as otherwise expressly provided for by this Act, be paid into the Exchequer.

(4) Where a proceeding is taken before a court of summary jurisdiction<sup>1</sup> with respect to an offence against this Act alleged to be committed in or with reference to a factory or workshop, the occupier of the factory or workshop, and the father, son, or brother of the occupier of the factory or workshop, shall not be qualified to act as a member of the court.

(5) A person engaged in, or being an officer of any association of persons engaged in, the same trade or occupation as a person charged with any offence under this Act shall not act as a justice of the peace in hearing and determining the charge.

Appeal to quarter sessions.

145. If any person feels aggrieved by a conviction or order made by a court of summary jurisdiction on determining an information or complaint under this Act, he may appeal therefrom to quarter sessions.<sup>2</sup>

Limitation of time and general provisions as to summary proceedings.

146. The following provisions shall have effect with respect to summary proceedings for offences and fines under this Act:—

(1) The information shall be laid within three months<sup>3</sup> after the date at which the offence comes to the knowledge of the inspector for the district within which the offence is charged to have been committed, or, in case of an inquest being held in relation to the offence, then within two months after the conclusion of the inquest, so, however, that it be not laid after the expiration of six months from the commission of the offence:

<sup>3</sup> The appellant, an inspector of factories, visited the respondent's factory in May 1905, and found that the fly-wheel of an engine was not securely fenced as required by s. 10 of the Factory and Workshop Act, 1901. He again visited the factory on March 12, 1908, and July 1, 1908, and on each occasion finding that the fly-wheel was not securely fenced, he on July 22, 1908, laid an information against the respondents for not having on July 1, 1908, kept their factory in conformity with the Factory and Workshop Act, 1901. The justices dismissed the information on the ground that it had not been laid within three months after the date at which the offence came to the appellant's knowledge. Held, that there was a continuing offence in not securely fencing the fly-wheel, that the offence charged in the information was in not keeping the factory in conformity with the Act—namely, in not having the fly-wheel securely fenced on July 1—that that offence first came to appellant's knowledge on that date, and therefore that the justices were wrong in dismissing the information as being out of time (Verney v. Fletcher (1909), 1 K.B. 444).

See R. v. Taylor (1908), 2 K.B. 237, noted under s. 136.

- (2) It shall be sufficient to allege that a factory or workshop is a factory or workshop within the meaning of this Act, without more :
- (3) It shall be sufficient to state the name of the ostensible occupier of the factory or workshop, or the title of the firm by which the occupier employing persons in the factory or workshop is usually known :
- (4) A conviction or order made in any matter arising under this Act, either originally or on appeal, shall not be quashed for want of form, and a conviction or order made by a court of summary jurisdiction against which a person is authorised by this Act to appeal shall not be removed by certiorari or otherwise, either at the instance of the Crown or of any private person, into a superior court, except for the purpose of the hearing and determination of a special case.

147. (1) If a person is found in a factory or workshop, except at meal times, or while all the machinery of the factory or workshop is stopped, or for the sole purpose of bringing food to the persons employed in the factory or workshop between the hours of four and five o'clock in the afternoon, he shall, until the contrary is proved, be deemed for the purposes of this Act to have been then employed in the factory or workshop : Provided that yards, playgrounds, and places open to the public view, schoolrooms, waiting rooms, and other rooms belonging to the factory or workshop in which no machinery is used or manufacturing process carried on, shall not be taken to be any part of the factory or workshop within the meaning of this enactment ; and this enactment shall not apply to a domestic factory or workshop.

Evidence in summary proceedings.

(2) Where a young person or child is, in the opinion of the court, apparently of the age alleged by the informant, it shall lie on the defendant to prove that the young person or child is not of that age.

(3) A declaration in writing by a certifying surgeon for the district that he has personally examined a person employed in a factory or workshop in that district, and believes him to be under the age set forth in the declaration, shall be admissible in evidence of the age of that person.

(4) A copy of a conviction for an offence against this Act purporting to be certified under the hand of the clerk of the peace having the custody of the conviction to be a true copy shall be receivable as evidence, and every such clerk of the peace shall, on the written request of an inspector and payment of a fee of one shilling, deliver to him a copy of the conviction so certified.

148. Any notice, order, requisition, summons, and document, required or authorised to be served or sent for the purposes of this Act—
(a) May be served and sent by post, or by delivering the same to or at the residence of the person on or to whom it is to be served or sent, or (where he is the owner of a factory or workshop) by delivering the same or a true copy thereof to his agent, or (where he is the occupier of a factory or workshop) by delivering the same or a true copy thereof to his agent or to some person in the factory or workshop ; and (b) where it is required to be served on or sent to the occupier of a factory or workshop, shall be deemed to be properly addressed if addressed to the occupier of the factory or workshop at the factory or workshop, with the addition of the proper postal address, but without naming the person who is the occupier.

Service of notices and documents, &c.

power is used to move or work any machinery employed in preparing, manufacturing, or finishing, or in any process incident to the manufacture of cotton, wool, hair, silk, flax, hemp, jute, tow, china-grass, cocoa-nut fibre, or other like material, either separately or mixed together, or mixed with any other material, or any fabric made thereof: Provided that print works, bleaching and dyeing works, lace warehouses, paper mills, flax scutch mills, rope works, and hat works shall not be deemed to be textile factories:

The expression "non-textile factory" means—

(a) Any works, warehouses, furnaces, mills, foundries, or places named in Part One of the Sixth Schedule to this Act; and (b) any premises or places named in Part Two of the said schedule wherein or within the close or curtilage or precincts of which steam, water, or other mechanical power is used in aid of the manufacturing process<sup>1</sup> carried on there; and (c) any premises wherein or within the close or curtilage or precincts of which any manual labour is exercised by way of trade or for purposes of gain in or incidental to any of the following purposes, namely—(i.) the making of any article or of part of any article;<sup>2</sup> or (ii.) the altering, repairing, ornamenting, or finishing of any article; or (iii.) the adapting for sale of any article, and wherein or within the close or curtilage or precincts of which steam, water, or other mechanical power is used in aid of the manufacturing process carried on there:

The expression "factory" means textile factory and non-textile factory, or either of those descriptions of factories:

The expression "tenement factory"<sup>3</sup> means a factory where mechanical power is supplied to different parts of the same building occupied by different persons for the purpose of any manufacturing process or handicraft, in such manner that those parts constitute in law separate factories, and for the purpose of the provisions of this Act with respect to tenement factories all buildings situate within the same close or curtilage shall be treated as one building:

The expression "workshop" means—

(a) Any premises or places named in Part Two of the Sixth Schedule to this Act, which are not a factory; and (b) any premises, room, or place, not being a factory, in which premises, room, or place, or within the close or curtilage or precincts of which premises, any manual labour is exercised by way of trade<sup>4</sup> or for purposes of gain in or incidental to any of the <sup>1</sup> A laundry, carried on for the purposes of gain and in which the machines used for washing are driven by mechanical power, is a non-textile factory in which a manufacturing process is carried on (Owner v. Cottingham (1910), 74 J.P. 219).

<sup>2</sup> On certain premises rags were sorted by hand, and after being sorted were sold wholesale to manufacturers of shoddy or manufacturers of paper. An exceedingly small proportion of the rags were occasionally passed through a shaker to remove dust and dirt, the "shaker" being driven by an electric motor, these rags being afterwards sorted by hand like the rest. Held, that the premises were not a factory within the meaning of s. 149 of the Factory and Workshop Act, 1901 (Paterson v. Hunt (1909), 101 L.T. 571).

<sup>4</sup> Premises belonging to retail florists consisted of a shop in front and a room at the back. In this room crosses, wreaths, and bouquets were made by employees, and floral decorations arranged. In doing this work wire was used, and rubber tubing, made to resemble the bark of trees, attached to frames. This work was not merely incidental to the business done in the shop. Held, that the production of these crosses, &c., was the exercise of "manual labour" by way of trade, and that consequently the room in which it took place was a workshop within the Act, and the notice mentioned in s. 128 (1) (a) must be affixed therein (Hoare v. Green (1907), 2 K.B. 315).

A fishing-boat owner occupied a warehouse with a chamber over it, in which persons in his employ repaired fishing nets belonging to his fishing-boats and used by him in his following purposes, namely—(i.) The making of any article or of part of any article; or (ii.) the altering, repairing, ornamenting, or finishing of any article; or (iii.) the adapting for sale of any article, and to or over which premises, room, or place the employer of the persons working therein has the right of access or control:

The expression "workshop" includes a tenement workshop:

The expression "tenement workshop" means any workplace in which, with the permission of or under agreement with the owner or occupier, two or more persons carry on any work which would constitute the workplace a workshop if the persons working therein were in the employment of the owner or occupier.

(2) A part of a factory or workshop may, with the approval in writing of the chief inspector, be taken for the purposes of this Act to be a separate factory or workshop.

(3) A room solely used for the purpose of sleeping therein shall not be deemed to form part of the factory or workshop for the purposes of this Act.

(4) Where a place situate within the close, curtilage, or precincts forming a factory or workshop is solely used for some purpose other than the manufacturing process or handicraft carried on in the factory or workshop, that place shall not be deemed to form part of the factory or workshop for the purposes of this Act, but shall, if otherwise it would be a factory or workshop, be deemed to be a separate factory or workshop, and be regulated accordingly.

(5) A place or premises shall not be excluded from the definition of a factory or workshop by reason only that the place or premises is or are in the open air.

(6) The exercise by any young person or child in any recognised efficient school, during a portion of the school hours, of any manual labour for the purpose of instructing the young person or child in any art or handicraft shall not be deemed to be an exercise of manual labour for the purpose of gain within the meaning of this Act.

150. (1) This Act applies to factories and workshops belonging to the Crown; but in case of any public emergency the Secretary of State may, by order, to the extent and during the period named by him, exempt from this Act any factory or workshop belonging to the Crown, or any factory or workshop in respect of work which is being done on behalf of the Crown under a contract specified in the order.

Application to Crown factories and workshops.

(2) A factory or workshop belonging to or in the occupation of the Crown shall not be excluded from the operation of this Act by reason only that it is not carried on by way of trade or for the purpose of gain.

(3) The powers conferred by this Act on a district council or other local authority shall, in the case of a factory or workshop belonging to or in the occupation of the Crown, be exercised by an inspector under this Act.

151. The Secretary of State may by Special Order direct, with respect to any class of factories or workshops, that different branches or departments of work carried on in the same factory or workshop shall, for all or any of the purposes of this Act, be treated as if they were different factories or workshops.

Power to treat separate branches as separate factories or workshops.

152. (1) A woman, young person, or child, who works in a factory or workshop, whether for wages or not, either in a manufacturing process or handicraft, or in cleaning any part of the factory or workshop used for any manufacturing process or handicraft, or in cleaning or oiling any part fishing business, and no nets were repaired in this room except those which belonged to him and were used by him in his own fishing business. Upon an inspector of factories visiting the premises he found four persons engaged in manual labour in mending or repairing these nets. Held, on the authority of Nash v. Hollinshead (1901), 1 K.B. 700, that as the labour employed in the room was employed in the repairing of nets belonging to the employer and solely used by him in his own business, there was no manual labour exercised "by way of trade or for purposes of gain" within the meaning of the definition of "workshop" in s. 149 of the Factory and Workshop Act, 1901, and that therefore the room was not a "workshop" within the meaning of the Act (Curtiss v. Skinner (1906), 95 L.T. 31).

of the machinery, or in any other kind of work whatsoever incidental to or connected with the manufacturing process or handicraft, or connected with the article made or otherwise the subject of the manufacturing process or handicraft therein, shall, save as is otherwise provided by this Act, be deemed to be employed therein within the meaning of this Act.

(2) For the purposes of this Act an apprentice shall be deemed to work for hire.

SCHEDULES.

FIRST SCHEDULE.

Section 14.

PROVISIONS AS TO ARBITRATIONS.

(1) The parties to the arbitration are in this schedule deemed to be the owner of the factory or workshop on the one hand and the district council on the other hand.

(2) Each of the parties to the arbitration may, within fourteen days after the date of the reference, appoint an arbitrator.

(3) No person shall act as arbitrator or umpire who is employed in, or in the management of, or is interested in, the factory or workshop to which the arbitration relates.

(4) The appointment of an arbitrator must be in writing, and notice of the appointment shall be forthwith sent to the other party to the arbitration, and the appointment shall not be revoked without the consent of that party.

(5) The death or removal of, or other change in, any of the parties to the arbitration shall not affect the proceedings under this schedule.

(6) If within the said fourteen days either of the parties fails to appoint an arbitrator, the arbitrator appointed by the other party may proceed to hear and determine the matter in difference, and in that case the award of the single arbitrator shall be final.

(7) If before an award has been made any arbitrator appointed by either party dies or becomes incapable to act, or for seven days refuses or neglects to act, the party by whom that arbitrator was appointed may appoint some other person to act in his place; and if he fails to do so within seven days after notice in writing from the other party for that purpose, the remaining arbitrator may proceed to hear and determine the matter in difference, and in that case the award of the single arbitrator shall be final.

(8) In either of the foregoing cases where an arbitrator is empowered to act singly, on one of the parties failing to appoint, the party so failing may, before the single arbitrator has actually proceeded in the arbitration, appoint an arbitrator, who shall then act as if no failure had occurred.

(9) If the arbitrators fail to make their award within twenty-one days after the day on which the last of them was appointed, or within such extended time (if any) as has been appointed for that purpose by both arbitrators under their hands, the matter in difference shall be determined by the umpire appointed as hereinafter mentioned.

(10) The arbitrators, before they enter on the matter referred to them, shall appoint by writing under their hands an umpire to decide on points on which they may differ.

(11) If the umpire dies or becomes incapable of acting before he has made his award, or refuses to make his award within a reasonable time after the matter has been brought within his cognisance, the persons or person who appointed such umpire shall forthwith appoint another umpire in his place.

(12) If the arbitrators refuse or fail, or for seven days after the request of either party neglect, to appoint an umpire, then on the application of either party an umpire may be appointed by the chairman of the quarter sessions within the jurisdiction of which the factory or workshop is situate.

(13) The decision of every umpire on the matters referred to him shall be final.

(14) If a single arbitrator fails to make his award within twenty-one days after the day on which he was appointed, the party who appointed him may appoint another arbitrator to act in his place.

(15) Arrangements shall, whenever practicable, be made for the matters in difference being heard at the same time before the arbitrators and the umpire.

(16) The arbitrators and the umpire, or any of them, may examine the parties and their witnesses on oath, and may also consult any counsel, engineer, or scientific person whom they think it expedient to consult.

(17) The payment, if any, to be made to any arbitrator or umpire for his services shall be fixed by the Secretary of State, and together with the costs of the arbitration and award shall be paid by the parties, or one of them, according as the award may direct. Such costs may be taxed by a master of the Supreme Court, or, in Scotland, by the auditor of the Court of Session, and the taxing officer shall, on the written application of either of the parties, ascertain and certify the proper amount thereof. The amount, if any, payable by the Secretary of State shall be paid as part of the expenses of inspectors under this Act. Power to cancel
registration.

9. (1) On summary complaint by or at the instance of any person competent to lodge objections to the grant or renewal of a certificate of registration it shall be lawful for the court to make an order that on grounds to be specified therein a registered club is being so managed or carried on as to constitute a ground of objection to the renewal of its certificate as hereinbefore provided.

(2) Where such order has been made or where a conviction has taken place under the provisions of the immediately preceding section, the registrar shall forthwith make an entry of the order or conviction in the register of clubs, and lay the same before the court, and it shall be lawful for the court, if it thinks fit, and after such further inquiry as it may think necessary, having regard to the magnitude of the offence or to the grounds specified as aforesaid, to cancel the certificate of the club for the period for which it may still have to run, provided always that it shall be competent for such club to apply for the renewal of the certificate at the date at which it would have been competent to do so had the certificate not been cancelled.

(3) Where the court has refused an application by any club for the renewal of a certificate, or has cancelled the certificate of a club in manner provided as aforesaid, it may, if it think fit, further pronounce an order that the premises occupied by such club shall not be used for the purposes of any club which requires registration under this Act for a specified period, which may extend to twelve months in case of a first order, or in case of a second or subsequent order to five years: Provided that any such order may, for good cause shown, be subsequently cancelled or varied by the court.

Penalties for offences by officials of registered club.

10. Where an order has been made that a registered club is being so managed or carried on as to constitute a ground of objection to the renewal of its certificate, then, if the following grounds, or any of them, are specified in such order, videlicet:—

(1) That it is not conducted in good faith as a club, or that it is kept or habitually used for any unlawful purpose, or mainly for the supply of excisable liquor; or

(2) That there is frequent drunkenness on the club premises, or that persons in a state of intoxication are frequently seen to leave the club premises, or that the club is conducted in a disorderly manner; or

(3) That persons who are not members are habitually admitted to the club merely for the purpose of obtaining excisable liquor;

every person entered in the register of clubs as an official or a member of the committee of management or governing body of the club shall, unless he satisfies the court that the club was so managed or carried on without his knowledge or against his consent, be liable, on summary conviction, to a penalty not exceeding for a first offence seven pounds, for a second offence, whether in connection with the same or another club, fifteen pounds, and for a third or subsequent offence as aforesaid thirty pounds.

court final.

11. (1) The decision of the court in dealing with an application for an original certificate, or for the renewal of a certificate, or in cancelling a certificate, shall be subject to appeal in manner provided by the Summary Jurisdiction Acts, as if it was an order subject to appeal under those Acts.

(2) A justice shall not adjudicate on the hearing of any application or complaint affecting a club of which he is a member.

(3) If on a summary complaint being made in respect of a club the court grants a summons, the summons shall be served on the secretary and on such other person, if any, as the court may direct.

(4) The certificate under section two of this Act shall not be signed by a divisional justice of the Dublin Metropolitan Police District, and any justice having signed any such certificate shall not adjudicate on the hearing of an application under section three of this Act.

12. If the secretary of any club or any other person knowingly lodges with the registrar an application for registration which is false in any material particular, he shall be liable, on summary conviction, to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding three months, or to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds, or to both. Penalty for making false application.

13. For the purposes of this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, the following expressions shall have the meanings hereinafter assigned to them, namely— Definitions.

“Registered club” shall mean a club holding a certificate of registration in force at the time :

“Secretary” shall include any officer of a club or other person performing the duties of a secretary :

Act, 1851, to a promissory note current or unpaid on the first day of March eighteen hundred and ninety-nine, and purporting to have been made under the principal Act, twelve months from the passing of this Act shall be substituted for six months from the time when the cause of complaint shall have arisen.

(2) A decree, order, or warrant of a court of summary jurisdiction pronounced, made, or issued before the passing of this Act in respect of any such promissory note which has not been executed by reason only that the note became payable more than six months before the complaint relating to it was made shall not be a bar to any proceedings for the recovery of the amount due in respect of the note.

Amount due in respect of promissory notes to be recoverable years in certain cases.

Proceedings to recover the amount due in respect of a promissory note current or unpaid on the first day of March eighteen hundred and ninety-nine, and purporting to have been made under the principal Act, may be taken within twelve months from the passing of this Act, notwithstanding that six years or upwards may have elapsed from the time when the note became payable.

renewals of promissory notes
in certain cases.

3. A renewal of a promissory note purporting to have been made under the principal Act and made prior to the passing of this Act shall not be invalid or incapable of being enforced in any court or liable to stamp duty by reason only of the original note having been made in contravention of section thirty-eight of that Act, which prohibits the transaction of the business of a loan society at the places therein specified.

As to amount
respect of loans.

4. (1) The total amount recoverable in respect of any loan made under the principal Act shall in no case exceed the amount lent, together with simple interest thereon at the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, and in ascertaining the amount due in respect of any such note an account shall be carried back for the entire period from the date of the original loan.

(2) The amount provided for in subsection one of section two of the Charitable Loan Societies (Ir.) ## FERTILISERS AND FEEDING STUFFS ACT, 1906.

[6 EDW. 7, CH. 27.]

1. (1) Every person who sells for use as a fertiliser of the soil any article which has been subjected to any artificial process in the United Kingdom, or which has been imported from abroad, shall give to the purchaser an invoice stating the name of the article and what are the respective percentages (if any) of nitrogen, soluble phosphates, insoluble phosphates,<sup>1</sup> and potash contained in the article, and the invoice shall have effect as a warranty by the seller that the actual percentages do not differ from those stated in the invoice beyond the prescribed limits of error.

Warranties as to fertilisers and feeding stuffs.

(2) Every person who sells for use as food for cattle<sup>1</sup> or poultry any article which has been artificially prepared shall give to the purchaser an invoice stating the name of the article, and whether it has been prepared from one substance or seed or from more than one substance or seed, and in the case of any article artificially prepared otherwise than by being mixed broken ground or chopped, what are the respective percentages (if any) of oil and albuminoids contained in the article, and the invoice shall have effect as a warranty by the seller as to the facts so stated, except that as respects percentages the invoice shall have effect as a warranty only that the actual percentages do not differ from those stated in the invoice beyond the prescribed limits of error.

(3) Where any article sold for use as food for cattle or poultry is sold under a name or description implying that it is prepared from any particular substance or from any two or more particular substances, or is the product of any particular seed or of any two or more particular seeds, and without indication that it is mixed or compounded with any other substance or seed, there shall be implied a warranty by the seller that it is pure, that is to say, is prepared from that substance or those substances only, or is a product of that seed or those seeds only.

(4) On the sale of any article for use as food for cattle or poultry, there shall be implied a warranty by the seller that the article is suitable to be used as such.

(5) Any statement by the seller of the percentages of the chemical and other ingredients contained in any article sold for use as a fertiliser of the soil, or of the nutritive and other ingredients contained in any article sold for use as food for cattle or poultry, made after the commencement of this Act in an invoice of such article, or in any circular or advertisement descriptive of such article, shall have effect as a warranty by the seller.

(6) Where an article sold for use as a fertiliser of the soil or as food for cattle or poultry consists of two or more ingredients which have been mixed at the request of the purchaser, it shall be a sufficient compliance with the provisions of this section with respect to percentages if the invoice contains a statement of percentages with respect to the several ingredients before mixture, and a statement that they have been mixed at the request of the purchaser.

2. (1) The Board of Agriculture and Fisheries shall appoint a chief agricultural analyst (hereinafter referred to as the chief analyst), who shall have such remuneration out of moneys provided by Parliament as the Treasury may assign. The chief analyst shall not while holding his office engage in private practice.

Power to appoint analyst and samplers.

(2) Every county council shall, and the council of any county borough may, appoint an official agricultural analyst (hereinafter referred to as an agricultural analyst) and one or more official samplers for their county or borough.

(3) The council of any county or county borough may also appoint a deputy agricultural analyst, who shall, in case of illness, incapacity, or absence of the agricultural analyst, have all the powers and duties of the agricultural analyst, and where the deputy acts this Act shall apply as if he were the agricultural analyst.

(4) The appointment of an agricultural analyst, deputy agricultural analyst, or official sampler shall be subject to the approval of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries.

(5) A person whilst holding the office of agricultural analyst shall not engage or be interested in any trade, manufacture, or business connected with the sale or importation of articles used for fertilising the soil or as food for cattle or poultry.

Power to have fertiliser or feeding stuff analysed.

3. (1) Every purchaser of any article used for fertilising the soil or as food for cattle or poultry who has taken a sample thereof within ten days after delivery of the article to him or receipt of the invoice by him, whichever is later, shall, on payment of the required fee, be entitled to have the sample analysed by the agricultural analyst.

(2) An official sampler shall at the request of the purchaser and on payment by him of the required fee, and may without any such request, take a sample for analysis by the agricultural analyst of any such article as aforesaid which has been sold or is exposed or kept for sale, but, in the case of an article which has been sold, the sample shall be taken before the expiration of ten days after the delivery of the article to the purchaser, or the receipt of the invoice by the purchaser, whichever is later.

(3) Where a sample has been taken with a view to the institution of any civil or criminal proceeding, the person taking the sample shall divide the sample into three parts, and shall cause each part to be marked, sealed, and fastened up, and shall deliver or send by post two parts to the agricultural analyst and one part to the seller.

(4) An agricultural analyst to whom a sample is submitted for analysis under this section—

(a) If the sample has not been divided into parts and the parts marked, sealed, and fastened up as hereinbefore mentioned, shall send a copy of the certificate of his analysis to the person who submitted the sample for analysis; and

(b) If the sample has been so divided into parts, shall analyse one of the parts of the sample delivered or sent to him and retain the other, and shall send a certificate of his analysis in the prescribed form and containing the prescribed particulars to the person who submitted the sample for analysis, and where that person is not the purchaser of the article also to the purchaser, and in every case to the seller and to such other persons (if any) as may be prescribed, and shall report to the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries in the prescribed manner the result of any such analysis: Provided that if the agricultural analyst does not know the name and address of the seller he shall send the certificate intended for the seller to the purchaser, to be by him forwarded to the seller.

(5) At the hearing of any civil or criminal proceeding with respect to any article a sample whereof has been analysed in pursuance of this section, the production of a certificate of the agricultural analyst, or, if a sample has been submitted to the chief analyst, then of the chief analyst, shall be sufficient evidence of the facts therein stated unless the defendant or person charged requires that the analyst or the person who made the analysis be called as a witness: Provided that this subsection shall not apply—

(a) Where the sample has been taken otherwise than in the prescribed manner; or

(b) Where the sample has not been divided into parts and the parts marked, sealed, and fastened up as hereinbefore mentioned.<sup>1</sup>

(6) If in any such legal proceeding (other than a proceeding which cannot be instituted until an analysis has been made and a certificate given by the chief analyst)<sup>1</sup> either party to the proceeding objects<sup>2</sup> to the certificate of the agricultural analyst, the party objecting shall, on payment of such fee as may be fixed by the Treasury, be entitled to have submitted to the chief analyst the part of the sample retained by the agricultural analyst, and to have that part analysed by the chief analyst and to receive from him a certificate of the result of his analysis.

<sup>1</sup> The effect of this subsection is that in any prosecution where the facts set forth in (a) and (b), or either of those paragraphs, exist, then the analyst's certificate is of no legal effect, and he must himself attend to prove the result of the analysis.

(7) Where a sample is, under this section, sent for analysis to the chief analyst or to an agricultural analyst, there shall be sent with the sample the invoice (if any) relating to the article from which the sample was taken, or a copy of the invoice or of any prescribed part thereof.

4. (1) The Board of Agriculture and Fisheries may make regulations<sup>3</sup>—

Power of Board of Agriculture and Fisheries to make regulations.

- (a) With respect to any matter which under this Act is to be prescribed;
- (b) as to the qualifications to be possessed by agricultural analysts, deputy agricultural analysts, and official samplers;
- (c) as to the manner in which analyses are to be made;
- (d) as to the manner in which samples are to be taken and dealt with; and
- (e) generally for the purpose of carrying this Act into execution:

Provided that nothing in this section or in any regulations made thereunder, shall affect the right of the purchaser of an article used for fertilising the soil, or as food for cattle or poultry, to have analysed by the agricultural analyst a sample of an article taken by him or at his request otherwise than in accordance with the regulations.

(2) All regulations made under this section shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament as soon as may be after they are made.<sup>4</sup>

5. (1) The council of a county or county borough may concur with one or more other such councils in making any appointment which they are authorised to make under this Act, and as to the apportionment in the case of such a joint appointment of the expenses amongst the several councils.

Provisions as to county and county borough councils.

(2) The council of any county or county borough may contribute towards any expenses incurred by any agricultural body or association in causing samples to be taken for analysis by the agricultural analyst.

(3) The council of any county or county borough may fix the fees payable in respect of the making of any analysis and the taking of any sample at the request of a purchaser.

(4) The expenses of the council incurred in the execution of this Act shall be defrayed, in the case of a county council as part of their general expenses, and in the case of a county borough council out of the borough fund or borough rate.

6. (1) If any person who sells any article for use as a fertiliser of the soil or as food for cattle or poultry commits any of the following offences, namely:—

Penalties for breach of duty by seller.

- (a) Fails without reasonable excuse to give, on or before or as soon

<sup>1</sup> That is to say, a prosecution under s. 6 (1) (a), (b), or (c), which, under s. 6 (3), cannot be instituted—(1) until an analysis has been made and a certificate of analysis given by the chief analyst, (2) after this first condition has been complied with, except with the consent of the Department.

<sup>2</sup> It is submitted that upon such objection being made it is the duty of justices to adjourn the hearing until such time as will permit of the party so objecting receiving the certificate of the chief analyst.

As to the mode in which those regulations can be proved, see EVIDENCE, p. 276.

<sup>4</sup> The section further provides that all regulations made under it shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament as soon as may be after they are made (subsection 2). A prosecution, however, lies even though the regulation has not been laid before Parliament (see Hepburn v. Wilson (1901), 4 F. (Just. Cas.) 18).

as possible after the delivery of the article, the invoice required by this Act ; <sup>1</sup> or

- (b) Causes or permits <sup>2</sup> any invoice or description of the article sold by him to be false in any material particular to the prejudice of the purchaser ; <sup>3</sup> or
- (c) Sells for use as food for cattle or poultry any article which contains any ingredient deleterious to cattle or poultry, or to which has been added any ingredient worthless for feeding purposes and not disclosed at the time of the sale ;

he shall, without prejudice to any civil liability, be liable, on summary conviction, for a first offence to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds, and for any subsequent offence to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds :

Provided that a person shall not be convicted of an offence under paragraph (b) of this subsection if he proves either

- (i.) That he did not know, and could not with reasonable care have ascertained, that the invoice or description was false ; <sup>4</sup> or
- (ii.) That he purchased the article sold with a written warranty or invoice from a person in the United Kingdom, and that that warranty or invoice contained the false statement in question, and that he had no reason to believe at the time when he sold the article that the statement was false, and that he sold the article in the state in which it was when he purchased it.

(2) In any proceeding for an offence under this section it shall be no defence to allege that the purchaser, having bought only for analysis, was not prejudiced by the sale.

(3) A prosecution for an offence under this section shall not be instituted except with the consent of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries, <sup>5</sup> and the Board shall not give such consent until the part of

<sup>2</sup> A chemical company sold a quantity of a particular kind of fertiliser and an incorrect invoice was sent. The evidence showed that the managing director knew that in this fertiliser in question the proportion of phosphates varied, that in the ordinary course of business sales of that fertiliser would come under his notice, that he was cognisant of the general form of invoice used, and that invoices with a guarantee would not be sent out in the ordinary course without his knowledge ; but there was no evidence that he saw this particular invoice in question or knew it to be false, though there was evidence that that invoice would not be sent out in the ordinary course without his knowledge. Held, that he was rightly convicted under the precisely similar provisions of the repealed section 3 (1) of the Fertilisers and Feeding Stuffs Act, 1893, 56 & 57 Vict. c. 56 (Laird v. Dobell (1906), 1 K.B. 131).

<sup>4</sup> There was no such proviso as that contained in these words appended to s. 3 (1) (b) of the 56 & 57 Vict. c. 56, which subsection is verbatim the same as s. 5 (1) (b) of this Act. Consequently in Korten v. West Sussex County Council (1903), 67 J.P. 167, and Laird v. Dobell (1906), 1 K.B. 131, it was held that want of knowledge, or of means of knowledge, of the falsity of the invoice or description was no defence. But the 56 & 57 Vict. c. 56 has been repealed by s. 13 of this Act, and therefore those cases do not as regards the question of such knowledge apply to prosecutions under s. 6 (1) (b) of this Act.

<sup>5</sup> The consent of the Department must be given before the prosecution is instituted by the issue of the summons. It is not sufficient that such consent be given after the institution of the prosecution. It would seem that such consent must be in writing, being the consent of a body corporate (Department of Agriculture and John Marchbank v. Mary Porter (1910), 44 I.L.T.R. 13). And it is submitted that such consent is a "licence or other instrument" which may be proved in manner provided by the Agricultural and Technical Instruction (Ir.) Act, 1899, 62 & 63 Vict. c. 50, s. 21.

The respondents in England sent to a purchaser in Ireland an article as food for cattle, and were prosecuted in England by the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction for Ireland, which had taken a sample of the article in Ireland and had it analysed there, for having failed without reasonable excuse to give to the purchaser an invoice as required by the Act. The consent of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries to the institution of the prosecution had not been obtained. Held, that the consent of the

(4) In any prosecution under this section the summons shall state particulars of the offences alleged, and also the name of the prosecutor, and shall not be made returnable in less time than fourteen days from the day on which it is served, and there must be served therewith a copy of any analyst's certificate obtained on behalf of the prosecutor.

7. If any person fraudulently—

(a) tampers with any article so as to procure that any sample of it taken under this Act does not correctly represent the article ;
or

(b) tampers with any sample taken under this Act ;

he shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months.

8. If—

(a) the owner, or the person entrusted for the time being with the charge or custody<sup>1</sup> of any article sold or intended to be sold for use as a fertiliser of the soil or as food for cattle or poultry, refuses to allow an official sampler to take a sample of the article for the purpose of analysis ; or

Penalty for obstructing official sampler.

(b) the purchaser of any such article refuses to give to an official sampler the invoice of the article or a copy thereof or of any prescribed part thereof ;

he shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding ten pounds.

9. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act as to the consent of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries, a prosecution for an offence under this Act may be instituted either by the person aggrieved, or by the council of a county or borough, or by any body<sup>2</sup> or association authorised in that behalf by the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Institution of prosecutions and appeals.

(2) A prosecution for an offence of causing or permitting an invoice or description to be false in any material particular shall not be instituted under this Act—

(a) After the expiration of three months from the date when the invoice was received by the purchaser ; nor

(b) unless a sample for analysis has been taken, and an analysis by the agricultural analyst has been made, and a certificate of analysis has been given, in accordance with regulations made under this Act :

But the proceedings may be taken as well before the court having jurisdiction in the place where the purchaser of the article to which the invoice or description relates resides or carries on business, as before the court having jurisdiction in the place where the invoice or description was given.

(3) Any person aggrieved by a summary conviction under this Act may appeal to a court of quarter sessions.

10. (1) For the purposes of this Act the expression " cattle " shall mean bulls, cows, oxen, heifers, calves, sheep, goats, swine, and horses ;

Construction and application.

Irish Department to the institution of the prosecution was not sufficient, but that the consent of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries was necessary (Hill v. Phoenix Veterinary Supplies Limited (1911), 2 K.B. 217).

<sup>1</sup> A steamship company had in their possession at Cork a quantity of manure consigned from Liverpool to merchants in Ireland. Their possession was solely as carriers. K, a person appointed by the Department as their sampler under this Act, applied to the company for permission to take samples of the manure, but the company refused to give him permission. Held, that K was an " official sampler " within the meaning of this subsection ; that the company were persons entrusted for the time being with the charge or custody of an article within the meaning of the subsection ; and that the company were guilty of an offence under the section (Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction for Ireland v. Cork Steam Packet Company (1909), 2 I.R. 479).

<sup>2</sup> " Body " here seems to be intended to mean a body of persons, and cannot be taken as meaning " any individual." The Department is not a " body " that can appear as a complainant (Department of Agriculture and John Marchbank v. Mary Porter and others (1910), 44 I.L.T.R. 13), as s. 6 (3) of this Act contemplates some complainant other than the Department itself.

and the expressions "soluble" and "insoluble" shall respectively mean soluble and insoluble in water, or, if so specified in the invoice, in a solution of citric acid or other solvent of the prescribed strength, and the percentage of soluble phosphates and percentage of insoluble phosphates mean respectively the percentage of tribasic phosphate of lime which has been, and that which has not been, rendered soluble.

(2) This Act shall apply to wholesale as well as retail sales.

Application to Ireland.

12. For the purposes of the execution of this Act in Ireland, inclusive of the appointment of a chief agricultural analyst, the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction for Ireland shall be substituted for the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries, and in section seventeen of the Agriculture and Technical Instruction (Ir.) Act, 1899, a reference to sections six, seven, and eight of this Act shall be substituted for the reference to section seven of the Fertilisers and Feeding Stuffs Act, 1893; and for the purpose of instituting prosecutions the said Department may take samples of any articles to which this Act applies which have been sold or are kept or exposed for sale.

Repeal.

13. The Fertilisers and Feeding Stuffs Act, 1893, is hereby repealed; provided that nothing in this repeal shall affect any regulation or appointment made under that Act, but every such regulation and appointment shall have effect as if made under this Act; and in Ireland an analyst holding office under the said Act both for a county and a non-county borough comprised in that county shall become the agricultural analyst for that county.

Short title and commencement.

14. This Act may be cited as the Fertilisers and Feeding Stuffs Act, 1906, and shall come into operation on the first day of January nineteen hundred and seven.

PROBATION OF OFFENDERS ACT, 1907.

[7 EDW. 7, CH. 17.]

Power of courts to permit conditional release of offenders.

1. (1) Where any person is charged before a court of summary jurisdiction with an offence punishable by such court, and the court thinks that the charge is proved, but is of opinion that, having regard to the character, antecedents, age, health, or mental condition of the person charged, or to the trivial nature of the offence, or to the extenuating circumstances under which the offence was committed, it is inexpedient to inflict any punishment or any other than a nominal punishment, or that it is expedient to release the offender on probation, the court may, without proceeding to conviction, make an order either—

(i.) dismissing the information or charge; or

(ii.) discharging the offender conditionally on his entering into a recognisance, with or without sureties, to be of good behaviour and to appear for conviction and sentence when called on at any time during such period, not exceeding three years, as may be specified in the order.

(2) Where any person has been convicted on indictment of any offence punishable with imprisonment, and the court is of opinion that, having regard to the character, antecedents, age, health, or mental condition of the person charged, or to the trivial nature of the offence, or to the extenuating circumstances under which the offence was committed, it is inexpedient to inflict any punishment or any other than a nominal punishment, or that it is expedient to release the offender on probation, the court may, in lieu of imposing a sentence of imprisonment, make an order discharging the offender conditionally on his entering into a recognisance, with or without sureties, to be of good behaviour and to appear for sentence when called on at any time during such period, not exceeding three years, as may be specified in the order.

(3) The court may, in addition to any such order, order the offender to pay such damages for injury or compensation for loss (not exceeding in the case of a court of summary jurisdiction ten pounds, or, if a higher limit is fixed by any enactment relating to the offence, that higher limit) and to pay such costs of the proceedings as the court thinks reasonable.

(4) Where an order under this section is made by a court of summary jurisdiction, the order shall, for the purpose of re-vesting or restoring stolen property, and of enabling the court to make orders as to the restitution or delivery of property to the owner and as to the payment of money upon or in connection with such restitution or delivery, have the like effect as a conviction.

2. (1) A recognisance ordered to be entered into under this Act shall, if the court so order, contain a condition that the offender be under the supervision of such person as may be named in the order during the period specified in the order and such other conditions for securing such supervision as may be specified in the order, and an order requiring the insertion of such conditions as aforesaid in the recognisance is in this Act referred to as a probation order.

Probation orders and conditions of recognisances.

(2) A recognisance under this Act may contain such additional conditions as the court may, having regard to the particular circumstances of the case, order to be inserted therein with respect to all or any of the following matters :—

Provided that the person so named may, if the court considers it expedient on account of the place of residence of the offender, or for any other special reason, be a probation officer for some other petty sessional division, and may, if the court considers that the special circumstances of the case render it desirable, be a person who has not been appointed to be probation officer for any petty sessional division.

(4) A probation officer appointed for a petty sessional division may be paid such salary as the authority having the control of the fund out of which the salary of the clerk to the justices of that petty sessional division is paid may determine, and if not so paid by salary may receive such remuneration for acting under a probation order as the court making the order thinks fit, not exceeding such remuneration as may be allowed by the regulations of such authority as aforesaid, and may in either case be paid such out-of-pocket expenses as may be allowed under such regulations as aforesaid, and the salary or remuneration and expenses shall be paid by that authority out of the said funds.

(5) A person named in a probation order not being a probation officer for a petty sessional division may be paid such remuneration and out-of-pocket expenses out of such fund as the court making the probation order may direct, not exceeding such as may be allowed under the regulations of the authority having control of the fund out of which the remuneration is directed to be paid.

(6) The person named in a probation order may at any time be relieved of his duties, and in any such case or in case of the death of the person so named, another person may be substituted by the court before which the offender is bound by his recognisance to appear for conviction or sentence, or, if he be a probation officer for a petty sessional division, by a court to whose control that officer is subject.

5. The court before which any person is bound by his recognisance under this Act to appear for conviction or sentence may, upon the application of the probation officer, and after notice to the offender, vary the conditions of the recognisance, and may, on being satisfied that the conduct of that person has been such as to make it unnecessary that he should remain longer under supervision, discharge the recognisance.

Provision in case of offender failing to observe conditions of release.

6. (1) If the court before which an offender is bound by his recognisance under this Act to appear for conviction or sentence, or any court of summary jurisdiction, is satisfied by information on oath that the offender has failed to observe any of the conditions of his recognisance, it may issue a warrant for his apprehension, or may, if it thinks fit, instead of issuing a warrant in the first instance, issue a summons to the offender and his sureties (if any) requiring him or them to attend at such court and at such time as may be specified in the summons.

(2) The offender, when apprehended, shall, if not brought forthwith before the court before which he is bound by his recognisance to appear for conviction or sentence, be brought before a court of summary jurisdiction.

(3) The court before which an offender on apprehension is brought, or before which he appears in pursuance of such summons as aforesaid, may, if it is not the court before which he is bound by his recognisance to appear for conviction or sentence, remand him to custody or on bail until he can be brought before the last-mentioned court.

(4) An offender so remanded to custody may be committed during remand to any prison to which the court having power to convict or sentence him has power to commit prisoners.

1. (1) Where a person undertakes for reward the nursing and maintenance of one or more infants under the age of seven years apart from their parents or having no parents, he shall, within forty-eight hours from the reception of any such infant, give notice in writing thereof to the local authority):<sup>2</sup>

Provided that this section shall not apply, as respects any infant, where the period for which it is received is forty-eight hours or less.

(2) Where a person undertakes for reward the nursing and maintenance of an infant already in his care without reward, the entering into the undertaking shall, for the purposes of this Part of this Act, be treated as a reception of the infant.

(3) The notice shall state the name, sex, and date and place of birth of the infant, the name of the person receiving the infant, and the dwelling within which the infant is being kept, and the name and address of the person from whom the infant has been received.

(4) If a person who has undertaken the nursing and maintenance of any such infant changes his residence, he shall within forty-eight hours thereof give to the local authority notice in writing of the change, and, where the residence to which he moves is situate in the district of another local authority, he shall give to that local authority the like notice as respects each infant in his care as he is by this section required to give on the first reception of the infant.

(5) If any such infant dies or is removed from the care of the person who has undertaken its nursing and maintenance, that person shall, within forty-eight hours thereof, give to the local authority notice in writing of the death or removal, and in the latter case also of the name and address of the person to whose care the infant has been transferred.

(6) Where at the commencement of this Act any infant is under the care of any person who has, before the commencement of this Act, undertaken its nursing and maintenance under such circumstances that if its nursing and maintenance had been undertaken after the commencement of this Act he would have been required to give notice to the local authority under this section, he shall, within one month after the commencement of this Act, give to the local authority the like notice as if the nursing and maintenance of the infant had been undertaken after the commencement of this Act:

Provided that nothing in this subsection—

(a) shall apply to any person who on the reception of an infant gave such notice as was required by the Infant Life Protection Act, 1897,<sup>3</sup> or

(b) shall exempt any person who ought to have given notice under that Act from any liability which he may have incurred thereunder.

Subject as aforesaid, this Part of this Act shall apply to an infant whose nursing and maintenance has been undertaken for reward before the passing of this Act in like manner as it applies to an infant whose nursing and maintenance has been so undertaken after the commencement of this Act, and as if any notice given under the Infant Life Protection Act, 1897, had been a notice given under this Part of this Act.

(7) If any person required to give a notice under this section fails to give the notice within the time specified for giving the notice, he shall be guilty of an offence<sup>4</sup> under this part of this Act, and, if the infant in respect of which notice ought to have been given was an infant the consideration for whose nursing and maintenance consisted in whole or in

(5) If any person undertaking the nursing and maintenance of any such infants refuses to allow any such visitor or other person to visit or examine the infants or the premises in which they are kept, he shall be guilty of an offence under this Part of this Act.

(6) If any such visitor or other person is refused admittance to any premises in contravention of this Part of this Act, or has reason to believe that any infants under the age of seven years are being kept in any house or premises in contravention of this Part of this Act, he may apply to a justice, who, on being satisfied, on information in writing on oath, that there is reasonable ground for believing that an offence under this Part of this Act has been committed, may grant a warrant authorising the visitor or other person to enter the premises for the purpose of ascertaining whether any offence under this Part of this Act has been committed, and, if the occupier of the premises or any other person obstructs or causes or procures to be obstructed any visitor or other person acting in pursuance of such a warrant, he shall be guilty of an offence<sup>2</sup> under this part of this Act.

(2) If any person required to give a notice under this section fails to give the notice within the time specified for giving the notice, he shall be guilty of an offence<sup>2</sup> under this Part of this Act.

or person, knowingly issues, or procures or attempts to procure to be issued, to or for the benefit of such a person as aforesaid or to any person on his behalf, a policy on the life of such an infant, the company, society, or person shall be guilty of an offence<sup>1</sup> under this Part of this Act.<sup>2</sup>

Provisions as to notices.

(2) Every notice by this Part of this Act required to be given may be sent by post in a registered letter addressed to the clerk of the local authority or to such other person as the local authority may appoint, or in the case of a notice to a coroner to the coroner, or may be delivered at the office of the local authority or, in the case of a notice to a coroner, at his office or residence.

9. (1) Every person guilty of an offence under this Part of this Act shall on summary conviction be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to a fine not exceeding £25, and the court may order any infant in respect of which the offence was committed to be removed to a place of safety.<sup>3</sup>

Prosecution of offences and application of fines.

(2) Any fines under this Part of this Act shall, notwithstanding any provision in any other Act, be paid to the local authority, and be applied to the purposes to which the fund or rate out of which the expenses of the local authority are to be defrayed is applicable.

11. (1) The provisions of this Part of this Act shall not extend to any relative or legal guardian of an infant who undertakes the nursing and maintenance of the infant, or to any person who undertakes the nursing or maintenance of an infant under the provisions of any Act for the relief of the poor or of any order made under any such Act ; or to hospitals, convalescent homes, or institutions established for the protection and care of infants, and conducted in good faith for religious or charitable purposes, or boarding schools at which efficient elementary education is provided.

PART II.

PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS.Cruelty to Children and Young Persons.

Punishment for cruelty to children and young persons.

12. (1) If any person over the age of sixteen years,<sup>1</sup> who has the custody,<sup>2</sup> charge, or care of any child or young person,<sup>3</sup> wilfully<sup>4</sup> assaults, ill-treats, neglects,<sup>5</sup> abandons,<sup>6</sup> or exposes<sup>7</sup> such child or young person, or causes or procures such child or young person to be assaulted, ill-treated, neglected, abandoned, or exposed, in a manner likely to cause such child or young person unnecessary suffering or injury to his health (including injury to or loss of sight, or hearing, or limb, or organ of the body, and any mental derangement), that person shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and shall be liable—

- (a) on conviction on indictment, to a fine not exceeding £100, or alternatively, or in default of payment of such fine, or in addition thereto, to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding two years; and
- (b) on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding £25, or alternatively, or in default of payment of such fine, or in addition thereto, to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding six months;

and for the purposes of this section a parent or other person legally liable to maintain a child or young person shall be deemed to have neglected him in a manner likely to cause injury to his health if he fails to provide adequate food, clothing, medical aid, or lodging for the child or young person, or if, being unable otherwise to provide such food, clothing, medical aid, or lodging he fails to take steps to procure the same to be provided under the Acts relating to the relief of the poor.

(2) A person may be convicted of an offence under this section, either on indictment or by a court of summary jurisdiction, notwithstanding that actual suffering or injury to health, or the likelihood of such suffering or injury to health, was obviated by the action of another person.

<sup>4</sup> "Wilfully" means that the act is done deliberately and intentionally, not by accident or inadvertence, but so that the mind of the person who does the act goes with it (per Lord Russell of Killowen, L.C.J., in R. v. Senior (1899), 1 Q.B. 283, at p. 290).

<sup>5</sup> "Neglect" is the want of reasonable care, that is, the omission of such steps as a reasonable parent would take, such as are usually taken in the ordinary experience of mankind (R. v. Senior, supra, at p. 291). The mere omission of a parent to pay any part of his earnings towards the support of his child may constitute "wilful neglect" within the (repealed) 4 Edw. 7, c. 15, s. 1 (R. v. Connor (1908), 2 K.B. 26).

<sup>6</sup> In R. v. Falkingham (1870), L.R. 1 C.C.R. 222, it was held that a child under two years of age carefully packed and sent by train to its father's residence, though there was no proof that the child suffered any injury, was abandoned. A woman who was living apart from her husband, and who had the actual custody of their child, under two years of age, brought the child, and left it on the father's doorstep, telling him that she had done so. He knowingly allowed it to remain lying outside his door from 7 P.M. to 1 A.M., when it was removed by a constable, the child being then cold and stiff. Held, that though the father had not the actual custody and possession of the child, yet as he was by law bound to provide for it, his allowing it to remain where it was, was an abandonment and exposure of the child, whereby its life was endangered, within s. 27 of the Offences of the Person Act, 1861 (A. v. White (1870), L.R. 1 C.C.R. 311).

<sup>7</sup> To constitute the offence of "exposing" it is not necessary that there should be a physical placing somewhere with intent to injure. Thus, a father who, without necessity, compelled his children to tramp with him during an inclement night to a distant destination was held rightly convicted (R. v. Williams (1910), 26 T.L.R. 290).

on indictment or by a court of summary jurisdiction, notwithstanding the death of the child or young person in respect of whom the offence is committed.

(4) Upon the trial of any person over the age of sixteen indicted for the manslaughter of a child or young person of whom he had the custody, charge, or care, it shall be lawful for the jury, if they are satisfied that the accused is guilty of an offence under this section in respect of such child or young person to find the accused guilty of such offence.

(5) If it is proved that a person convicted under this section was directly or indirectly interested in any sum of money accruable or payable in the event of the death of the child or young person, and had knowledge that such sum of money was accruing or becoming payable, then—

(a) in the case of a conviction on indictment, the court may in its discretion either increase the amount of the fine under this section so that the fine does not exceed two hundred pounds; or, in lieu of awarding any other penalty under this section, sentence the person to penal servitude for any term not exceeding five years; and

(b) in the case of a summary conviction, the court in determining the sentence to be awarded shall take into consideration the fact that the person was so interested and had such knowledge.

(6) A person shall be deemed to be directly or indirectly interested in a sum of money under this section, if he has any share in or any benefit from the payment of that money, though he is not a person to whom it is legally payable.

(7) A copy of a policy of insurance, certified by an officer or agent of the insurance company granting the policy, to be a true copy, shall in any proceedings under this section be prima facie evidence that the child or young person therein stated to be insured has been in fact so insured, and that the person in whose favour the policy has been granted is the person to whom the money thereby insured is legally payable.

(8) An offence under this section is in this Part of this Act referred to as an offence of cruelty.

13. Where it is proved that the death of an infant under three years of age was caused by suffocation (not being suffocation caused by disease or the presence of any foreign body in the throat or air-passages of the infant) whilst the infant was in bed with some other person over sixteen years of age, and that that other person was at the time of going to bed under the influence of drink, that other person shall be deemed to have neglected the infant in a manner likely to cause injury to its health within the meaning of this Part of this Act. Suffocation of infants.

Other Offences in relation to Children and Young Persons.

14. (1) If any person causes or procures any child or young person, or, having the custody, charge, or care of a child or young person, allows that child or young person, to be in any street, premises, or place for the purpose of begging or receiving alms, or of inducing the giving of alms, whether or not there is any pretence of singing, playing, performing, offering anything for sale, or otherwise, that person shall, on summary conviction, be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty-five pounds, or alternatively, or in default of payment of such fine, or in addition thereto, to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding three months. Begging.

(2) If a person having the custody, charge, or care of a child or young person is charged with an offence under this section, and it is proved that the child or young person was in any street, premises, or place for any such purpose as aforesaid, and that the person charged allowed the child or young person to be in the street, premises, or place, he shall be presumed to have allowed him to be in the street, premises, or place for that purpose unless the contrary is proved.

15. If any person over the age of sixteen years who has the custody, charge, or care of any child under the age of seven years allows that child to be in any room containing an open fire grate not sufficiently protected Exposing children to risk of burning.

to guard against the risk of the child being burnt or scalded, without taking reasonable precautions against that risk, and by reason thereof the child is killed or suffers serious injury, he shall on summary conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding ten pounds :

Provided that this section shall not, nor shall any proceedings taken thereunder, affect any liability of any such person to be proceeded against by indictment for any indictable offence.

Allowing children or young persons to be in brothels.

16. (1) If any person having the custody, charge, or care of a child or young person between the ages of four and sixteen allows that child or young person to reside in or to frequent a brothel, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanour and shall be liable on conviction on indictment or on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty-five pounds, or alternatively or in default of payment of such fine, or in addition thereto, to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding six months.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the liability of a person to be indicted under section six of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1885,<sup>1</sup> but upon the trial of a person under that section it shall be lawful for the jury, if they are satisfied that the accused is guilty of an offence under this section, to find the accused guilty of such offence.

Punishment of person causing, encouraging, or favouring seduction or prostitution of young girl.

17. (1) If any person having the custody, charge, or care of a girl under the age of sixteen years causes or encourages the seduction or prostitution or unlawful carnal knowledge<sup>2</sup> of that girl, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanour and shall be liable to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding two years.

(2) For the purposes of this section a person shall be deemed to have caused or encouraged the seduction or prostitution or unlawful carnal knowledge<sup>2</sup> (as the case may be) of a girl who has been seduced or become a prostitute or been unlawfully carnally known<sup>2</sup> if he has knowingly allowed the girl to consort with, or to enter or continue in the employment of, any prostitute or person of known immoral character.

Power to bind over person having custody of young girl to exercise proper care.

18. (1) Where it is shown to the satisfaction of a court of summary jurisdiction, on the complaint of any person, that a girl under the age of sixteen years is, with the knowledge of her parent or guardian, exposed to the risk of seduction or prostitution, or of being unlawfully carnally known,<sup>2</sup> or living a life of prostitution, the court may adjudge her parent or guardian to enter into a recognisance to exercise due care and supervision in respect of the girl.

(2) The provisions of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879,<sup>3</sup> with respect to recognisances to be of good behaviour (including the provisions as to the enforcement thereof) shall apply to recognisances under this section.<sup>4</sup>

Arrest of Offender and Provision for Safety of Children.

(2) Where a constable arrests any person without warrant in pursuance of this section, the superintendent or inspector of police or an officer of police of equal or superior rank, or the officer in charge of the police station to which such person is brought, shall, unless in his belief the release of such person on bail would tend to defeat the ends of justice, or to cause injury or danger to the child or young person against whom the offence is alleged to have been committed, release the person arrested on his entering into such a recognisance, with or without sureties, as may in the judgment of the officer of police be required to secure the attendance of such person upon the hearing of the charge.

20. (1) A constable, or any person authorised by a justice, may take to a place of safety<sup>1</sup> any child or young person in respect of whom an offence under this Part of this Act, or any of the offences mentioned in the First Schedule to this Act, has been, or there is reason to believe has been, committed.<sup>2</sup>

Detention of child or young person in place of safety.

(2) A child or young person so taken to a place of safety, and also any child or young person who seeks refuge in a place of safety, may there be detained until he can be brought before a court of summary jurisdiction, and that court may make such order as is mentioned in the next following subsection, or may cause the child or young person to be dealt with as circumstances may admit and require, until the charge made against any person in respect of any offence as aforesaid with regard to the child or young person has been determined by the conviction or discharge of such person.

(3) Where it appears to a court of summary jurisdiction or any justice that an offence under this Part of this Act, or any of the offences mentioned in the First Schedule to this Act, has been committed in respect of any child or young person who is brought before the court or justice, and that it is expedient in the interests of the child or young person that an order should be made under this subsection, the court or justice may, without prejudice to any other power under this Act, make such order as circumstances require for the care and detention of the child or young person until a reasonable time has elapsed for a charge to be made against some person for having committed the offence, and, if a charge is made against any person within that time, until the charge has been determined by the conviction or discharge of that person, and in case of conviction for such further time not exceeding twenty-one days as the court which convicted may direct, and any such order may be carried out notwithstanding that any person claims the custody of the child or young person.

21. (1) Where a person having the custody, charge, or care of a child or young person has been—(a) convicted of committing in respect of such child or young person an offence under this Part of this Act or any of the offences mentioned in the First Schedule to this Act; or (b) committed for trial for any such offence; or (c) bound over to keep the peace towards such child or young person, by any court, that court, either at the time when the person is so convicted, committed for trial, or bound over, and without requiring any new proceedings to be instituted for the purpose, or at any other time, and also any petty sessional court<sup>3</sup> before which any person may bring the case, may, if satisfied on inquiry that it is expedient so to deal with the child or young person, order<sup>4</sup> that the child or young person be taken out of the custody, charge, or care of the person so convicted, committed for trial, or bound over, and be committed to the care of a relative of the child or young person, or some other

(2) If the child or young person has a parent or legal guardian no order shall be made under this section unless the parent or legal guardian has been convicted of or committed for trial for the offence, or is under committal for trial for having been, or has been proved to the satisfaction of the court making the order to have been, party or privy to the offence, or has been bound over to keep the peace towards the child or young person, or cannot be found.

(3) Every order under this section shall be in writing, and any such order may be made by the court in the absence of the child or young person; and the consent of any person to undertake the care of a child or young person in pursuance of any such order shall be proved in such manner as the court may think sufficient to bind him.

(4) Where an order is made under this section in respect of a person who has been committed for trial, then, if that person is acquitted of the charge, or if the charge is dismissed for want of prosecution, the order shall forthwith be void, except with regard to anything that may have been lawfully done under it.

(5) The Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> may at any time in his discretion discharge a child or young person from the care of any person to whose care he is committed in pursuance of this section, either absolutely or on such conditions as the Secretary of State approves, and may, if he thinks fit, make rules in relation to children or young persons so committed to the care of any person, and to the duties of such persons with respect to such children or young persons.

(6) The Secretary of State,<sup>2</sup> in any case where it appears to him to be for the benefit of a child or young person who has been committed to the care of any person in pursuance of this section, may empower such person to procure the emigration of the child or young person, but, except with such authority, no person to whose care a child or young person is so committed shall procure his emigration.

(7) Nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing the court, instead of making an order as respects a child under this section, from ordering the child to be sent to an industrial school in any case in which the court is authorised to do so under Part IV. of this Act.

Maintenance of child or young person when committed to care of any person under order of court.

22. (1) Any person to whose care a child or young person is committed under this Part of this Act shall, whilst the order is in force, have the like control over the child or young person as if he were his parent, and shall be responsible for his maintenance, and the child or young person shall continue in the care of such person, notwithstanding that he is claimed by his parent or any other person, and if any person—
(a) knowingly assists or induces, directly or indirectly, a child or young person to escape from the person to whose care he is so committed; or
(b) knowingly harbours, conceals, or prevents from returning to such person, a child or young person who has so escaped, or knowingly assists in so doing; he shall on summary conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds or to be imprisoned, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding two months.<sup>3</sup>

(2) Any court having power so to commit a child or young person shall have power to make the like orders on the parent or other person liable to maintain the child or young person to contribute to his maintenance during such period as aforesaid, and such orders shall be enforceable in like manner as if the child or young person were ordered to be sent to a certified school under Part IV. of this Act, but the limit on the amount of the weekly sum which the parent or such other person may

(3) Any such order may be made on the complaint or application of the person to whose care the child or young person is for the time being committed, and either at the time when the order for the committal of the child or young person to his care is made, or subsequently, and the sums contributed by the parent or such other person shall be paid to such person as the court may name, and be applied for the maintenance of the child or young person.<sup>2</sup>

(4) Where an order under this Part of this Act to commit a child or young person to the care of some relative or other person is made in respect of a person who has been committed for trial for an offence, the court shall not have power to make an order under this section on the parent or other person liable to maintain the child or young person prior to the trial of the person so committed.

(5) Any court making an order under this section for contribution by a parent or such other person may in any case where there is any pension or income payable to such parent or other person and capable of being attached, after giving the person by whom the pension or income is payable an opportunity of being heard, further order that such part as the court may see fit of the pension or income be attached and be paid to the person named by the court. Such further order shall be an authority to the person by whom such pension or other income is payable to make the payment so ordered, and the receipt of the person to whom the payment is ordered to be made shall be a good discharge to such first-mentioned person.<sup>3</sup>

(6) An order under this section may be made by any court before which a person is charged with an offence under this Part of this Act, and without regard to the place in which the person to whom the payment is ordered to be made may reside.<sup>3</sup>

23. (1) In determining on the person to whose care the child or young person shall be committed under this Part of this Act, the court shall endeavour to ascertain the religious persuasion to which the child or young person belongs, and shall, if possible, select a person of the same religious persuasion, or a person who gives such undertaking as seems to the court sufficient that the child or young person shall be brought up in accordance with its own religious persuasion, and such religious persuasion shall be specified in the order.

Religious persuasion of person to whom child or young person is committed.

(2) In any case where the child or young person has been placed pursuant to any such order with a person who is not of the same religious persuasion as that to which the child or young person belongs, or who has not given such undertaking as aforesaid, the court which made the order, or any court of like jurisdiction, shall, on the application of any person in that behalf, and on its appearing that a fit person, who is of the same religious persuasion, or who will give such undertaking as aforesaid, is willing to undertake the care of the child or young person, make an order to secure his being placed with a person who either is of the same religious persuasion or gives such undertaking as aforesaid.<sup>4</sup>

(3) Where a child or young person has been placed with a person who gives such undertaking as aforesaid, and the undertaking is not observed, the child or young person shall be deemed to have been placed with a person not of the same religious persuasion as that to which the child belongs, as if no such undertaking had been given.<sup>4</sup>

24. (1) If it appears to a justice on information on oath<sup>5</sup> laid by any person who, in the opinion of the justice, is acting in the interests of a child or young person, that there is reasonable cause to suspect—(a) that the child or young person has been or is being assaulted, ill-treated, or neglected in any place within the jurisdiction of the justice, in a manner likely to cause the child or young person unnecessary suffering,

(5) It shall not be necessary in any information or warrant under this section to name the child or young person.

(1) The Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> may cause any institution for the reception of poor children or young persons supported wholly or partly by voluntary contributions, and not liable to be inspected by or under the authority of any Government department, to be visited and inspected from time to time by persons appointed by him for the purpose, and the Secretary of State, with the consent of any society or body corporate established for the reception or protection of poor children or the prevention of cruelty to children may, subject to such conditions as the Secretary of State may prescribe, appoint officers of the society or body corporate for the purpose.

(2) Any person so appointed shall have power to enter the institution, and any person who obstructs him<sup>3</sup> in the execution of his duties shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding five pounds, and a refusal to allow any person so appointed to enter the institution shall, for the purposes of the provisions of this Part of this Act relating to search warrants, be deemed to be a reasonable cause to suspect that an offence under this Part of this Act is being committed in respect of a child or young person in the institution.

(3) Where any such institution is carried on in accordance with the principles of any particular religious denomination, the Secretary of State shall, if so desired by the managers of the institution, appoint, where practicable, a person of that denomination to visit and inspect the institution.

Those starred in the list are for boys under nine years of age. The following recommendations have been issued to Clerks of Petty Sessions:—

Clerks of Petty Sessions will please call the attention of Committing Magistrates to the following:—

- I. No case should be sent to a school without first ascertaining whether the manager of that school is willing to admit the child (31 Vict. c. 25, s. 14; 31 and 32 Vict. c. 59, s. 12).
- II. From the nature of these schools it is essential that the children sent to them should be mentally and physically fitted for industrial training.
- III. Children while inmates of workhouses cannot be legally committed to an industrial school.
- IV. In industrial school cases copies of depositions which have been made by the Constabulary should forthwith be sent to the inspector.

Provided that the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may, on the application of the managers of the industrial school, by order transfer the child to a certified reformatory school.

(4) Where the parent or guardian of a child proves to a petty sessional court<sup>2</sup> that he is unable to control the child, and that he desires the child to be sent to an industrial school under this Part of this Act, the court, if satisfied on inquiry that it is expedient so to deal with the child, and that the parent or guardian understands the results which will follow, may order him to be sent to a certified industrial school :<sup>3</sup>

Provided that, if the court thinks that it is expedient that the child instead of being sent to a certified industrial school should be placed under the supervision of a probation officer, the court may deal with him in like manner as, if he had been charged with an offence, the court might have dealt with him under the Probation of Offenders Act, 1907, so however that the recognisance on entering into which he is discharged shall bind him to appear for having a detention order made against him.

(5) Where the guardians of a poor law union or the managers of a district poor law school satisfy a petty sessional court<sup>2</sup> that any child maintained in a workhouse or district poor law school is refractory or is the child of parents either of whom has been convicted of an offence punishable with penal servitude or imprisonment, and that it is desirable that the child be sent to an industrial school under this Part of this Act, the court may, if satisfied that it is expedient so to deal with the child, order him to be sent to a certified industrial school.<sup>4</sup>

(6) A petty sessional court<sup>2</sup> may, on the complaint of a local education authority, made in accordance with the provisions of section twelve of the Elementary Education Act, 1876, for the purpose of enforcing an attendance order, order a child to be sent to a certified industrial school as provided in that section :<sup>5</sup>

Provided that, if upon any such complaint it appears to the court that the child comes within one of the descriptions mentioned in subsection one of this section, the court may, on the application of the local education authority, proceed under that subsection and not under this subsection or section twelve of the Elementary Education Act, 1876.<sup>5</sup>

(7) Where under this section a court is empowered to order a child to be sent to a certified industrial school the court, in lieu of ordering him to be so sent, may in accordance with the provisions of Part II. of this Act, make an order for the committal of the child to the care of a relative or other fit person named by the court, and the provisions of that Part shall, so far as applicable, apply as if the order were an order under that Part.

(8) It shall be the duty of the police authority to take proceedings under subsection one of this section as respects any child in their district who appears to the authority to come within one of the descriptions mentioned in that subsection, unless—(a) the case is one within the cognisance of the local education authority and that authority decide themselves to take the proceedings ; or (b) proceedings are being taken by some other person ; or (c) the police authority are satisfied that the taking of proceedings is undesirable in the interests of the child.

59. Any person may bring before a petty sessional court<sup>2</sup> any person apparently of the age of fourteen or fifteen years so circumstanced that if he were a child he would come within one or other of the descriptions mentioned in subsection one of the last foregoing section, and the court, if satisfied on inquiry of that fact and that it is expedient so to deal with him, may, in accordance with the provisions of Part II. of this Act, make an order for his committal to the care of a relative or other fit person named by the court, and the provisions of that Part shall, so far as applicable, apply as if the order were an order under that Part.<sup>1</sup>

60. Where under the provisions of this Part of this Act an order is made for the committal of a child or young person to the care of a relative or other fit person named by the court, the court may in addition to such order make an order under the Probation of Offenders Act, 1907, that the child or young person be placed under the supervision of a probation officer :

Power in such cases to place young persons under supervision of probation officer.

Provided that the recognisance into which the child, if not charged with an offence, or the young person is required to enter, shall bind him to appear and submit to the further order of the court.

61. An order of a court ordering a youthful offender or child to be sent to and detained in a certified school (in this Act referred to as a detention order) may, if the court think fit, be made to take effect either immediately or at any later date specified therein, regard being had to the age or health of the youthful offender or child.

Power to defer operation of order.

62. (1) The school to which a youthful offender or child is to be sent under a detention order shall be such school as may be specified in the order, being some certified school (whether situate within the jurisdiction of the court making the order or not) the managers of which are willing to receive the youthful offender or child :

Choice of school.

Provided that, if it is found impossible to specify the school in the detention order, the school shall, subject to the provisions of this Act with respect to the determination of the place of residence of a youthful offender or child, be such as a justice having jurisdiction in the place where the court which made the order sat may by endorsement on the detention order direct.

(2) Where the court is satisfied that a youthful offender or child is, by reason of mental or physical defect, incapable of receiving proper benefit from industrial training in an ordinary certified school, but is not incapable by reason of such defect of receiving benefit from industrial training in a certified school where special provision is made for the training of youthful offenders or children suffering from such defect, the detention order (if any) shall be for detention in a school where such provision is made.<sup>2</sup>

63. If—(a) a detention order is made but is not to take effect immediately ; or (b) at the time specified for the order to take effect the youthful offender or child is unfit to be sent to a certified school ; or (c) the school to which the youthful offender or child is to be sent cannot be ascertained until inquiry has been made, the court may make an order committing him either to custody in any place to which he might be committed on remand under Part V. of this Act, or to the custody of a relative or other fit person<sup>3</sup> to whose care he might be committed under Part II. of this Act, and he shall be kept in that custody accordingly until he is sent to a certified school in pursuance of the detention order.

Temporary detention until sent to certified school.

64. (1) The person by whom any youthful offender or child ordered to be sent to a certified school is detained shall at the appointed time deliver him into the custody of the constable or other person responsible for his conveyance to school, who shall deliver him to the superintendent or other person in charge of the school in which he is to be detained, together with the order or other document in pursuance of which the offender or child was detained and is sent to the school.

(2) The detention order in pursuance of which the youthful offender or child is sent to a certified school shall be a sufficient authority for his conveyance to and detention in the school or any other school to which he is transferred under this Part of this Act.

65. The detention order shall specify the time for which the youthful offender or child is to be detained in the school, being—(a) in the case of a youthful offender sent to a reformatory school, not less than three and not more than five years, but not in any case extending beyond the time

persuasion.

66. (1) The court or justice, in determining the certified school to which a youthful offender or child is to be sent, shall endeavour to ascertain the religious persuasion<sup>3</sup> to which the offender or child belongs, and the detention order shall, where practicable, specify the religious persuasion to which the offender or child appears to belong, and a school conducted in accordance with that persuasion shall, where practicable, be selected.

(2) A minister of the religious persuasion specified in the order as that to which a youthful offender or child sent to a certified school appears to belong may visit the offender or child at the school on such days, at such times, and on such conditions, as may be fixed by the Secretary of State,<sup>4</sup> for the purpose of affording him religious assistance and also for the purpose of instructing him in the principles of his religion.

(3) Where an order has been made for sending a youthful offender or child to a certified school which is not conducted in accordance with the religious persuasion to which the offender belongs, the parent, legal guardian, nearest adult relative, or person entitled to the custody of the offender or child may apply<sup>5</sup>—(a) if the detention order was made by a petty sessional court,<sup>6</sup> to a petty sessional court acting in and for the place in and for which the court which made the order acted; and (b) in any other case, to the Secretary of State,<sup>4</sup> to remove or send the offender or child to a certified school conducted in accordance with the offender's or child's religious persuasion, and the court or Secretary of State<sup>4</sup> shall, on proof of the offender's or child's religious persuasion, comply with the request of the applicant: Provided that—(i.) the application must be made before the offender or child has been sent to a certified school, or within thirty days after his arrival at the school; and (ii.) the applicant must show to the satisfaction of the court or Secretary of State<sup>4</sup> that the managers of the school named by him are willing to receive the offender or child: (iii.) nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing any such person as aforesaid from making an application to the Secretary of State<sup>4</sup> after the expiration of the said period of thirty days to exercise the powers of transfer conferred on him by the other provisions of this Act.<sup>7</sup> on licence.

JUVENILE OFFENDERS.

94. Where a person apparently under the age of sixteen years is apprehended with or without warrant, and cannot be brought forthwith before a court of summary jurisdiction, a superintendent or inspector of police, or other officer of police of equal or superior rank, or the officer in charge of the police station to which such person is brought, shall inquire into the case and may in any case, and shall—

(a) unless the charge is one of homicide or other grave crime; or

<sup>1</sup> As to the application of this subsection to day industrial schools, see par. XIII. of the Order in Council, dated 15th April 1910, printed verbatim, post.

(b) unless it is necessary in the interest of such person to remove him from association with any reputed criminal or prostitute ;
or

(c) unless the officer has reason to believe that the release of such person would defeat the ends of justice, release such person on a recognisance, with or without sureties, for such an amount as will, in the opinion of the officer, secure the attendance of such person upon the hearing of the charge, being entered into by him or by his parent or guardian.

Custody of children and young persons not discharged on bail after arrest.

95. Where a person apparently under the age of sixteen years having been apprehended is not so released as aforesaid, the officer of police shall cause him to be detained in a place of detention<sup>1</sup> provided under this Part of this Act until he can be brought before a court of summary jurisdiction, unless the officer certifies—

(a) that it is impracticable to do so ; or

(b) that he is of so unruly a character that he cannot be safely so detained : or

(c) that by reason of his state of health or of his mental or bodily condition it is inadvisable so to detain him ; and the certificate shall be produced to the court before which the person is brought.

Association with adults during detention in police stations.

96. It shall be the duty of the police authority<sup>2</sup> to make arrangements for preventing, so far as practicable, a child or young person while being detained in a police station from associating with an adult, other than a relative, charged with an offence.

Remand or committal to custody in place of detention.

97. (1) A court of summary jurisdiction, on remanding or committing for trial a child or young person who is not released on bail, shall, instead of committing him to prison, commit him to custody in a place of detention provided under this Part of this Act and named in the commitment, to be there detained for the period for which he is remanded or until he is thence delivered in due course of law :

Provided that in the case of a young person it shall not be obligatory on the court so to commit him if the court certifies that he is of so unruly a character that he cannot be safely so committed, or that he is of so depraved a character that he is not a fit person to be so detained.

(2) A commitment under this section may be varied or, in the case of a young person who proves to be of so unruly a character that he cannot be safely detained in such custody, or to be of so depraved a character that he is not a fit person to be so detained, revoked by any court of summary jurisdiction acting in or for the place in or for which the court which made the order acted, and if it is revoked the young person may be committed to prison.

Attendance at court of parent of child or young person charged with an offence, &c.

98. (1) Where a child or young person is charged with any offence, or where a child is brought before a petty sessional court<sup>3</sup> on an application for an order to send him to a certified industrial school, his parent or guardian may in any case, and shall if he can be found and resides within a reasonable distance and the person so charged or brought before the court is a child, be required to attend at the court before which the case is heard or determined during all the stages of the proceedings, unless the court is satisfied that it would be unreasonable to require his attendance.

(2) Where the child or young person is arrested, the constable by whom he is arrested or the officer of police in charge of the police station to which he is brought shall cause the parent or guardian of the child or young person, if he can be found, to be warned to attend at the court before which the child or young person will appear.<sup>4</sup>

(3) For the purpose of enforcing the attendance of a parent or guardian and enabling him to take part in the proceedings and enabling orders to be made against him, rules may be made under section twenty-nine of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879,<sup>5</sup> for applying, with the necessary adaptations and modifications, such of the provisions of the Summary

(4) The parent or guardian whose attendance shall be required under this section shall be the parent or guardian having the actual possession and control of the child or young person :

Provided that if that person is not the father, the attendance of the father may also be required.

(5) The attendance of the parent of a child or young person shall not be required under this section in any case where the child or young person was before the institution of the proceedings removed from the custody or charge of his parent by an order of a court of justice.

99. (1) Where a child or young person is charged before any court with any offence for the commission of which a fine, damages, or costs may be imposed, and the court is of opinion that the case would be best met by the imposition of a fine, damages, or costs, whether with or without any other punishment, the court may in any case, and shall if the offender is a child, order that the fine, damages, or costs awarded be paid by the parent or guardian of the child or young person instead of by the child or young person, unless the court is satisfied that the parent or guardian cannot be found or that he has not conducted to the commission of the offence by neglecting to exercise due care of the child or young person.

Power to order parent to pay fine, &c., instead of child or young person.

(2) Where a child or young person is charged with any offence, the court may order his parent or guardian to give security for his good behaviour.<sup>2</sup>

(3) Where a court of summary jurisdiction thinks that a charge against a child or young person is proved, the court may make an order on the parent or guardian under this section for the payment of damages or costs or requiring him to give security for good behaviour, without proceeding to the conviction of the child or young person.

(4) An order under this section may be made against a parent or guardian who, having been required to attend, has failed to do so, but, save as aforesaid, no such order shall be made without giving the parent or guardian an opportunity of being heard.

(5) Any sums imposed and ordered to be paid by a parent or guardian under this section, or on forfeiture of any such security as aforesaid, may be recovered from him by distress or imprisonment in like manner as if the order had been made on the conviction of the parent or guardian of the offence with which the child or young person was charged.

(6) A parent or guardian may appeal against an order under this section—

(a) if made by a court of summary jurisdiction to a court of quarter sessions ; and

[(b) Provides appeal to the Court of Criminal Appeal in England.]

100. The conviction of a child or young person shall not be regarded as a conviction of felony for the purposes of any disqualification attaching to felony.

Removal of disqualifications attaching to felony.

101. Where a child or young person is himself ordered by a court of summary jurisdiction to pay costs in addition to a fine, the amount of the costs so ordered to be paid shall in no case exceed the amount of the fine, and (except so far as the court may think fit expressly to order otherwise) all fees payable or paid by the informant in excess of the amount of costs so ordered to be paid shall be remitted or repaid to him, and the court may also order the fine or any part thereof to be paid to the informant in or towards the payment of his costs.

Limitation of costs.

(2) A young person shall not be sentenced to penal servitude for any offence.

(3) A young person shall not be sentenced to imprisonment for an offence or committed to prison in default of payment of a fine, damages, or costs, unless the court certifies that the young person is of so unruly a character that he cannot be detained in a place of detention provided under this Part of this Act, or that he is of so depraved a character that he is not a fit person to be so detained.

Abolition of death sentence in case of children and young persons.

103. Sentence of death shall not be pronounced on or recorded against a child or young person, but in lieu thereof the court shall sentence the child or young person to be detained during His Majesty's pleasure, and, if so sentenced, he shall, notwithstanding anything in the other provisions of this Act, be liable to be detained in such place and under such conditions as the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may direct, and whilst so detained shall be deemed to be in legal custody.

104. Where a child or young person is convicted on indictment of an attempt to murder, or of manslaughter, or of wounding with intent to do grievous bodily harm, and the court is of opinion that no punishment which under the provisions of this Act it is authorised to inflict is sufficient, the court may sentence the offender to be detained for such period as may be specified in the sentence; and where such a sentence is passed the child or young person shall, during that period, notwithstanding anything in the other provisions of this Act, be liable to be detained in such place and on such conditions as the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may direct, and whilst so detained shall be deemed to be in legal custody.

Provisions as to discharge of children and young persons detained in accordance with directions of Secretary of State.

105. (1) A person in detention pursuant to the directions of the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> under the last two foregoing sections of this Act may, at any time, be discharged by the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> on licence.

(2) A licence may be in such form and may contain such conditions as the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may direct.

(3) A licence may at any time be revoked or varied by the Secretary of State,<sup>1</sup> and where a licence has been revoked the person to whom the licence related shall return to such place as the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may direct, and if he fails to do so may be apprehended without warrant and taken to that place.

Substitution of custody in place of detention for imprisonment.

106. Where a child or young person is convicted of an offence punishable, in the case of an adult, with penal servitude or imprisonment, or would, if he were an adult, be liable to be imprisoned in default of payment of any fine, damages, or costs, and the court considers that none of the other methods in which the case may legally be dealt with is suitable, the court may, in lieu of sentencing him to imprisonment or committing him to prison, order that he be committed to custody in a place of detention provided under this Part of this Act and named in the order for such term as may be specified in the order, not exceeding the term for which he might, but for this Part of this Act, be sentenced to imprisonment or committed to prison, nor in any case exceeding one month.

Methods of dealing with children and young persons charged with offences.

107. Where a child or young person charged with any offence is tried by any court, and the court is satisfied of his guilt, the court shall take into consideration the manner in which, under the provisions of this or any other Act enabling the court to deal with the case, the case should be dealt with, namely, whether—

Where, however, a certificate has been given under section 102 (3) of the Children Act, 1908, that the prisoner is of unruly or depraved character, no inquiry will be made unless the prisoner gives his age as under fourteen years (2543).

There was evidence to the effect that the room or box in question was used as a luncheon room where intoxicating liquor was served along with food, but no evidence that it was mainly or exclusively used for the sale or consumption of liquor. The licensed person having been convicted, it was held that the room or box was not a part of the bar of the premises, and the conviction was quashed (Donaghue v. McIntyre (1911), H.C. (4) Where, after the person or clothing of a child has been cleansed by a local education authority<sup>1</sup> under this section, the parent or guardian of, or other person liable to maintain, the child allows him to get into such a condition that it is again necessary to proceed under this section, the parent, guardian, or other person shall, on summary conviction, be liable to a fine not exceeding ten shillings.

(5) Where a local education authority<sup>1</sup> give notice under this section to the parent or guardian of, or other person liable to maintain, a child, requiring him to cleanse the person and clothing of the child, the authority shall also furnish him with written instructions describing the manner in which the cleansing may best be effected.

Provided that where the youthful offender, young person, or child is illegitimate and an affiliation order for his maintenance has previously been made on the application of his mother under the enactments relating to bastardy, the court shall not (unless in view of the special circumstances of the case the court thinks it desirable) make an order for contribution against the putative father, but may order the whole or any part of the payments accruing due under the affiliation order to be made to the chief inspector of reformatory and industrial schools or such other person as may be named in the order, to be applied by him towards the maintenance of the youthful offender, young person, or child.

Provided that, if it is found impossible to specify the school in the detention order, the school shall be such as a justice having jurisdiction in the place where the court which made the order sat may by endorsement on the detention order direct.

IV. Section 65 of the Children Act shall, in its application to day industrial schools, take effect with modifications as follows:—

The detention order shall specify the time for which the child is to be detained in the school, being such time as to the court may seem proper for the teaching and training of the child, but not in any case extending beyond the time when the child will, in the opinion of the court, attain the age of fourteen years.

V. Section 66 of the Children Act shall, in its application to day industrial schools, take effect with modifications as follows:—

(1) The court of justice, in determining the school to which a child is to be sent, whether under a detention order or an attendance order, shall endeavour to ascertain the religious persuasion to which the child belongs, and the order shall, where practicable, specify the religious persuasion to which the child appears to belong, and if the child belongs, or appears to belong, to the Roman Catholic Church, a school conducted in accordance with the doctrines of that Church; and, if the child does not belong, or does not appear to belong to that Church, some school not conducted in accordance with the doctrines of that Church, shall be selected.

(2) A minister of the religious persuasion specified in the order of the court as that to which a child sent to a school appears to belong, or specified in the undertaking of the parent, may visit the child at the school on such days, at such times, and on such conditions, as may be fixed by the Chief Secretary, for the purpose of affording him religious assistance, and also for the purpose of instructing him in the principles of his religion.

(3) Where an order has been made for sending a child to a school which is not conducted in accordance with the religious persuasion to which the child belongs, the parent, legal guardian, nearest adult relative, or person entitled to the custody of the child, may apply to a court of summary jurisdiction constituted in accordance with the provisions of section 249 of the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1878

(41 & 42 Vict., c. 52), acting in and for the place in and for which the court which made the order acted, to remove or send the child to a certified day industrial school, within three miles of the residence of the child, conducted in accordance with the child's religious persuasion, and the court shall, on proof of the child's religious persuasion, comply with the request of the applicant :

(ii.) the applicant must show to the satisfaction of the court that the managers of the school named by him are willing to receive the child ;

(iii.) nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing any such person as aforesaid from making an application to the Chief Secretary after the expiration of the said period of thirty days to exercise the powers of transfer conferred on him by the other provisions of the Children Act.

Placing out on Licence.

VI. Section 67 of the Children Act shall, in its application to day industrial schools, take effect with modifications as follows :—

(1) Where a child is sent to a certified day industrial school under a detention order, the managers of the school may at any time give him a licence exempting him from attendance at such school, but conditionally on his attending regularly as a day scholar, some national or other efficient school named in the licence, and being a school under the management of a manager belonging to the religious persuasion to which the child belongs.

(2) Any licence so granted shall be in force until revoked or forfeited by the breach of any of the conditions on which it was granted.

(3) The managers of the school may at any time by order in writing revoke any such licence, and order the child to return to the school.

(4) Any child refusing to return to the school when required to do so on the revocation or forfeiture of his licence, shall be liable to the same penalty as if he had wilfully neglected to attend the day industrial school.

(5) The time during which a child is absent from a day industrial school in pursuance of a licence under this section shall be deemed to be part of the time of his detention in the school : Provided that, where a child has failed to return to the school on the licence being forfeited or revoked, the time which elapses after his failure so to return shall be excluded in computing the time during which he is to be detained in the school.

(6) Where a licence has been revoked or forfeited and the child refuses or fails to return to the school, a court of summary jurisdiction, if satisfied by information on oath that there is reasonable ground for believing that his parent or guardian could produce the child, may issue a summons requiring the parent or guardian to attend at the court on such day as may be specified in the summons, and to produce the child, and, if he fails to do so without reasonable excuse, he shall, in addition to any other liability to which he may be subject under the provisions of Part IV. of the Children Act, be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one pound.

VIII. Section 71 of the Children Act shall, in its application to day industrial schools, take effect with modifications as follows :—

If a child of the age of twelve years or upwards sent to a certified day industrial school under a detention order, is guilty of a serious and wilful breach of the rules of the school, or of inciting other inmates of the school to such a breach, he shall be liable to be brought before a court of summary jurisdiction constituted in accordance with the provisions of section two hundred and forty-nine of the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1878 (41 & 42 Vict. c. 52), and the court, if satisfied on inquiry that it is expedient so to deal with the child, may order him to be sent to a certified industrial school, and to be there detained, subject and according to the provisions of Part IV. of the Children Act.

IX. Section 72 of the Children Act shall, in its application to day industrial schools, take effect with modifications as follows :—

(1) If a child, of the age of twelve years or upwards, sent to a certified day industrial school under a detention order wilfully neglects to attend thereat, he may, at any time before the expiration of his period of detention, be brought before a court of summary jurisdiction constituted in accordance with the provisions of section two hundred and forty-nine of the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1878 (41 & 42 Vict. c. 52), and the court, if satisfied on inquiry that it is expedient so to deal with the child, may order him to be sent to a certified industrial school, to be there detained subject and according to the provisions of Part IV. of the Children Act.

(2) If any person—

(a) knowingly assists or induces directly or indirectly a child sent to a certified day industrial school not to attend thereat ;

(b) knowingly harbours, conceals, or prevents from returning to school, a child who has neglected to attend the school, or knowingly assists in so doing ;

he shall on summary conviction be liable to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding fourteen days, with or without hard labour, or to a fine not exceeding five pounds.

Reception of Child under Attendance Order or without Order.

X. Whereas it is enacted by section 79 of the Children Act as modified by section 133 (20) as follows :—

“ The managers of a certified day industrial school may upon the request of a School Attendance Committee, and of the parent or guardian of, or other person legally liable to maintain a child, and upon the undertaking of the parent, guardian, or other person, to pay towards the industrial training and meals of the child such sum as the Chief Secretary may authorise, receive the child into the school under an attendance order or without an order of a court : ”

And whereas by the 4th section of the Irish Education Act, 1892, it is enacted in effect that any child under an attendance order requiring him to attend some national or other efficient school, shall attend that school in such regular manner as is specified in the order :

It is hereby ordered, with respect to an attendance order requiring attendance in a certified day industrial school, that the following provisions shall apply :— Rules.

(a) The school shall be some certified day industrial school, the managers of which are willing to receive the child, which is within three miles of the residence of the child ;

(b) The attendance order shall specify the period for which the child is to attend the school, being such period as to the court seems proper, but not in any case extending beyond the time when the child will attain the age of fourteen years ;

(c) The undertaking of the parent may be made in the form set forth in Schedule A hereto ; and

It is further ordered, with respect to a child received without an order of a court, that the undertaking of the parent shall specify the religious persuasion to which the child belongs, and may be made in the form set forth in Schedule B thereto.

Contribution by Parents.

XI. Whereas by section 82 of the Children Act, 1908, as modified by section 133 (20), it is enacted as follows :—

“(1) Where a court orders a child to be sent to a certified day industrial school, the court shall also order the parent of the child, or other person liable to maintain him, to contribute towards his industrial training and meals in the school such sum as is named in the order, not exceeding such sum as may be declared by Order in Council to represent approximately the average cost of industrial training and meals in day industrial schools in Ireland.

“(2) It shall be the duty of the School Attendance Committee to obtain and enforce the order, and every sum received by the School Attendance Committee under the order shall be applied in like manner as moneys received by the Committee under the Irish Education Act, 1892.”

It is hereby declared that the sum of 1s. 9d. a week represents approximately the average cost of industrial training and meals in day industrial schools in Ireland.

XII. Section 75 of the Children Act shall, in its application to day industrial schools, take effect with modifications as follows :—

(1) Every order requiring a parent or other person to contribute to the industrial training and meals of a child ordered to be sent to a day industrial school may specify the time during which the payment is to be made, or may direct the payment to be made until further order, and shall be enforceable in the manner provided by section 25 of the Irish Reformatory Schools Act, 1868.

(2) Any such order may, on application being made either by the person on whom the order is made, or at the instance of the School Attendance Committee, and on fourteen days' notice of such application being given to such authority or person on whom the order was made, be varied by any court which would have had power to make the order.

(3) Any such order shall be binding on the person on whom it is made :

Provided that if that person was not summoned to attend the sitting of the court at which the order was made, the order shall be served on him in manner prescribed by rules of court, and shall be binding on him unless he makes an application against it within the time prescribed by rules of court to the court by which the order was made, on the ground that he is not liable to maintain the child, and on any such application being made the court may confirm the order with or without modifications, or may rescind it.

(4) Where a parent or other person has been so ordered to contribute to the industrial training and meals of a child he shall give notice of any change of address to the School Attendance Committee, and if he fails to do so, without reasonable excuse, he shall be liable, on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding two pounds.

(5) The School Attendance Committee may in their discretion remit wholly or partially any payment ordered to be made under this section.

(6) Where there is some person, other than the parent, for the time being liable to maintain a child, such an order as aforesaid may be made on that person notwithstanding that there may be also a parent.

(7) Any court making an order for contribution by a parent or other such person may, in any case where there is any pension or income payable to such parent or other person and capable of being attached, after giving the person by whom the pension or income is payable an opportunity of being heard, further order that such part as the court may see fit of the pension or income be attached and be paid to the person named by the court. Such further order shall be an authority to the person by whom such pension or other income is payable to make the payment so ordered, and the receipt of the person to whom the payment is ordered to be made shall be a good discharge to such first-named person.

XIII. Section 88 (6) of the Children Act shall, in its application to day industrial schools, take effect with modifications as follows :—

A certificate purporting to be under the hand of the superintendent of the day industrial school, or an officer of the managers, stating that any sum due from a parent or other person for the maintenance of a child is overdue and unpaid, shall be evidence of the facts stated therein.

TRADE BOARDS ACT, 1909.

[9 EDW. 7, CH. 22.]

*Establishment of Trade Boards for Trades to which the Act applies.*Application of Act to certain trades.

1. (1) This Act shall apply to the trades specified in the schedule to this Act and to any other trades to which it has been applied by Provisional Order of the Board of Trade made under this section.

(2) The Board of Trade may make a Provisional Order applying this Act to any specified trade to which it does not at the time apply if they are satisfied that the rate of wages prevailing in any branch of the trade is exceptionally low, as compared with that in other employments, and that the other circumstances of the trade are such as to render the application of this Act to the trade expedient.

(3) If at any time the Board of Trade consider that the conditions of employment in any trade to which this Act applies have been so altered as to render the application of this Act to the trade unnecessary, they may make a Provisional Order that this Act shall cease to apply to that trade.

(4) The Board of Trade may submit to Parliament for confirmation any Provisional Order made by them in pursuance of this section, but no such Order shall have effect unless and until it is confirmed by Parliament.

(5) If, while a Bill confirming any such Order is pending in either House of Parliament, a petition is presented against any Order comprised therein, the Bill, so far as it relates to that Order, may be referred to a select committee, or, if the two Houses of Parliament think fit so to order, to a joint committee of those Houses, and the petitioner shall be allowed to appear and oppose as in the case of Private Bills.

(6) Any Act confirming a Provisional Order made in pursuance of this section may be repealed, altered, or amended by any subsequent Provisional Order made by the Board of Trade and confirmed by Parliament.

Establishment of Trade Boards for trades to which Act applies.

2. (1) The Board of Trade shall, if practicable, establish one or more Trade Boards constituted in accordance with regulations made under this Act for any trade to which this Act applies or for any branch of work in the trade.

Where a Trade Board is established under this Act for any trade or branch of work in a trade which is carried on to any substantial extent in Ireland, a separate Trade Board shall be established for that trade or branch of work in a trade in Ireland.

(2) Where a Trade Board has been established for any branch of work in a trade, any reference in this Act to the trade for which the Board is established shall be construed as a reference to the branch of work in the trade for which the Board has been established.

General duties
of Trade Boards.

3. A Trade Board for any trade shall consider, as occasion requires, any matter referred to them by a Secretary of State, the Board of Trade, or any other Government Department, with reference to the industrial conditions of the trade, and shall make a report upon the matter to the department by whom the question has been referred.

*Minimum Rates of Wages.*Duties and powers of Trade Boards with respect to minimum rates of wages.

4. (1) Trade Boards shall, subject to the provisions of this section, fix minimum rates of wages for timework for their trades (in this Act referred to as minimum time-rates), and may also fix general minimum rates of wages for piecework for their trades (in this Act referred to as general minimum piece-rates), and those rates of wages (whether time- or piece-rates) may be fixed so as to apply universally to the trade, or so as to apply to any special process in the work of the trade or to any special class of workers in the trade, or to any special area.

If a Trade Board report to the Board of Trade that it is impracticable cable in any case to fix a minimum time-rate in accordance with this section, the Board of Trade may so far as respects that case relieve the Trade Board of their duty.

(2) Before fixing any minimum time-rate or general minimum piece-rate, the Trade Board shall give notice of the rate which they propose to fix and consider any objections to the rate which may be lodged with them within three months.

(3) The Trade Board shall give notice of any minimum time-rate or general minimum piece-rate fixed by them.

(4) A Trade Board may, if they think it expedient, cancel or vary any minimum time-rate or general minimum piece-rate fixed under this Act, and shall reconsider any such minimum rate if the Board of Trade direct them to do so, whether an application is made for the purpose or not :

Provided that the provisions of this section as to notice shall apply where it is proposed to cancel or vary the minimum rate fixed under the foregoing provisions in the same manner as they apply where it is proposed to fix a minimum rate.

(5) A Trade Board shall on the application of any employer fix a special minimum piece-rate to apply as respects the persons employed by him in cases to which a minimum time-rate but no general minimum piece-rate is applicable, and may as they think fit cancel or vary any such rate either on the application of the employer or after notice to the employer, such notice to be given not less than one month before cancellation or variation of any such rate.

5. (1) Until a minimum time-rate or general minimum piece-rate fixed by a Trade Board has been made obligatory by order of the Board of Trade under this section, the operation of the rate shall be limited as in this Act provided. Order giving obligatory effect to minimum rates of wages.

(2) Upon the expiration of six months from the date on which a Trade Board have given notice of any minimum time-rate or general minimum piece-rate fixed by them, the Board of Trade shall make an order (in this Act referred to as an obligatory order) making that minimum rate obligatory in cases in which it is applicable on all persons employing labour and on all persons employed, unless they are of opinion that the circumstances are such as to make it premature or otherwise undesirable to make an obligatory order, and in that case they shall make an order suspending the obligatory operation of the rate (in this Act referred to as an order of suspension).

(3) Where an order of suspension has been made as respects any rate, the Trade Board may, at any time after the expiration of six months from the date of the order, apply to the Board of Trade for an obligatory order as respects that rate ; and on any such application the Board of Trade shall make an obligatory order as respects that rate, unless they are of opinion that a further order of suspension is desirable, and, in that case, they shall make such a further order, and the provisions of this section which are applicable to the first order of suspension shall apply to any such further order.

An order of suspension as respects any rate shall have effect until an obligatory order is made by the Board of Trade under this section.

(4) The Board of Trade may, if they think fit, make an order to apply generally as respects any rates which may be fixed by any Trade Board constituted, or about to be constituted, for any trade to which this Act applies, and while the order is in force any minimum time-rate or general minimum piece-rate shall, after the lapse of six months from the date on which the Trade Board have given notice of the fixing of the rate, be obligatory in the same manner as if the Board of Trade had made an order making the rate obligatory under this section, unless in any particular case the Board of Trade, on the application of any person interested, direct to the contrary.

The Board of Trade may revoke any such general order at any time after giving three months' notice to the Trade Board of their intention to revoke it.

6. (1) Where any minimum rate of wages fixed by a Trade Board has been made obligatory by order of the Board of Trade under this Act, an employer shall, in cases to which the minimum rate is applicable, pay wages to the person employed at not less than the minimum rate clear of all deductions, and if he fails to do so shall be liable on summary conviction in respect of each offence to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds and to a fine not exceeding five pounds for each day on which the offence is continued after conviction therefor.

Penalty for not paying wages in accordance with minimum rate which has been made obligatory.

(2) On the conviction of an employer under this section for failing to pay wages at not less than the minimum rate to a person employed, the court may by the conviction adjudge the employer convicted to pay, in addition to any fine, such sum as appears to the court to be due to the person employed on account of wages, the wages being calculated on the basis of the minimum rate, but the power to order the payment of wages under this provision shall not be in derogation of any right of the person employed to recover wages by any other proceedings.

(3) If a Trade Board are satisfied that any worker employed, or desiring to be employed, on time work in any branch of a trade to which a minimum time-rate fixed by the Trade Board is applicable is affected by any infirmity or physical injury which renders him incapable of earning that minimum time-rate, and are of opinion that the case cannot suitably be met by employing the worker on piece-rate, the Trade Board may, if they think fit, grant to the worker, subject to such conditions, if any, as they prescribe, a permit exempting the employment of the worker from the provisions of this Act rendering the minimum time-rate obligatory, and, while the permit is in force, an employer shall not be liable to any penalty for paying wages to the worker at a rate less than the minimum time-rate so long as any conditions prescribed by the Trade Board on the grant of the permit are complied with.

(4) On any prosecution of an employer under this section, it shall lie on the employer to prove by the production of proper wages sheets or other records of wages or otherwise that he has not paid, or agreed to pay, wages at less than the minimum rate.

(5) Any agreement for the payment of wages in contravention of this provision shall be void.

Limited operation of minimum rate which has not been made obligatory.

7. (1) Where any minimum rate of wages has been fixed by a Trade Board, but is not for the time being obligatory under an order of the Board of Trade made in pursuance of this Act, the minimum rate shall, unless the Board of Trade direct to the contrary in any case in which they have directed the Trade Board to reconsider the rate, have a limited operation as follows :—

- (a) In all cases to which the minimum rate is applicable an employer shall, in the absence of a written agreement to the contrary, pay to the person employed wages at not less than the minimum rate, and, in the absence of any such agreement, the person employed may recover wages at such a rate from the employer ;
- (b) Any employer may give written notice to the Trade Board by whom the minimum rate has been fixed that he is willing that that rate should be obligatory on him, and in that case he shall be under the same obligation to pay wages to the person employed at not less than the minimum rate, and be liable to the same fine for not doing so, as he would be if an order of the Board of Trade were in force making the rate obligatory ; and
- (c) No contract involving employment to which the minimum rate is applicable shall be given by a Government Department or local authority to any employer unless he has given notice to the Trade Board in accordance with the foregoing provision :
